THE MAGAZINE OF WESTERN LIVING

INDEX TO ALL EDITIONS • JANUARY 1968 TO DECEMBER 1968

HOW TO USE THIS INDEX

SUNSET is published each month in four editions: Northwest edition for Washington, Oregon, Idaho, and Alaska; Central edition for northern and central California, Nevada, and Utah; Southwest edition for coastal Southern California and Hawaii; Desert edition for southeastern California, southern Nevada, and Arizona. Because of the climate and other differences, many SUNSET articles run in only one or two of the four editions.

You can tell which edition of SUNSET you read by looking on the index page of the magazine. At the upper left corner of the page you will see the name of the edition: Pacific Northwest, Central, Southern California and Hawaii, or Desert. The edition can also be found in small print at the bottom of the index page.

In the index listings, N denotes Northwest edition; C, Central edition; S, Southwest edition; and D, the Desert edition. The word "all" tells you that an article has appeared the same month and page in all four editions. Index listings are written as follows: May 76 N, C (May, page 76, Northwest and Central editions).

Going Hawaiian is too good a thing to rush

Relax and enjoy it. Go Hawaiian aboard Matson's SS Lurline.

Whether you spend five days cruising between California and Honolulu, or 15 days cruising to Hawaii's four major islands, you'll learn to unwind and enjoy life the way Hawaiians do.

The comfortable Polynesian atmosphere of the SS Lurline will ease you into a carefree Hawaiian mood. You'll live as if the sun will always shine, the weather will always be fair and everything will take care of itself.

You will enjoy exclusively First Class accommodations, fine food, wonderful nightly parties and a warm shipboard spirit that is made possible as much by the happy passengers as by the attentive crew.

You can expect to be treated to service in the Grand Manner of Matson; service that has all but vanished from life on land.

You can order breakfast in bed. (And be sure to try the fresh papaya.)

You can learn the hula. Our Hawaiian instructor will have time to help you get it right.

You can hold a party in your stateroom. We will send our written invitations to your friends and provide help for the occasion — complimentary of course.

You can order a dinner of Breast of Pheasant with Truffle Sauce and Wild Rice, Chicken Hawaiian or Charcoal Broiled Pacific Lobster in Shell a la Mornay. Our chefs will prepare it the way you like it.

You can request our ship's Hawaiian Trio to play your favorite Island songs.

The SS Lurline sails every week between San Francisco or Los Angeles and Honolulu. Five times a year it makes special 15-day all-expense cruises to the four major islands of Oahu, Kauai, Maui and Hawaii.

Either way is the best way to see Hawaii. You'll have a lot of fun while you relax at the same time. And that's the best way to go Hawaiian.

For a booklet giving you a day-to-day account of a Hawaiian cruise aboard the SS Lurline, see your travel agent or write Paul Thompson, Matson Cruise consultant, 110 Mission Street, San Francisco, California 94105.

SAFETY INFORMATION
SS Lurline, registered in the U. S., meets International Safety Standards for new ships developed in 1960.

The Cover Story

A prize shellfish of the Pacific coast is the Dungeness crab, shown on our cover. Simple presentation suits it best; and on pages 48 and 49 we tell how to serve it in a meal that has become classic: crab, salad, bread, and wine. Your preparation can start with live crab or with cooked crab dressed at the market. Crack the crab as you eat. Cover photograph by Glenn Christiansen

What to wear on our Midnight Jet to London.

Don't laugh.

When you go to London, the first thing you ought to get yourself is a good night's sleep. (Just ask anyone who's been there lately. They don't call it "Swinging London" for nothing.)

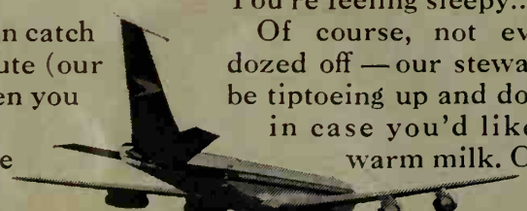
So we figure you can catch up on your rest en route (our time). Instead of when you arrive (your time).

Here's the plan. We have a big 707 Rolls-Royce fan jet ready to leave San Francisco just around the time you probably go to bed—midnight. You get on board. Stretch out with a nice fat pillow. Snuggle into a soft blanket. And click—lights out. You're feeling sleepy...very sleepy.

Of course, not everyone has dozed off — our stewardesses will be tiptoeing up and down the aisle in case you'd like a glass of warm milk. Or something more intriguing, like a tasty snack from our galley of gourmet delicacies.

Our Midnight Jet* leaves San Francisco for London every midnight of the week. Maybe you'd like to sleep on that.

For reservations, see your Travel Agent. Or call British Overseas Airways Corporation in San Francisco at YU 2-9500.



The Midnight Jet.

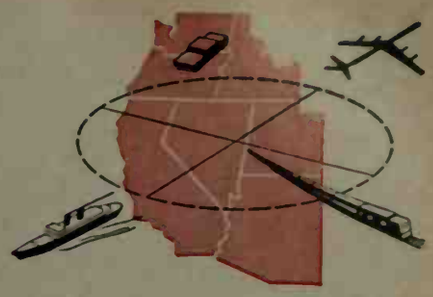
January travel... in and beyond the West



A plant life primer and January walk

For a fine introduction to native plant life around San Francisco Bay, take a trail walk this month behind Villa Montalvo in Saratoga. The bark of the madrone is shiny red after the rains, leaves lie brown and matted beneath the bigleaf maple and valley oak, and the feeble January sun sends patches of light to the dank floor of the grove of coast redwood.

In all, 21 plants have identifying labels along a 1.1-mile trail on the estate (now open to the public) of the late Senator James Phelan. The nature trail, supervised by the County of Santa Clara, starts behind the senator's 19-room mansion. You can pick up a nature trail guide free at the office near parking lot 1.

The first half mile is fairly steep as you gain about 400 feet in altitude. In wet weather, boots or walking shoes help, for the steep parts can be slippery.

For a less strenuous walk, start at the end of the trail (near the tennis court) and read the trail guide from the back. Several alternate trails branch from the main walkway to vary the length of the walk. You may see a variety of bird life here, for the Montalvo Arboretum is also an Audubon Society Sanctuary.

The grounds are open every day of the week during daylight hours. To drive to Montalvo when you go south on Junipero Serra Freeway (Interstate 280), turn off at Saratoga-Sunnyvale Road (State Highway 85). Follow it to the center of Saratoga and turn left (southeast) on Saratoga-Los Gatos Road (State Highway 9). It's about half a mile to Montalvo Road, on the right.

A new interstate link east of the Bay Area

Early this winter a 56-mile stretch of freeway opened between State Highway 152 (Pacheco Pass) and U.S. Highway 50. You can now turn southeast when you're 10 miles east of the Livermore exit and speed along the west side of the valley until you meet State 152 just 7 miles west of Los Banos.

This is the longest stretch of freeway ever opened at one time in California, and it reduces by half an hour the driving time between San Francisco and Fresno. It will

At our California headquarters, Mrs. Knoll holds new rose named in her honor. Dr. Dennison Morey, right

A new 1968 rose . . . for Elsa Knoll

A pleasant and most appropriate honor recently came to Elsa Uppman Knoll, Senior Editor of Sunset Magazine. She had a splendid new rose named for her.

Elsa Uppman joined us as Garden Editor in the early 1940's, after expansion at Stanford University crowded her California School of Gardening off the campus. To the magazine she brought a great store of garden knowledge, a love of fine gardens, and an extraordinary flair for plant combinations.

The new Elsa Knoll rose is a fragrant, coral pink Hybrid Tea developed by Dr. Dennison Morey, a widely known rosarian who is president of General Bionomics, Inc., of Santa Rosa, California, a research association that develops and tests ornamental plants for Western climates.

Ranch bus takes you a mile from lake to homestead, past this 85-year-old wool

The dude ranch idea is something of a stranger to New Zealand, and that is one of the reasons why Cecil Peak Station enjoys particular renown.

But it is not the only reason. Although it is more devoted to sheep than to cattle, this historic 34,000-acre spread is in its own way as suitable as any big Western ranch for getting away from city noises and automobile traffic. Accessible only by water, it is a 40-minute boat trip from Queenstown across Lake Wakatipu, a deep lake 54 miles long in a glacial trough something like that of Lake Chelan, in Washington.

The half-day excursion to Cecil Peak Station for tea is one of the "musts" for

Ask your travel agent about the new low jet fares that make these unspoiled islands of Polynesia easier than ever to enjoy. And if you're bound for the lands "down under" or on your way around the world, see how conveniently you can add Tahiti at no extra fare.

Lee Canyon and its ski slopes are just around the corner from Las Vegas Canyon Ski Area is less than an hour's ive from Las Vegas. Although it's likely that anyone will go to Las Vegas t for the skiing, the tall pines and snow-ered slopes at the upper end of Lee nyon offer a delightful respite from all t bustle and whirl back in the metrop- of Clark County.

u can leave Las Vegas after breakfast, nd a pleasant day up in the snow, and back in town in plenty of time for linner show or other evening activity. ungsters especially will appreciate the portunity of breaking away from the lt-oriented activities of Las Vegas for hort family outing up in the mountains.

e ski area is a commercially operated ncession in the Mount Charleston Rec-tion Area of Toiyabe National Forest, an elevation of 8,500 feet, in a forest-nned amphitheater along the eastern arpment of the Spring Mountains. m Las Vegas take the Tonopah High-y (U.S. 95) northwest 29 miles to the ction of Nevada Highway 52. Turn left State 52 and head southwest up Lee nyon. In the 16 miles from the main ghway to the ski area, Highway 52 mbs about 6,000 feet.

e difference in elevation between the l valley floor and the snow-covered ne of Charleston Peak is responsible a remarkable sequence of climatic life es along the canyon drive. You pass ough five in a distance of just over miles, as you go from sage flats on the ert floor upward through yucca and hua trees, into piñon pines, and finally o tall yellow pines and groves of aspen.

Fortunately, the highway is paved, well graded, broad-shouldered, and offers numerous turnouts and viewpoints below the snow level.

Facilities at Lee Canyon Ski Area include a small but pleasant day lodge offering hot beverages, sandwiches, and soft drinks; a 2,700-foot-long T-bar (with a vertical rise of 700 feet) and a 3,000-foot-long double chair lift (with a vertical rise of 910 feet); a ski school; and an equipment rental and sales shop.

An all-day lift ticket costs $6 ($4.50 for the T-bar only). Skis, boots and poles rent for $4 (wooden skis) to $6 (metal). The ski school holds group classes each morning and afternoon, and individual instruction can be arranged at the convenience of the student and instructor. On weekends and holidays you can tour the upper canyon in a horse-drawn sleigh for $2.50.

Ample paved parking space is provided at the entry to the ski area.

The ski season at Lee Canyon usually begins just after Thanksgiving and continues through February, sometimes to as late as the middle of March. The ski area is open weekdays from 9:30 A.M. until 4 P.M., weekends from 9 A.M. until 4 P.M. You can verify current snow conditions by telephoning Lee Canyon Ski Lifts, Inc., Las Vegas, at (702) 870-5308.

Campgrounds in the Mount Charleston Recreation Area are closed down for the winter this month, but there are many snow-packed sylvan glades for snow picnics and snowman-building, and wooded trails for snowshoeing.

Tall pines and snow trails make Lee Canyon pleasant destination for both skiers and non-skiers. Las Vegas is 45 miles away

Take time to explore Giant Forest on foot

It's snow driving at its best

It can be delightful to drive slowly through a snowy forest when you know you're not holding up carloads of skiers impatient for the slopes, and when you're pretty sure you're not going to get stuck.

A road made to order for contemplation of Western winter at its best is the Generals' Highway, between Sequoia and Kings Canyon national parks. Except for b closings during and after storms it is k open all winter, yet leads to no major w ter sports centers, so it carries little wi traffic. Between General Grant Grove Giant Forest, it passes through subl forest scenery, 6,400 to 7,400 feet ab sea level, in which the dominant trees giant sequoias, with their cinnamon- trunks standing in warm contrast to cool blue shadows and white highlight the snow.

Park highway is 17-mile stretch in color

Driving a loop with Fresno at one and Visalia or Tulare at the other t a leisurely day, does not commit you fast or heavy traffic or high mount passes, and—because it can begin and at the same point—enables you to k the same city hotel or motel accomm tions for two nights. If you want to br the trip half way with an overnight s in the mountains, you will find excel lodgings at Giant Forest.

Get away to it all

Alaska. It's all too much to tell one ad. But here's one example of how to make your getaway:
Drive aboard one of the State's modern ferryliners at Prince Rupert, British Columbia. Start your cruise up the famed 'Inside Passage'— early explorer and gold-rush route.
See scenery that has to be called super-spectacular. You'll slip by glaciers crushing to the sea. High forested mountains plunge to deep fjords. Around the bend, there's a fishing village or a surprised whale.
Deer and bear watch you go by.
The weather's warm.

It's only 90 miles to Ketchikan, the world's salmon capital, where you'll see the greatest collection of totem poles anywhere. Wrangell, gateway to the spectacular
Stikine River country. Petersburg, the picturesque "little Norway" fishing town. Sitka, where the Russians said "nyet" too often to the Tlingit Indians, resulting in the "Battle of Alaska." Capital city, Juneau, where you can ride an ore car through one of Alaska's fabled gold mines.

At the top of the Alaska
Panhandle you have a delightful decision. Cruise to Haines and take the Haines Highway 150 miles north to meet the Alaska Highway. Or put your car on a train at Skagway—jumping off point for the Klondike Gold Rush.
Ride a parlor car over the Gold Rush Trail to link with the Alaska Highway at Whitehorse, Yukon Territory.
Then on to Fairbanks, where you can live it up in a mining town saloon or visit "Alaskaland," new fun fair of the North.

More of this great state is still ahead. Mt. McKinley and Anchorage. Eskimoland above the Arctic Circle. Along the way, you can stop to fish, hunt, take in the history, the scenery. And bring your camera. These are pictures your friends will want to see.

What do you want more of?

INDIANS We've got the most. More than any other state. Navajos tending sheep, making rugs, jewelry and diodes. Apaches herding cattle and running fishing lodges. Hopi mesa villages, with houses over 700 years old still occupied. Prehistoric cliff dwellings. Ceremonials and snake dances.

COWBOYS They're outnumbered by the Indians, but we still have 50,880,000 acres of range land in Arizona, some of the world's finest cattle, several of the world's most thrilling rodeos.

CITIES Clean, modern, ringed with resorts designed for your pleasure. You can rough it in Arizona — you can also find luxurious comfort. We want to be sure you have a good time!

MEXICO Tacos, senoritas, bullfights, exotic shopping are just across the border from our southern Arizona towns.

MOUNTAINS AND COOL PINES We have the world's largest expanse of Ponderosa pine forest, 17,736 sq. mi. of national forests, and ski slopes within easy drive of the warm, sunny valleys.

HISTORY 400-year-old missions, 2,000-year-old Indian ruins, ghost towns, old mines and military posts, the trails of Coronado, Cabeza de Vaca, Padre Kino, the Pony Express, Cochise Stronghold and Zane Grey country.

SUNSHINE You can hardly get away from that here. Our valleys are warm, dry, sunny. Our high country is cool, dry, sunny. We have more sunny hours than any other part of the country — lots more!

CACTUS Some people are fascinated by it. You either love the desert or run for an oasis (we've got plenty of them, too — with swimming pools). Come see how you react. We have 62 species of cactus, whole forests of giant Saguaros. In the spring, our desert is a mass of color.

WATER SPORTS 2,000 miles of shoreline. The Colorado River runs around two sides of Arizona through the Grand Canyon, deep blue lakes and rich farm land into the Gulf, where Arizona roads lead to the world's sportiest deep sea fishing. Bass, trout, crappie and channel cat are plentiful in the Colorado and the canyon lakes. Rainbows are jumping in our mountain lakes and streams. Coming down from the mountains, we have a chain of canyon lakes that store water for our valley cities and make the world's best water skiing.

GOLF 78 sporty courses from near sea level to 8,000 feet (where your drives do go farther). You can play golf every day of the year in Arizona.

SCENERY If you want to roam and look and wonder — at painted deserts, petrified forests, red rock canyons, gigantic dams, mountain lakes, unspoiled wilderness, hundred mile vistas — we've got them here for you — more national parks and monuments than any other state.

We'll be glad to tell you more about it. That's why we put the coupon at the top — to make it easier. Send it in today.

In Utah's Bear Lake in January, 50 fish in 5 minutes is legal

The annual spawning run of Bonneville cisco (Prosopium gemmiferum) will take place this month near the Idaho-Utah border along a wind-swept section of Bear Lake shore. Hearty cisco fishermen will brave the sub-freezing temperatures, frigid waters, and biting winds to net their limits of this tasty little whitefish as it makes its brief, once-a-year appearance from the deep waters of the lake.

The spawning run only lasts for about 12 days, and is limited to a 1¼-mile stretch of shore about 9 miles north of Laketown, Utah. All you need to become an accomplished cisco fisherman is an

The Pali Highway is the st way to get there, but if you'd like a more intimate view of e tropical rain forest that protects and nourishes Honolulu's pper Nuuanu Valley watershed, you can drive the older, two-ne, winding Nuuanu Pali Drive.

ither way you traverse the greenbelt extending much of the ay from Honolulu Harbor to Kaneohe Bay. Islanders plan to nprove and secure its high center so that Honolulu and the ushrooming towns on the windward side of the island won't erge into a single cross-mountain urban sprawl. The grand uuanu Valley approach is a permanent preserve figuring in e new Nuuanu Pali Natural Park. The plan for the park calls r removing the kapu (keep out) signs that have long made alkers feel unwelcome on the roadsides. Also proposed is an evated "trail in the trees," and a new turnout for views of the meadowland reservoir beneath the fluted southeast ridge.

On the drive up to the Pali you experience a remarkable weather change. At sea level it's warm and usually dry. Up 1,000 feet the air has turned cooler, and clouds pushed over the Koolaus by stiff trade winds let go the frequent showers that add up to 150 inches of average annual rainfall near the pass.

A marker on Pali Highway points to Upside Down Falls on the valley's northwest bluff, a temperamental performer that requires rain, then wind to blow the falls upward into mist.

From Wilson Tunnel, Likelike Highway descends through banana farms along base of green cliffs seen from Nuuanu Pali look

New roads tunnel under the cliffs, then shoot for the sea. But the high old Pali road is still there. Now it is for walkers

At the lookout a breathtaking view confronts you—and usu great blasts of wind. Your eye follows the grooved moun wall several miles northwest to Mokolii Island (Chinam Hat) and then travels back to Mokapu Peninsula at the op site end of Kaneohe Bay. Below you are the greens of woo cliffs, pastures, farms, cemetery, golf course, and undula hills. Clouds often hover over the lookout, but sun gener sparkles on the scene below.

Morning is the most predictable time for clear skies and g light for photographs. It's also when tour buses jam the terr

You'll see their passengers grab hats and skirts as they face into the powerful wind (the northwest corner is least buffeted).

Work will start soon to change public arrangements at the Pali. People are due to have preference over automobiles. The present shabby lookout will become a grass terrace crossed by a walkway sloping up from a new, lower parking area to high split-level viewing promenade. Later, new trails will wind up the mountain rises on either side of the Pali to Nuuanu Valley and to other windward outlooks.

The old abandoned road will become—in two or three years—a pedestrian promenade with rest shelters.

This road was originally an old Hawaiian footpath. In 1845 it was improved for a horse trail, later widened for carriages, and eventually for cars. Walking down the old road now you see sections of concrete and cobblestones that predate the modern asphalt. You also encounter one unduplicated view after another. A footpath goes underneath the highway to Auloa Road, another part of the old cross-island route which walkers can now enjoy. If you prefer you can drive up from below to where Auloa and Kionaole roads intersect, then walk. Future bridle trails and foot and bicycle paths will wind through these foothills of kukui, mango, and monkeypod trees.

Of course, the new state park will not make everything right with the historic Pali. It includes only a portion of the Pali scene. Housing has been gobbling up the windward greenery. Big transmission towers now march across the foothills. Buildings may sprout upon the Kapaa Hills opposite the lookout; already they have been gouged by a quarry. Construction is scheduled to start late this year on a large highway interchange also in view from the Pali.

But the park plan for the Pali does propose one bold idea: That almost 6,000 acres of public and private land on both sides of this marvelous mountain pass—10 times the land in the park itself—be put under design control, keeping as much of it as possible as permanent open space.

Such a suggestion might frighten some business and government officials on the mainland, but it doesn't seem at all out of place in the young state of Hawaii.

The goes-to-pieces plant container

It solves one big problem of container gardening

The great feature of these containers is that you can take them apart and reuse them whenever you want to. Simply undo the ropes and pull the sides away. The plant root ball stays intact. You can divide or root-prune the plant, return it to the container, and rebind with the rope —or use the container for another plant.

No nails are needed. The eight sides of each container are beveled and rabbeted to fit snugly around an octagonal base, and rabbeted to accept the encircling rope.

To make similar tubs, you'll need a radial arm, band, or table power saw, and preferably a dado blade.

You can use rough redwood for the sides, exterior plywood for the bases, and nylon rope from a marine supply store for the bindings. The big tub measures 19½ inches across the top; its sides are 1 by 8 lumber cut into 17-inch lengths, and it needed 54 feet of ⅜-inch rope (13 cents a foot). The tub with bamboo measures 15 inches across; it has 1 by 6 sides cut into 14-inch lengths, and it needed 26 feet of ⅝-inch rope (10 cents a foot).

We also built a smallish octagonal tub of 1 by 4 lumber, with ¼-inch rope binding; you can see it dimly behind the man in the large photograph. For a tub of this size, removing the plant isn't the problem it is with larger containers, and the sides could be permanently glued or nailed to the base and to each other.

If lumber width varies (this often happens with rough lumber), rip-saw to a consistent width. Then cut the lumber to the lengths chosen. Make shallow rabbets, no more than ¼ inch deep, for the rope in some multiple of the rope's diameter. Cut the base rabbet to fit the base material loosely. Make the leg cutouts by repeated passes through the saw blade, or by using a keyhole saw (or change the design to a simpler cut).

Then set your power saw to bevel at a 22.5° angle. Beveling the entire thickness of the boards produces the tight corners of the largest planter; beveling to within ¼ inch of full thickness produces the slightly open joints of the bamboo plant

Stand up the completed sides on a le piece of paper or cardboard and mark inside corners. Join these points; add inch all around to allow for the base r bet; use this as a guide when cutting base plywood. Drill drainage holes.

To attach the rope, drill a slanting h at top and bottom of each rope rabb ⅛6 inch wider than the rope used. Slip end of the rope through to the inside staple it. Wind the rope around the tub many times as the rabbet allows, pull it tight as you go; then fit the other through the second hole and staple it. (the finished appearance outside, see bamboo planter in the big photograp The lower binding rope has to exit thro the bottom of the planter, where you unloosen it when repotting is necessa

Seal, stain, or paint the planter bef affixing the rope; or leave it to weat naturally. You can minimize dirt's st ing the rope by coating it, in place, wi clear wood sealer.

The mountain house shown here is made to be snug during the long heavy snows at Snoqualmie Pass in the Cascades of Washington. The main living areas of the 1,300-square-foot house are raised above the deep snow level; the sleeping rooms are tucked down below where they are often buried for most of the winter.

Features of special interest include a "cave" with its own fireplace and game table where teen-agers can get off to themselves (see plan); a loft where sleeping bags can be spread out when guests exceed the capacity of the three bedrooms; and solid wood shutters that slide across all windows accessible from the ground for protection against snow and vandals (they slide on tracks like a barn door).

Architects were A. O. Bumgardner & Partners, for Mr. and Mrs. Don R. Little.

One result is a series of interior surprises

This mountain house is full of surprises. Levels open out or down on other levels—you look through rooms to views over balconies or through unusual openings in walls, like a tall ribbon door. It's not just one open area but gives that effect: the sleeping spaces can be closed off for privacy when needed.

Windows are arranged to frame only the choicest portions of a view or to draw your eye to a particular tree. There's a long, vertical window to light the stairwell, thin horizontal windows to cut out sky and snow glare, and a tall window wall with built-in window seat to bring natural light into the living area and bedroom balcony.

Also worth noting in this mountain house:

Three ways to enter the house, depending on the weather conditions at the time—through the basement, through a covered passageway, by an open deck.

Lockable storage closets for owner's personal effects when house is rented.

Golden acacia flowers are cut, shipped, and sold as "mimosa" in the florist trade

Thanks to acacia, California's spring starts in January

hen winter comes to California, spring is ver far behind. The brightest evidence the blooming of Bailey acacia (Acacia ileyana), a plant from Australia (where is called Cootamundra wattle). Indeed, is principally in January and February, hen days are the shortest and gloomiest, that Bailey acacia comes into golden flower to relieve storm-dark skies, reflect the sun, and sweeten the air with its pervasive fragrance.

So widespread and common that visitors to California often think of it as a native plant, Bailey acacia makes a generous contribution to the landscape not only while in bloom but throughout the rest of the year as well. The finely divided leaves are evergreen, and the overall texture of the plant is feathery and delicate.

Landscape architects often disagree with home owners about the place of Bailey acacia in the garden, and the thriving trees we see near houses, in lawns or parking strips, and over terraces or sitting areas show the triumph of amateurs' hope over professional advice. The plant has an impressive list of faults: Limbs are brittle; trees can blow over in storms; tops make a nearly continuous rain of blossoms, leaflets, seeds, and pods; root systems are greedy; there's much dieback of twigs and limbs; and finally, the trees are short lived.

On the other side of the balance sheet, the trees are beautiful in flower and leaf, exceptionally fast growing, and tolerant of drought and poor soil.

To utilize these virtues and minimize the faults, landscape architects advise using Bailey acacia on banks and slopes, as background or screen plantings, or as temporary fillers to be removed as longer-lived trees begin to mature. (If you use it as a filler, remember that it's physically and emotionally difficult to remove a healthy 20-foot tree.)

To grow Bailey acacia as a tree, stake the leading shoot and cut lower branches back to the trunk. To grow it as a multiple-stemmed tree shrub, nip out the leading shoot. Thin and groom plants by cutting out dead, crowding, or overlong branches right back to the trunk, and by cutting sprays of bloom back to a side branch.

Established plants live with little or no summer water, but they accept occasional deep watering if drainage is good.

To cook crab, bring to boiling about 2 gallons water and 2 tablespoons salt in a large kettle. Immerse 2 to 3 live crabs at a time in the water, pushing down. Simmer covered for about 20 minutes. Lift from water with tongs and drain; cook additional crab in the same water.

To clean crab (you can have this done when you buy them unless you want to save the golden crab butter), break free the appendages on the bottom side of the cooked crab body (warm or cold), then pull off the shell back. Scoop out and save the crab butter, if desired; to use its subtle flavor to advantage, stir it into the lemon butter mayonnaise according to taste. LEMON BUTTER MAYONNAISE

- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
- ¾ teaspoon sugar
- 2 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup each salad oil and melted butter (cooled to lukewarm)

To make mayonnaise in a blender, combine egg yolks, lemon peel and juice, vinegar, sugar, mustard, and salt and whirl at high speed for 30 seconds. With motor turned on at high speed, add the oil and butter in a slow steady stream. As mixture thickens, turn blender off frequently and blend oil in with a rubber spatula. Serve blender mayonnaise at room temperature.

To make mayonnaise in a mixer, combine all ingredients but oil and butter; beat at high speed for 30 seconds. While beating at high speed add oil and butter in a slow steady stream. This mayonnaise is thinner than one made in a blender, and you can chill it to thicken. Makes about 1¾ cups; allow ¼ cup for each serving.

Caviar? Feel free

Sturgeon eggs from Iran cost $1.25 to $4 an ounce (ouch). Whitefish or lumpfish eggs are 15 to 25 cents. Both are delicious served like this

Liverwurst and onions with caviar

DARROW M

Artichoke with red and black caviar

Glistening mounds of caviar add a special glamour to party appetizers, and these six choices have the added appeal of being simple to prepare.

Our recipes simply specify black or red caviar. You can choose the preserved dark caviars (prepared eggs or roe) of sturgeon, lumpfish, or whitefish, or fresh sturgeon caviar, or preserved red caviar of salmon. Lumpfish and whitefish caviars are dyed to simulate the natural gray to black hues of sturgeon caviar. The name of the fish is always on the label, except for sturgeon caviar, which may be labeled just caviar.

In the photographs at right you see either preserved sturgeon caviar, lumpfish caviar, or salmon caviar.

Wide ranging as it is, price is no predictor of caviar's acceptance. At Sunset we ran a taste test of the caviars, all unidentified. The cost range was about 15 cents to $4 an ounce. The results were revealing. Caviar enthusiasts, not surprisingly, enjoyed the expensive sturgeon roe. But they also had an appreciative palate for caviars made from other fish roes. Other testers who were new to caviar enjoyed each kind without decided preferences.

Each caviar does have unique qualities, and you might keep in mind that fresh sturgeon caviar is usually salted more lightly than all others; preserved sturgeon caviar is more liquid in consistency; lumpfish caviar has an interesting crunchy texture; whitefish caviar is tiny and tender; salmon caviar is the most pungent.

LIVERWURST AND ONIONS WITH CAVIAR

To make each serving, top a slice of Westphalian-style pumpernickel bread with a large, thin slice of mild onion, then cover with 2 thin slices of liver sausage (liverwurst or braunschweiger). Place in the center of the liver sausage 2 or 3 teaspoons of commercial sour cream, then a portion of black caviar and minced mild onion; 3 tablespoons black caviar blended with 2 tablespoons minced onion makes enough topping for 6 to 8 servings. Sprinkle sandwiches lightly with dill weed. Eat with a knife and fork (if you prefer smaller portions, cut each sandwich in half).

ARTICHOKE WITH RED AND BLACK CAVIAR

Drain small marinated artichoke bottoms (about 1¼-inch diameter) and place individually, cap side up, in paper bonbon cups. Spoon about ½ teaspoon red or black caviar into each artichoke bottom. Allow 2 or 3 for each serving.

AVOCADO DIP WITH RED AND BLACK CAVIAR

Split 1 large, ripe avocado, discard pit, and carefully scoop out flesh, preserving shell. Mash pulp with ¼ cup commercial sour cream, 2 tablespoons lime juice, and ⅛ teaspoon salt. Spoon into half shells.

With back of spoon, make a cavity in center of each mound of avocado; fill hollow of one with about 2 tablespoons black caviar; fill other hollow with about 2 tablespoons red caviar. Place avocado halves in a shallow basket and surround with tortilla chips or corn chips. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

STEAK WITH CAVIAR

Split a 15-ounce loaf of French bread vertically and cut 2 slices, about ½ inch thick, from the center. Broil surfaces of slices to toast; cool, and spread with sweet (unsalted) butter.

Thinly slice about a 1-pound piece of fat-trimmed, cold, rare beef steak (a tender cut such as fillet, rib section, or sirloin). Evenly divide slices and arrange half the meat on each buttered toast slice; salt meat very lightly.

Spoon a band of black caviar down center of beef, allowing 1 to 2 tablespoons for each toast slice. Garnish with a few slivers of green onion tops and serve with green onions. Cut in sections and eat with a knife and fork. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

BEEF TARTAR WITH CAVIAR

Shape ½ pound raw ground beef round into an oval patty about ½ to ¾ inch thick. Put in the center of a serving plate. Score surface in a diamond pattern by pressing with edge of a knife, then top with 3 or 4 diagonally placed bands of black caviar; you will need 2 to 4 tablespoons. Surround beef with finely chopped white onion (½ to 1 cup) and garnish with parsley. Spread on buffet-style rye bread. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

SHRIMP ON TOAST WITH CAVIAR

To make each appetizer place 1 cooked, shelled, deveined, medium-size shrimp (30 to 40 per lb.) on a slice of white Melba toast. Fill inside curve of shrimp with ½ teaspoon commercial sour cream; top with ½ teaspoon black caviar. Serve with lemon wedges to squeeze over appetizers.

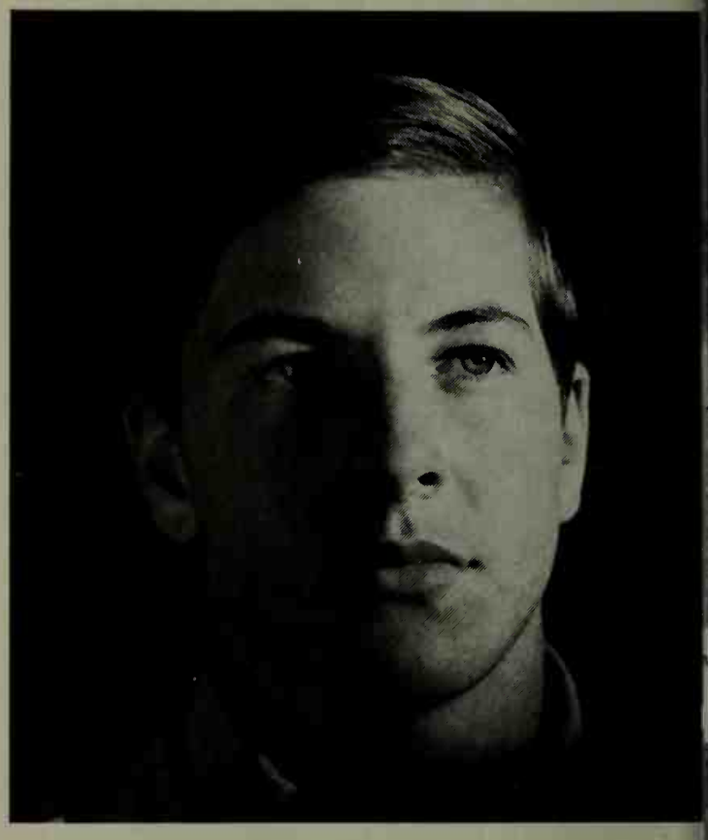
Success is something you can't leave a son



Success is coming to depend more and more on whether he gets a good college education. Because as each day passes, our world gets more complex and specialized.

But his ability to learn will carry him only part way unless the nation's colleges can answer some serious questions: How to cope with rapidly increasing student enrollments? How to keep the quality of education constantly improving with more modern laboratories, better libraries, new classrooms? How to attract able new faculty members?

Your support will help colleges answer these questions, help them make your son ready for his world.

Adding on a floor-level deck is a relatively inexpensive way to expand your house and gain some outdoor living space. It is a highly effective remodeling device for up-dating older houses that were not originally oriented to the garden (see the two photographs at the bottom of the page). Inglenook Pinot Noir 1967: watch for it in 1971.

A few years from now, this is going to be an exceptionally good estate-bottled wine. Maybe.

First, it will have to survive one of the strictest upbringings in American wine-making. In its infancy, the wine will be cared for hourly, then tucked away in an oaken ageing cask. We'll taste it. Rack it. Then taste it again.

We may move it to another cask, just for the qualities that cask imparts.

At any time, the entire vintage may be judged unsatisfactory and abandoned.

How long the wine must spend ageing depends on the wine itself. Because we print the year of vintage on each Inglenook bottle, every wine must reach full maturity. Inglenook Pinot Noir 1967 will be bottled when it's ready, not when we are.

Then, after it's in the bottle, it will be tasted again.

We can't make a great amount of wine this way. Just one good bottle after another. As a result, Inglenook wines are not always as readily available as we (and our customers) might like. While you're waiting for our Pinot Noir, may we suggest Inglenook White Pinot. It's a splendid white wine that matures more quickly than our Pinot Noir, but not less satisfactorily.

Eight-day round-trip cruises start at only $225.

That includes your berth and meals aboard ship. And plenty of fuss along the way.

In case you haven't heard, fuss is our word for the red carpet treatment. Which is the only kind of treatment you get with Westours.

Not that we put on a lot of la-di-da airs. We're far too informal for that.

But we do fuss over every detail of your trip, to make sure you're well taken care of every step of the way.

Aboard ship, for example, we serve excellent food. Five times a day.

And if you can take your eyes off the scenery, you can also see movies, have cocktails or play deck sports and games.

When the ship stops at places like Ketchikan and Juneau, you'll have time enough to take in all the sights, from Mendenhall Glacier to the Red Dog Saloon.

The beginning of a new year may inspire you to try some new reci for your family. The six featured here this month all use fami ingredients but combine them in some interesting new ways.

For example, you might start a winter supper with a hot lett soup; the iceberg lettuce retains fresh flavor and crispness, and can make it almost as quickly as you can mix a green salad.

For another day, you could make a salad of orange slices and can beets, a tangy citrus dressing unites their flavors deliciously.

Two main dishes featured here take their inspiration from differ

You add the crisp shredded lettuce to this soup just before you serve it

CREAMY LETTUCE SOUP

- 2 tablespoons flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 2 beef bouillon cubes or 2 teaspoons beef stock base
- 2 cups boiling water
- 2 cups half-and-half (light cream)
- About ¼ medium-sized head crisp iceberg lettuce
- Freshly grated nutmeg or minced parsley

How to wish your family Happy St. Basil's Day

To salute the new year, whole blanched almonds form "68" on sweet Greek yeast bread

Children in Greece have special reason to look forward to January 1: As well as New Year's Day, it's St. Basil's Day—and St. Basil brings them presents.

In most Greek homes, the traditional vasilopeta (vah-see-lau-pee-ta), or St. Basil's bread, is made to be cut in his honor on New Year's Eve. The head of the household cuts the first slice for St. Basil, then the remaining slices for present and absent family members in order of seniority. There's a silver coin baked in the bread to bring its recipient good luck throughout the coming year.

Vasilopeta can vary from one house to the next. In some it may be a rich bread; in others a butter cake. But it is usually flavored with orange and topped with almonds and sesame seeds.

The recipe given here is traditional in the home of one of our readers. Since this recipe makes two loaves, she decorates one for New Year's Eve and freezes the second loaf, undecorated, for later breakfasts. On New Year's Eve she serves wa slices with butter and coffee; the rest sliced and toasted for breakfast.

VASILOPETA (ST. BASIL'S BREAD)

- 2 packages yeast, active dry or compressed
- ½ cup warm water (lukewarm for compressed yeast)

Skiers rendezvous for fireside supper: frankfurters and pound cake toasted over log fire, savory Swiss beer fondue, fresl

Cooking at the fireplace

At home or in ski country fireplace cooking is fun, and you can let guests do some cooking on their own open fire just naturally sets the mood a convivial gathering. And since food ked over coals always seems to please sts, you may want to plan an informal ner around your fireplace.

eat helps when you bypass the kitchen such simple, inexpensive utensils as a rtable grate, popcorn popper, metal ks, and hinged wire broiler. This is also ime when cooperative cooking is most propriate and adds to the festivity.

ese two menus adapt equally well to a use or cabin fireplace, and to a group of nished skiers as well as to an at-home rty gathering. The first supper includes Swiss-style cheese fondue and several hes toasted over a log fire. The second tures steak barbecued over charcoal.

Cheese fondue supper

When bubbles rt to rise to the surface, add cheese xture, a spoonful at a time, and stir wly in a figure-8 pattern with a wooden oon until all the cheese is blended to a ooth sauce. If the cheese and liquid should refuse to blend together, increase heat. If that fails, mix 1 tablespoon each cornstarch and cold water and stir into the hot mixture; keep stirring until it blends together.

Cut 1 small loaf French bread into 1-inch cubes with some crust on each; pile into a basket. Skewer French bread or barbecued frankfurters (directions follow) with a fork and dip into the cheese mixture. Serves about 4.

Barbecued Miniature Frankfurters. Place 1 pound small cocktail frankfurters in a wire broiler and heat over the coals just until they are hot through and start to toast. Place in a hot serving dish.

Toasted Pound Cake. Slice a fresh or frozen pound cake into ¾-inch-thick slices, place in a wire basket, and toast over coals.

Intimate steak supper

An inexpensive, collapsible camp grill, available in hardware stores, makes a fine cooking surface for barbecuing steak and supporting other foods while cooking or heating. (See photo below.)

Barbecued Sirloin Parsley Herb Butter
Grilled French Fries
Butter Lettuce Salad
French Pan Rolls
Apples in a Basket
Rum Babas (optional)
Chocolate Marshmallow Sandwiches (for children)

Lay a fire with charcoal briquets, instead of wood, for flame-free cooking that is easy to control. If your grate has an open shape that will not hold charcoal, you can make an impromptu grate simply with a piece of fine-mesh hardware cloth. Cut the piece about 16 by 24 inches in size and bend up each side about 1½ inches to keep the charcoal from rolling out; place on top of grate or andirons.

Cook the steak and French fries simultaneously over the coals. Heat the rolls in a heavy foil pan, if you wish. Serve 1 can (12 oz.) rum babas, heated in their own syrup in a foil pan on the grill; if you wish, flame them with 2 tablespoons rum.

Barbecued Sirloin. Place a 1-inch-thick top sirloin steak (about 2 pounds) over coals on a grill and barbecue on both sides, allowing about 4 to 5 minutes on a side for rare meat. Cut in servings and serve with parsley herb butter. Serves 4.

Parsley Herb Butter. Finely chop together ½ cup chopped parsley, 2 cloves garlic, and the white part only of 3 green onions. Heat ½ cup butter and stir in 2 teaspoons lemon juice and 1 teaspoon each anchovy paste and Dijon-style mustard. Remove from heat and stir in the minced greens. Makes 1 cup sauce.

Grilled French Fries. Place 2 packages (8 oz. each) frozen French fried potatoes in a popcorn popper or other wire basket and place on a grill over the coals, shaking occasionally, for 10 to 15 minutes, or until browned and cooked through. Serves 4.

Chocolate Marshmallow Sandwiches. Toast marshmallows over coals. For each one, place 2 thin squares chocolate bar candy on a chocolate wafer cooky, top with a hot toasted marshmallow, place a second wafer cooky on top, and squeeze together.

Goulash soup makes a filling party or family dish; serve it with rye bread and a salad

JANUARY MENUS

Welcome the new year with simplicity... a soup supper party, a bake-ahead breakfast, an end-of-the-turkey dinner

After the sometimes staggering array of holiday foods in December, simplicity at mealtime may be welcome. That's why each of our January menus is planned around just one substantial main dish, to which you can add whatever accompaniments you wish.

The supper, which could be an informal party, is based on a goulash soup. The breakfast features individual loaves of a quick, whole-grain bread. The family dinner is planned around a colorful risotto that takes care of what remains of the Christmas turkey.

Soup supper party

Our goulash soup is the dish Hungarians call gulyás (pronounced goo-yahsh). Its principal seasoning is sweet Hungarian paprika, available in delicatessens and the food sections of many import discou stores in large cities in the West (y could use regular paprika instead). Se the tart butter lettuce salad as a fi course or, in the more characteristica eastern European fashion, side by s with the hot soup.

Butter Lettuce Salad Chive Dressi
Rye Bread
Warm Apple Strudel or Apple Turnove

Heat either one during main part of the meal, then serve dessert warm.

Goulash Soup

- 2 tablespoons each salad oil and butter or margarine
- 2 large onions, chopped
- 1 small clove garlic, minced or mashed
- 1 tablespoon sweet Hungarian paprika, or regular paprika

- 1 large green pepper, seeded and cut in strips
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon caraway seed
- 2 tomatoes, peeled, seeded, and coarsely chopped
- 1 small, dried, hot chile pepper, crushed (optional)
- 2 medium-sized potatoes, cut in eighths

Brown meat, about one quarter at a t in heated oil in a large deep pan (at 4-quart size); remove and reserve me it browns. When all is browned, pou any pan drippings and discard them; butter in the same pan over medium Add onions and garlic, and cook onions are soft and golden (do not bro blend in paprika. Stir in browned and its juices, water, green pepper, pepper, caraway seed, chopped toma and chile (if used).

Bring soup to a boil, reduce heat, c and simmer for about 2 hours, or meat is almost tender. If possible at point, cool the soup slightly, cover, refrigerate for several hours or overn skim off fat and discard it, then bring to a simmer again. Add potatoes and for 20 to 30 minutes more, until both toes and meat are tender. Serve steaming hot. Makes 6 servings.—B Palo Alto, Calif.

hat Kind of Milk should you Drink on your Diet?

n you are on a reducing diet there's temptation to go overboard and omit foods entirely. But don't rob your by cutting out any of the essential nts. Build the foundation of your meals four Food Groups:

Milk Group; 2. Meat Group; 3. Vegs and Fruits; 4. Breads and Cereals.

h of these groups makes its own special bution to your well-being and an extra of one cannot make up for a shortage ther. For example, an additional glass nge juice, though rich in vitamin C, cannot replace milk. Neither can milk, with its unique supply of calcium, protein and riboflavin, take the place of fruit. But now there are several different KINDS of milk.

Whole Milk: The most widely used milk. Usually homogenized so that the cream is evenly distributed. (Only 3.5% fat content.)

Low-Fat Milk: Milk in which the fat content has been lowered by about 40% and the other nutrients increased. Many dieters prefer its taste to non-fat milk. (Only 2.0% fat content.)

Non-Fat (or Skim) Milk: Milk without butterfat—for weight watchers since it contains fewer calories than whole milk.

Buttermilk: Non-fat milk to which a lactic acid-producing culture has been added to give a characteristic tangy flavor.

With this choice you can continue to get the key nutrients of milk while staying on your diet.

The "inside" cookout

(And an inside story that automatically makes you a member of the elegance club.)

Ten years ago, there weren't enough Rock Cornish Hens in the entire world to satisfy the exquisite tastes of the elegant few. And it was the elegant few who quickly discovered that of all poultry and game birds, the Rock Cornish Hen was the most remarkable:

—virtually all white meat, with a most extraordinary subtlety of flavor and young moistness.

—less of the heaviness, fattiness, and coarser texture of all other birds (and lower in calories than any other meat).

—quick and easy to prepare—barbecued, grilled, roasted—adaptable to the simplest recipes...or the most complicated cuisines.

—the perfect size—one bird per person. No carving; no keeping track of who gets what.

Today, Tyson's Pride supplies Rock Cornish Hens to the elegant many. By the shopping-cart full. Budget-priced and barbecue-ready. Just skewer a brace on your grill's rotisserie, brush with your favorite marinade, and serve! (Inside or out.)

Each adult gets his own bird, and half a hen for each child is the most delicious way yet to keep peace on the patio.

"He knows a good thing when he cooks it and has the skill to sidestep prejudice"

Liver, like other interior portions of the steer, can be a controversial dish. In this cattle-rich and steak-conscious country, butchers once gave liver away, considering that no one would actually pay money for it. That era is long gone, but some of the feeling lingers, and a tempting dish of sautéed calves liver may not always bring on excited cries around the dinner table.

Chef G. W. Phillips, like others of his enlightened fraternity, knows a good thing when he cooks it and has the skill to sidestep the modicum of prejudice that remains. He says:

"Liver is scorned by most folks because their usual exposure is to a dish resembling a discarded shoe sole. At our house, even the 2½-year-old loves liver prepared my way." And one of our testers, a man with a liver prejudice, says: "Yes, if you must serve liver, let it be like this."

GINGER LIVER A LA PHILLIPS

- 2 large onions, thinly sliced
- 3 tablespoons butter or salad oil
- 4 slices calves liver (about 1 lb.)
- 4 tablespoons soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons Sherry
- 1 teaspoon freshly grated ginger

In a large frying pan, sauté onions in 2 tablespoons of the butter for 10 to 15 minutes or until golden and limp; lift out onto serving platter and keep warm. Meanwhile trim liver of exterior membrane and cut into 2 by 2-inch squares. Add remaining tablespoon of butter to frying pan, and over high heat quickly brown liver squares on one side (about 1 minute). Turn liver; add soy, Sherry, and ginger. Cook about 2 or 3 additional minutes, basting with the liquid. Arrange liver on platter with onions and pour over any remaining pan juices. Serve with sourdough bread and a green salad. Makes about 4 servings.

h spring nurserymen get many re- sts for information about a disease that cts peach leaves, causing them to swell, ker, curl, twist, and change color. The ase is, of course, peach leaf curl, and requests for information always come late; by the time the symptoms occur, e's nothing you can do about it until nths later. Thorough and proper con- by spraying during the dormant sea- is the only control.

formed leaves, before withering and pping, produce a crop of spores that w about and finally come to rest, many them on branches or twigs of peach, vering peach, or nectarine. Here they remain until late winter or early spring of the following year, at which time they invade expanding buds. In ordinary infestations, leaves develop symptoms, shed spores, wither, and fall. Usually a second set of healthy leaves follows, but the tree is weakened. Several successive years of leaf loss can kill a tree.

To break the cycle of infection, spray the dormant tree to destroy infective spores. Basic spray materials are copper and lime sulfur.

Copper sprays (Bordeaux mixture, copper, and oil preparations) are persistent on tree bark; one thorough spraying any time after leaf fall and before opening of the buds should suffice.

Lime sulfur is less persistent; an early winter spraying may fail because the material has washed off in winter rains, permitting surviving spores to spread back to the buds. If you use lime sulfur, spray just before buds open.

Control sounds easy; it is, if weather and spray technique are right. But a few wet weekends at a critical time of year may keep you from getting your dormant spraying done. Clogged spray equipment or improperly mixed and agitated spray may keep control chemicals in the tank instead of putting them on the plant.

The most likely mischance is that hurried, impatient spraying may leave some twigs and buds unprotected by spray material. Be sure to cover all sides of all branches and twigs with spray, and carry spray out to the very tips of the twigs. Any area you skip will have live spores to infect new buds; if heavy rains follow a spraying, the spray material may wash off the plant, and spores may spread back to sprayed areas.

Spray materials are so cheap and spraying is so easy that any gardener with only a few trees might well be cautious and spray twice—once after leaves have fallen, and again just before buds open. If rains are unusually heavy be sure to spray twice.

Dwarf forsythia available

Forsythia has always been a popular shrub with inland gardeners. Near the coast it fails to thrive because of insufficient winter chill. It blooms well in coastal valleys, but gardeners there often ignore it in favor of smaller, more compact, evergreen shrubs. Most forsythias look really good only when permitted to take a natural form—which means a fountain, up to 10 feet tall and nearly as wide.

This fountain is splendid in golden bloom and pleasant enough in summer leaf, but just too big and too lifeless for most gardens after its leaves have fallen. A dwarf forsythia (F. viridissima 'Bronxensis'), much smaller and far more adaptable to small gardens, is in good supply this year.

First observed at the New York Botanical Garden in 1939 and named in 1947, this forsythia has been slow getting into the nursery trade because it is harder to propagate than other forsythias.

DON NORMARK

Dwarf forsythia lifts yellow spires beside boulder. Won't grow over 1½ feet high

It grows very slowly to 12 to 16 inches tall and 2 feet wide. It will not shade out or crowd out choice plants growing near it, and is excellent to use in flower borders or rock gardens. Its bright yellow, very early flowers are near enough to the ground to contrast well with blues and whites of grape hyacinths, pansies, violas. Plants in gallon cans sell for about $1.50.

Elegant beeches

"Elegant" is a much overused adjective, but there are times when its use is justified. It is hard to describe European beeches (Fagus sylvatica and its varieties) without using "elegant" because they fit so well most dictionary definitions of the word. They are "tastefully ornate," "marked by grace and refinement," and "excellent, first-rate."

Now is a good time to shop for and plant beeches; fresh plants, both balled and burlapped and container-grown, have come in from growers in the Northwest. Balled and burlapped plants are neither common nor inexpensive, but they are shapely and tall—a consideration of importance since beeches are slow growing, especially when young. Gallon-sized plants are less expensive; they are a good choice for patient gardeners or for growing in containers.

The plant in the picture, a copper beech, is 20 years old and has reached 25 feet in height. It will reach 40 feet or more in the next 20 years and will become a broader, more rounded plant. A good lawn tree now, it will eventually cast too dense a shade to permit good lawn growth.

Beeches are beautiful in all seasons. In winter the features are smooth gray bark, graceful branching structure, lacy twig pattern, and pointed winter buds. In spring (season of peak performance) unfolding leaves have a handsome, silky texture and delicate colors which range (depending on variety) from pale gold to coppery red. Summer leaves are deep green, purple, or variegated. Autumn leaves (which hang on just a little too long) are orange-brown to red-brown.

The many garden varieties of F. sylvatica are better known than the species. Best known are the following:

'Asplenifolia.' Green leaves are narrow, deeply cut and lobed. 'Heterophylla' and 'Laciniata' are similar.

'Atropunicea' (often sold as variety 'Purpurea'). This, the copper or purple beech, is the most widely grown of the lot. Summer leaves are deep reddish or purple, fading somewhat to greenish purple in late summer. Best grafted forms ('Riversii' and 'Spaethiana') have nearly black-purple foliage in summer. Seedlings usually show considerable green mixed with purple.

'Pendula.' Weeping beech has green leaves, strongly drooping branches. You'll have to stake the trunk to make the tree head up fairly high.

'Purpureo-pendula.' Weeping copper or purple beech is slow growing, splendid for containers.

'Rohanii.' Leaves of this beech are purple and deeply lobed.

'Tricolor.' Tricolor beech has green leaves

JANUARY CHECK LIST: Here are the important jobs

☐ Food garden. Artichoke, cane berry, and strawberry plants can be set out now, and also roots of asparagus and rhubarb. Plant in rich, well drained soil. Rhubarb will grow in full sun or in light shade. Others need full sun.

☐ Frost protection. All areas of northern California can expect frost this month. Read weather forecasts or listen to weather reports to find out whether frost is predicted. If it is, bring tender container plants into shelter of eaves or garage. Choice tender plants growing in the open ground can be protected by a canopy of burlap placed above, not on, the plants.

It's easier to cover plants if stakes or other supporting structures are already in place. It takes only a few minutes to throw a covering over a light wooden frame; to erect the frame on a cold night takes time—and character.

☐ Pest control. Do your dormant spraying this month if you haven't already done so. The oil, copper, and lime-sulfur sprays used in winter are relatively safe and nontoxic, but be sure to read the labels before using them. You can't use oil at high winter strength if temperatures are high, and there are certain plants that are sensitive to certain spray materials.

Set out bait frequently for snails and slugs. Rake up garden refuse to destroy their hiding and breeding places. Tilt up pots and containers occasionally and check drainage holes; destroy snails, slugs, or eggs that you find there.

☐ Planting for flowers. Bare-root roses, deciduous flowering shrubs, and flowering fruit trees can be planted as soon as they are available in nurseries. If weather is bad or soil too wet to work, buy anyway and heel in plants in damp sawdust, peat moss, ground bark, or commercial planting mix. Then, when the sun comes out and the ground dries, you won't have to spend a fine planting day just looking for planting material.

☐ Planting for landscape effect. Plant bare-root deciduous fruit and shade trees as soon as you can. If weather is unsettled, nervous nurserymen may hedge against losses that would be incurred by storing this material too long, and plant it up in containers. Prices will be higher then, and planting will have to be delayed until trees and shrubs are well rooted in the containers.

Balled and burlapped trees and shrubs are still available. For information on how to plant and care for them, see page 3 the Sunset Western Garden Book (edition).

☐ Pruning. Finish pruning decidu fruit trees, shade trees, and vi Use tree sealing compound to seal all ½ inch or more in diameter. Prune r this month; loosen and retie any la that are constricting plant tissue; n sure that stakes for tree roses are so ties firm but not tight.

Don't rush to prune out frost-dama foliage and branches. This material, w is usually near the top of the plant, furnish protection to lower portion plant in subsequent frosts. And then true extent of frost damage is not alw apparent. If you wait until spring may find new growth sprouting from w you thought frozen.

☐ Weed control. Spray young, rece sprouted weeds with weed oil f a pressure tank sprayer. An hour or s spraying will save many hours of pul or hoeing later on. Weeds die within ho dry and brown within days. If you the weeds while they are small—a n green fuzz—they will dry and blend v the color of the soil, becoming practic invisible.

Sheer desperation made me try Cold Power" writes Mrs. Paul Schwartz, Miami, Florida

"Doubt if this is the sort of endorsement you desire, but feel it's my duty to write you anyway.

Sheer desperation

"It wasn't the New Jersey housewives on TV that induced me to give Cold Power a try, it was sheer desperation. My whites had been getting dingier, both in hand and machine washing.

"Absolutely astounded

"I was absolutely astounded right from the start! Everything's immaculately clean. And the whites are just beautiful.

"Cannot begin to tell you what a pleasant surprise and shock this was to me. Such a joy!

"So felt I should at least scribble you this brief word of thanks."

Mrs. Paul Schwartz

Kerala. India's big surprise.

It is a lamentable fact that those who travel through our country never travel far enough. A few days in Delhi. A side trip to Agra. A moment or two in Bombay. And then, good-bye, India.

What a pity. To journey so far and see so little. No saffron fields blooming in Srinagar. No dancers whirling outside the temple in Madurai. No boats floating down the Ganges in the moonlight.

And no Kerala.

To miss Kerala on a visit to India is to, perhaps, miss the best part of all. This tiny state, at the southernmost tip of our country, is filled with surprises.

In addition to some fine Hindu temples, Kerala has Portuguese churches, several mosques, a Jewish synagogue, Dutch architecture, and Chinese fishing nets.

Kerala has beautiful beaches. Thickly-wooded forests (sprouting, at last count, 600 varieties of trees). Lush inland waterways, and one of the most famous wildlife sanctuaries in the world.

Kerala has Kathakali, the pantomime dance-drama which depicts stories from the great Hindu epics. It takes years of training to master the intricate hand gestures (64 in all) and facial expressions (one for every mood) required in the great Kathakali art.

Kerala also offers some lovely ways of getting about. You can take a fast-moving train to all the major cities. Or a charming, slow-moving (what's your rush) motor launch past dozens of sleepy, backwater villages. You can rent a car, too, and drive through miles of magnificent rubber and tea plantations.

There are a number of first-class hotels for you to stay at in this lovely Indian oasis. All serving fine Indian and Western cuisine. All employing exceptionally gifted bartenders. Your travel agent or the Government of India Tourist Office can give you more information. There is an office in: New York, 19 E. 49th Street; Chicago, 201 North Michigan Avenue; San Francisco, 685 Market Street. Also in Canada.

The slow-release fertilizers

v planting-hole fertilizers have revised of the oldest, most oft-quoted rules bare-root planting. The old rule: Don't a chemical fertilizer into the soil when plant; it will burn the roots. The re- on: If the fertilizer releases nutrients vly, you can toss it right into the hole hout damaging the roots.

e two most widely sold slow-release ilizers look quite unalike—one's a tab- the other comes in granular form. You use either one when planting almost kind of plant (container-grown, balled l burlapped, or bare-root).

ısed at planting time, the slow-release es will be providing nutrients when a nt first starts to need them, and they'll tinue to do so for longer than most er chemical fertilizers. How long they p it up depends on a variety of factors. periments and observation indicate t there's an adequate nutrient supply several months to a year.

tablets. You just drop one or more of tightly compressed, thumb-sized tab- into the planting hole. Don't worry nt what looks like an uneven distribu- of food. A few roots growing into the a near a tablet can pick up all the nu- nts a plant needs.

e tablets contain a complete fertilizer h an NPK ratio of 20-10-5 (the num- s represent percentages of available rogen, phosphoric acid, and potash). e nitrogen is derived from relatively oluble urea-formaldehyde. The tablets supply some minor elements, the most portant of which is iron.

takes bacterial activity for the tablets break down and release nutrients to nts. In cold weather, when bacterial ivity is low, the tablets are slow to ak down; but that's also when a plant's d requirements are low.

e granules. You're supposed to blend white, pea-sized granules with the ckfill soil or planting mix. Each granule ntains two chemical compounds: magne- un ammonium phosphate and magne- m potassium phosphate. The NPK io is 7-40-6. There's no iron, so you'll ve to supply it for plants that need it.

ants can make use of the chemical com- nds gradually, since the compounds solve only a little at a time. No more an 2 per cent can be in solution at once. hen the percentage drops below that— en plants use nutrients or when water shes them out—more of the fertilizer ssolves.

The time to kill crabgrass is now or soon . . . otherwise millions of seeds will become seedlings

If you live in western Washington, western Oregon, along the California coast, or in the cooler portions of the San Francisco Bay Area, crabgrass may be just a subject for joking about.

If you live where summers really get hot, it's no joke at all.

Crabgrass usually sprouts when soil begins to warm up in the spring; but in warm years or in sheltered, sunny areas it ean appear as early as January. Little seedlings soon become ugly elumps that crowd out better, finer-textured grasses or dichondra. At the first frost, clumps turn reddish brown and soon die, leaving behind great gaps in the lawn—and millions of seeds waiting for next spring.

If you had crabgrass last year, you're likely to have it again this year—unless you strike down this year's generation with pre-emergence weed killers. First, make sure that you're dealing with erabgrass; the chemicals listed on this page will not kill perennials such as Bermuda grass. Next, apply early enough to beat the germination date of crabgrass. Pre-emergence control chemieals work by killing the sprouting seed or the very young seedlings; they have little effect on established crabgrass plants.

FINDING THE CHEMICALS

Most pre-emergence weed killers have names so long and difficult that only a highly trained chemist could be expeeted to remember them. Hence, maufaeturers coin briefer names, which are eustomarily registered as trademarks. Other organizations coin common names (not trademark names) for many of these same ehemicals. As a result, a given chemical may have three names; we list the full ehemical name below only when we think you may need to know it in order to find the produet.

Packaging further eomplieates the situation. Although some of the ehemieals listed below are sold as straight, unmixed, pre-emergence lawn weed controls, you'll more often find them mixed with fertilizers or insectieides (or both) and sold by fertilizer companies as complete lawn eare packages.

There are good reasons for these mixtures. In the first place, they lighten the gardener's work load by redueing the number of jobs. Seeond, the diluting aetion of the bulky fertilizer minimizes the danger of harming the lawn with powerful, eoneentrated herbicides. Nevertheless, the name situation that has grown up is confusing in the extreme.

Reading the list below will help you seleet the chemical control you need. You'll still have to read paekage labels (ineluding all the fine print) to find the product that contains the chemical you've seleeted. At this stage a well trained nurseryman can be a great help.

USING THE CHEMICALS

Follow package directions to the letter. If your lawn is dichondra or contains a substantial amount of dichondra, be sure that the chemical eontrol you plan to use is safe for dichondra. Be sure that your lawn is sufficiently well established to stand up under the treatment, and be sure that the grasses you have will tolerate the chemical (bent grasses and fine-leafed fescues are most sensitive).

Don't apply more often or more heavily than directions state. Apply evenly; you obviously won't get any weed control in areas skipped or skimped, and yo damage plants in areas where overl coverage doubles the dosage. U sprayer or spreader recommended label on the produet, and make su all equipment is elean and in good ing order.

KEEPING CRABGRASS OUT

Timely application of a pre-eme killer should cut down dramatiea number of crabgrass plants that this summer. The few that man sprout and grow should be spraye one of the post-emergence eontrol cals before they have a chanee t seeds. Strong light and wet soil favo grass growth. Permit soil surfaee come dry between deep watering shade out potential seedlings by k bluegrass or bluegrass-feseue lawns tall side, say 1½ to 2 inehes tall.

Keep grass in good health by ad feeding and watering. Keep ou patches by reseeding in fall.

Here's help in reading the labels

The chemical	What it does	Cautions, comments
Azac	Controls crabgrass in established grass or dichondra lawns	Do not use on bent grass May injure fine-leafed fes
Balan, benefin	Controls crabgrass, other annual grasses in grass lawns	Apply in early fall to contr annual bluegrass; winter spring for crabgrass
Bandane (May be shown on label only under chemical name of polychlorobicyclo-pentadiene isomers.)	Controls crabgrass in grass or dichondra lawns. Kills ants, grubs, soil insects	Can be used on very youn lawns. For spring lawn pa ing, sow grass seed imme ately after applying chem
Betasan, bensulide (May be shown on label only under chemical name of N-[beta-o,o-diisopropyl-dithiophosphorylethyl]-benzene sulfonamide.)	Controls crabgrass, annual bluegrass in grass or dichondra lawns	Read labels carefully. Do use on dichondra if mixed with broad-leafed weed kil —2,4-D, dicamba, etc.
Dacthal	Controls crabgrass, many other grassy and broad-leafed weeds in grass lawns, ground cover plantings, around established shrubs	Do not use if your lawn de pends on dichondra for m of its color. Safe on choic bent grass lawns
Diphenamid	Controls many grassy and broad-leafed weeds in dichon-dra lawns, ice plant, straw-berry ground cover	Do not use on grass lawns Can be applied at dichon seeding time without inhibiting germination
Monuron	Controls crabgrass and annual bluegrass, kills oxalis; use on dichondra lawns only	Overdosing, careless app tion, puddling may sterili soil for long periods
Neburon	Controls crabgrass and spurge, kills oxalis; use on dichondra lawns only	Like monuron, a sterilant used too heavily
Pre-san (May be sold only under chemical name as S[o,o-diisopropyl] phosphorodithioate of N-[2-mercaptoethyl] benzene sulfonamide)	Controls crabgrass or annual bluegrass in grass or dichondra lawns	Good bet if your lawn is a mixture of grass and dichondra (and you want keep it that way)

Sorry, we flunked the balloon test

Even with balloons, our new portable Color TV will never make the featherweight class. You can't win them all.

But it wins every other comparison test with (ahem) flying colors.

It's the first color portable built inside and out to take the jolts and jars of the portable people. And that means putting in the extras instead of taking off a few ounces.

So we bonded high tensile strength steel bands to the new Toshiba Color TV picture tube for extra ruggedness. Rare earth phosphors added new color brilliance to the 117 sq. in. rectangular picture.

We replaced tubes with 21 Toshiba solid state devices for new color TV reliability. (We modestly claim to be the world's largest manufacturer of transistors and diodes and we put our best ones in our color set.)

The toughest portable color TV you can buy? Yes. The lightest? No. But with a new big screen picture so real it can capture the gleam in baby blue eyes . . . you can't have everything.

See Toshiba . . . famed in 130 lands for quality . . . and you'll know there is something new and better in Color TV. It's specially made for the portable people. Are you one of them?

THE LAWN PEOPLE

Runcophobia, the fear of weeds, used to be incurable. Since SUPER BONUS you rarely hear of it.

How to plant a rose . . . bare-root

From now through March (or April, in some places), you get your chance to plant bare-root roses. These are dormant, leafless plants, with no soil around the roots. They were raised in fields, then dug and cleaned this winter for sale before spring.

When "before spring" is depends, of course, on where you live. In California and the low desert, try to complete bare-root planting before March 1. In the high desert, you get an extra month. In Oregon and Washington west of the Cascades, plant in January, February, or March, any time the ground is dry enough to be dug. East of the Sierra-Cascades, March and April are the bare-root months.

You find bare-root rose plants at nurseries and all kinds of stores, either with their roots buried in loose, damp packing material or in packages with their roots and stems treated to prevent the tissues from drying out and dying. They're cheaper this way than the leafy, flowering or bud-carrying plants you can buy in containers later in the year. And bare-root planting produces rose bushes at least as strong and vigorous as the ones container planting produces—sometimes even stronger.

The only advantage of planting from containers is that when you shop among container plants you can see real roses on them. Shopping for bare-root plants at this time of year, you'll have to rely on color pictures of the flowers on tags and in brochures and catalogs.

How to plant a bare-root rose is shown in the photographs on these pages. Essentially, you simply replace in your own soil a dormant plant that was removed from the grower's soil a few weeks ago.

It's simple, but there are endless variations on how to do it. Each thoughtful rosarian has his own recipe for preparing soil, adding or not adding a special fertilizer, and for filling soil around the roots.

Rosarians generally agree that you should mix some sort of organic material into the planting hole—peat moss, leaf mold, nitrogen-fortified sawdust, ground bark, or whatever is locally available. To do a good job, you should mix in enough organic material to make up ⅓ to ½ of the total.

You don't need to put any fertilizer into the planting hole. In fact, most rosarians specifically recommend no fertilizer. The most they recommend is usually a handful of bonemeal mixed in with the soil or a shovelful of manure at the bottom of the hole, covered with a layer of soil. Their thinking, however, may not take into ac-

Indoor garden . . . pots within pot

One of the main drawbacks of having an indoor garden in a confined area is that either the plants love the conditions and soon outgrow the space, or they don't and die out after a few months.

Landscape architect Richard C. Tongg resolved this dilemma effectively in the indoor gardens he designed for the atrium and the master bedroom - bath of the Clifford C. Wong house in Honolulu. (The architects were Sam Chang & Associates.)

With the scheme shown here, the plants can be changed whenever their appearance is poor, or when the Wongs want to create some special color display—by bringing in such plants as azaleas, orchids, poinsettias, or caladiums.

Potted plants can be simply brought in and set into larger pots sunk rim deep into the indoor garden areas. For these permanently sunken containers, the Wongs use the whitish gray, smooth-sided pots so commonly found in Hawaii; any pot will do as long as the one the plant is growing in will slip easily inside and still leave some room for your fingers.

The potted plants are watered in place, and the excess water drains out into the soil below through the holes in both pots. This small amount of moisture, readily absorbed by the surrounding soil, soon dries out and has not presented a drainage problem.

Flowers of harlequin glorybower photographed mid-September in Salem, Oregon

Grow it for its fragrance

The wonderful tropical fragrance of harlequin glorybower (Clerodendrum trichotomum) makes it a plant worth growing. And you'll appreciate this flower fragrance during the warm summer days of August into September, and even later where frosts don't come early.

Although the flowers are not as showy as on other clerodendrums, the open clusters are abundant. White blooms open from wine red buds; they're tubular (about an inch long), flaring to five narrow lobes.

When the flowers fade, small, ornamental, metallic blue fruits appear in strong contrast to the red fleshy cups (sepals) at the base. The dark green, hairy leaves turn yellow before they fall.

Many gardeners don't like this plant because of its tendency to a sloppy habit of growth, and its coarse, 4 to 8-inch-long, heart-shaped leaves that have a peculiar odor when crushed. Too, it often becomes leggy with most of the leaves growing at the ends of the stems. But you can make it more presentable by pruning out dead branches and frosted tips, and cutting back branches to keep the stems leafy below; do this in spring.

Grown as a single-trunked tree it will reach about 15 to 20 feet high. Or you can let it produce multiple stems and keep it as a shrub to about 10 feet.

It grows rapidly if you plant it in full sun in well drained soil. If, in intermountain areas, it freezes to the ground, it usually comes back again from the roots in spring. The suckers, which it produces freely in all areas, should be removed or you'll have a young jungle.

It's best used where you can smell the fragrant flowers and view the attractive fruit. Avoid planting it near paths or any place where you might step on the fallen leaves since they smell so peculiar.

The Cover Story

Architect David Klages says he enjoyed building this playhouse as much as his children enjoy playing in it (see page 66). The day we photographed, Costa Mesa, California, had an unusually hot, still day. The metal fireman's pole felt so hot we tried cooling it with water, to little avail. Daughter Kelly, undaunted, slid it anyway. Cover photograph by Glenn Christiansen Whom do you ask about a Kachina?

Last year Sunset reporters made several visits to the Hopi Indian villages in Arizona to learn as much as possible about Kachina dolls. We talked with Hopi craftsmen, watched Kachina dances in the village plazas, and photographed more than a hundred dolls at the Hopi Crafts Guild.

But the Hopis are very reluctant to talk about their Kachinas. If you ask the wrong question, they smile and politely change the subject.

So we began to direct our questions to museum curators, art dealers, and private collectors. Bill Walters, proprietor of the Indian Village in Los Altos, California, proved to be a valuable informant. His knowledge of Kachina dolls goes back to the 1930's when he was a trader on the reservation.

Some of our questions about Kachinas never did get answered, but we learned a great deal, and this we share with you in the report beginning on page 58.

Crossing Jamaica on the friendly train

Visitors to Jamaica's Montego Bay resorts should remember that one of the pleasantest ways to see some of the island's countryside scenery is the 112-mile journey by rail to Kingston.

The line that proclaims itself "the friendliest railway in the world" will carry you across Jamaica's mountainous interior in air-conditioned comfort. The train is seldom crowded, even on a Friday afternoon. It makes two round trips a day between Kingston and Montego Bay.

At 3½ cents a mile, the train is markedly more economical than rental cars ($12 a day plus 10 cents a mile and gasoline)—and you don't have to school yourself to drive on the left, the rule in Jamaica.

En route, the train winds in and out of tunnels, crosses rivers and streams, goes past fields of sugar cane and through dense tropical vegetation. Most striking of all is the flame red poinciana.

Every few miles the train pulls up to a small station and stops for a few minutes. Usually it's a village with a name conspicuously British: Cambridge, Stonehenge, Ipswich. At almost every station the platform is crowded with people welcoming friends or seeing them off, or just watching the train on their way to or from market, carrying baskets of fruit or flowers or cages of fowl on their heads.

If you buy a through-ticket to Kingston (it costs about $3.95), you will be in Kingston about 4 hours after you leave Montego Bay. But it is far more interesting to stop for the night in Mandeville, 6 miles from Williamsfield. The taxi fare to Mandeville from the Williamsfield station is about $2. Third largest city on Jamaica, Mandeville is the only place in the interior that has a hotel at present (although there are, of course, many hotels along the island Mandeville, high and cool, fre cloud-shrouded, is the only place Jamaica where you'd even thinl sleeping under a blanket. You could easily spend all day i deville, particularly if you are t Friday or Saturday, the principal days, when farmers come to tow many miles around to sell their p But if your time is short, you can morning train to Kingston inst waiting for the late afternoon one.

From Kingston, the quickest way Montego Bay is a 30-minute flight It takes longer for a more sceni by low-flying Heron (16 passen engines), now making 3 round trip

hinese New Year in San Francisco

u're going to San Francisco's Chinese Year parade on February 10, allow st an extra hour to get through the d. The spectacle that will usher in the of the Monkey—4666 on the lunar dar—is expected to begin on time, it will be briefer than usual.

year's parade, starting at 7 P.M., last about an hour instead of the 2 hours of former years. Parade units be limited to Chinese groups and ese-theme floats.

parade route also will be shorter this with Market Street eliminated en- because of the Bay Area Rapid sit work in progress. From a starting t at Bush and Montgomery streets, parade will head south on Mont- ery to Post Street; west on Post to t Avenue; north on Grant to Bush Street; east on Bush to Kearny Street; and north on Kearny to Washington Street where it will terminate just beyond Portsmouth Square.

Present plans call for blocking off the route to vehicular traffic at approximately 5 P.M., so the usual pre-parade traffic congestion can be expected (last year the parade drew some 300,000 spectators).

City officials suggest an early start to parade viewing points. Among parking possibilities, they suggest the Embarcadero area, from which you can walk a short distance, then board the California Street cable car and ride uphill to the perimeter of the parade route. As an alternative, they suggest the parking facilities south of Market Street, from which you can board a bus on Second or Third Street and ride to Chinatown.

When I'm in Hawaii shall I go to the new Naniloa or the Kauai Surf?

THE NEW Naniloa

"My travel agent tells me it's a sparkling new resort right at the water's edge of Hilo Bay. Says the rooms are pure luxury . . . and the view is superb. Swimming pool, two dining rooms, dancing, nightly entertainment and a piano bar, he says. And it's close to the volcano area . . . I've always wanted to see those smoldering fire pits and lava tubes and fern forests and all those orchids and things."

THE Kauai Surf

"He called it a swingin' place. Says it has a beautiful big white sand beach called Kalapaki, and a new 9 hole par 35 golf course too. And you can surf, sail, paddle an outrigger canoe, go ti leaf sliding (that sounds like fun!), dine in a pent house, or one of three other places, dance, play tennis, see a nightly show and I forget what else."

"I KNOW WHAT I'LL DO. I'LL GO TO THE NANILOA AND THE KAUAI SURF!"

No you don't have to fly it yourself.

Rent-a-Planes come equipped ith multi-million mile pilots, co- lots, flight engineers and navi- tors. Our crews have to meet the me rigid Federal Aviation dministration standards that pply to every other American rline.

Our Rent-a-Planes are the iden- al new jets that regular airlines . DC-8s for transoceanic flights. C-9s for Caribbean trips and ghts around the U.S. And soon e'll be flying the new Super C-8s, the biggest, most luxurious ts in the air.

Lovely stewardesses serve lightful food and drink on Rent- Planes just like on regular planes.

So what's the difference? For one thing, it costs 25% to 60% less to fly on a Rent-a-Plane.

For another, Rent-a-Planes fly you anywhere you want to go. From wherever you want to leave. Providing both places have jet airports. We can be this flexible because we don't have scheduled routes we must fly.

How do you rent a Rent-a-Plane?

See your travel agent. He rents them directly to groups. Groups like fraternal and social clubs, the ladies auxiliary, ski clubs or professional associations can use Rent-a-Planes to get to conventions or vacations. These are called affinity charters.

Business organizations can use Rent-a-Planes to fly their employees to sales meetings or conferences or to take winners of sales incentive contests on vacation trips. These are called single entity charters.

If you don't belong to a group?

More and more travel agents are forming their own groups, using Rent-a-Planes to jet individuals on package tours (called inclusive tour charters) at huge savings.

So call your travel agent. And ask him to become your rental agent.

What Ole Evinrude started, our computer-equipped engineers brought to perfection

The result is an Evinrude TRIUMPH

Two things — something old, and something new — r the 55 hp Triumph an outstanding performer.

Its powerhead is brand new. Not just because it has t cylinders. Or three carburetors with straight-thru fuel in tion. Or tuned exhaust. Or CD electronic ignition.
new thermo-electric choke that car manufacturers probably adopt next year.

The big news is its unique loop-charged fueling system.

Conventional piston deflectors are eliminated. Pistons flatter and lighter. The fuel charge swirls in a loop a the combustion dome. Compression is higher. Combu is cleaner. Result: more power per cubic inch. Less consumption.

"Something old" is a space age refinement of the first ho hub exhaust system developed by Ole Evinrude two ge tions ago. It was ahead of its time then. But now it come of age. A thrust accelerator ring forces water in cone behind the hub where exhaust is jetted out.

The gearcase is computer-designed for the best pos blend of low-drag shape and high-thrust gearing. And large high-rake, progressive-pitch propeller delivers ex tional thrust at low speeds, without sacrificing high s efficiency.

Try it and you'll know why we call it the Triumph!

The steep San Gabriels start right inside the city. If you have part of a day to spare, here is a new Los Angeles experience

In the canyons of the front range of n Gabriel Mountains, and you will r what the motorist would never t: These mountains that rise so ly to form the northern skyline of geles conceal a surprising wealth of ng streams, rocky gorges, and fra- woodland behind a façade that ustere indeed from the plain below en from mountain roads.

snow may occasionally block the ountry farther in, but in the front where the highest peak scarcely ex- 6,000 feet, snow is seldom more than t and short-lived blanket and sel- nough to obscure trails. In moun- that look so dry in the summer, it pleasure to walk beside tumbling —up and noisy now. It is even remarkable to come upon tall and booming waterfalls—as you will in of the front range canyons.

San Gabriels are unusual among American mountain ranges in that their axis runs east and west. This gives them a sunny south slope where spring stirs long before the calendar announces it, a chaparral-clad slope that can become uncomfortably hot by late spring. By summer it dries out, and for fire protection the front range is finally closed to public entry on July 1.

In winter, the chaparral is at its greenest and supplest, and the ground in moist and shady places is springy with dark green moss.

Be prepared for creek crossings. Often a log is alternative to a leap—or wet feet

Along creeks in deep canyons, most of the trees are bare, letting in the low slanting sun. This month the first alder leaves will start showing in sun-favored spots, to be followed later by those of sycamore and bigleaf maple.

But three principal creek side evergreens create year-around shady canopies over leaf or needle-carpeted paths—and make the transition from creek forest through the chaparral and up to the yellow pine forest on the heights. The three are the oak; the aromatic California laurel, its top ablaze with yellow bloom this month; and that stocky Southern California relative of the Douglas fir, the big-cone spruce.

A STEEPNESS THAT MAY SURPRISE YOU

The San Gabriels are also unusual among North American mountains for their steepness. Over half their slopes are at, or steeper than, the angle of repose (beyond it, rocks slide if they're loose)—a grade of 70 percent. You'll experience vividly several consequences of this. One of them is the astonishing view from such peaks as Lukens, Lowe, and Wilson, or from some south-slope trails. You seem to be looking out across the vast Los Angeles plain as though from a cliff top—a cliff over 4,000 feet high.

Another consequence is that many trails, although by no means all of them, are downright steep. The steepest in the front range, the Stone Canyon trail up Mount Lukens, climbs 3,300 feet in perhaps 3½ miles; some of the Mount Wilson trails are nearly as abrupt. Happily, since almost all of this hiking is at elevations below 6,000 feet, the added stress of rarefied air is small.

Steepness and the inordinately fractured and faulted rock of the San Gabriels call for caution: better not stray far from established trails. Trails are safe enough, unless unusual washouts have occurred, but generations of unwary walkers have contributed to these mountains' reputation as "most dangerous in the nation"; the records of search-and-rescue teams here are voluminous.

BEFORE YOU SET OUT

From the rangers you can get an excellent free map that shows trails and other facilities in the forest. They can also provide current information on the state of trails and the condition of streams. The height and steepness of these mountains subject them to the most violent effects of the weather, so parts of trails can disappear in a downpour. The chief damage of last November's record rain was to make certain trails impassable for horses; on most trails, people could—and can—still get through.

You can usually tell just by looking at the mountains in the morning what the weather will be like. This time of year, mornings tend to be frosty, but days are often warm. In planning an outing, remember that the sun is still low: east-west-lying canyons may be sunless and usually will be cool. Remember also that days are still short; for a long hike, s ule an early start to allow leeway a end; or take a flashlight along if yo a late start.

On the practical side, trousers are b than shorts. You often have to through prickly brush, and there stream canyon that does not have p oak within brushing distance of h legs. The six dishes here prove our point. Each was tested several times in Sunset's kitchens by boys and girls 8 to 14 years old. None of the recipes requires cooking or powered equipment; all are distinguished enough for company as well as family.

CHOCOLATE CASCADE CAKE

- 1 package (about 8½ oz.) chocolate wafer cookies
- 1½ cups whipping cream
- 2 tablespoons powdered sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 bar (12 oz.) milk chocolate, at room temperature
- Powdered sugar

Divide cookies into stacks of seven each; you should have five or six stacks. Combine the cream, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar, and vanilla in a deep bowl. Whip with a rotary beater until stiff enough to hold sharp peaks when you lift up the beater.

Put one of seven cookies in the center of a flat plate and encircle with remaining six. Spread evenly with about ⅓ cup of the cream, just out to the edge of the cookies. Top exactly with seven more cookies and repeat layering until all the cookies are used. Spread sides of cookies and top with all the remaining cream; use a long, slender spatula to get a smooth effect. Place in refrigerator while you prepare the chocolate curls.

If room is warm, transfer curls to a pan in the refrigerator as you work. Save leftover chocolate chunks for other uses or for eating as they are.

Pile curls onto cooky cake and dust lightly with powdered sugar. Then chill cake for 6 hours so cookies become soft enough to cut. Makes 12 servings.

BREAKFAST PRUNES

- ½-inch-thick orange slice
- 4 whole cloves
- 2 thin lemon slices, cut crosswise
- 1 pound package moist-pack dried prunes
- 3 or 4-inch cinnamon stick
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 cups hottest tap water

Cut the orange slice in quarters and stick a clove in each piece. In a 1-quart jar combine the lemon, orange, prunes, and cinnamon, alternating the kinds of fruit as you fill the jar. Mix sugar with water and pour over prunes. Cover, chill overnight, or as long as a week. Serves 8.

er chills the high, windswept mesas of northern Arizona's n Country this month, but there's a springlike sense of tation in the tiny, mesa-top villages on the Hopi Indian rvation. This is the season of Powamu, the Bean Dance mony, when the Hopi Kachina spirits are supposed to re- to the villages to bless—and admonish—the Hopi people. rful masked dancers, each one assuming the costume and f the Kachina spirit he represents, impersonate the super- ral visitors in ceremonial functions from now until the g Home ceremony next July. These impersonators dance e ceremonial kivas and village plazas, accept petitions for health, and good fortune, and chastise those who have of- ed tribal law and custom. They also bring gifts of food to ected village elders and present Kachintihü (doll-like effi- of the various Kachina spirits) to Hopi children.

The brightly colored Kachina dolls, treasured mementos of the Kachina visits, are traditionally displayed from the rafters and walls of Hopi homes to help youngsters learn to identify the distinctive mask and costume of each Kachina spirit. The dolls are neither worshiped nor especially revered by the Hopi, but serve instead as decorative reminders of the spirits they represent. Beyond the Hopi villages, the dolls are prized by collectors as some of the most meaningful and colorful examples of Indian art. Cost of a Kachina doll ranges from about $18 to $50.

The pantheon of Kachina spirits includes about 250 individuals, ranging from a gift-bearing Santa Claus type to a ferocious black ogre who disciplines disobedient children. Many of the spirits, such as the eagle, wolf, hornet, and lizard Kachinas, are animal representations. Others represent plants or flowers; sky objects like the sun, moon, and stars; or legendary figures from

There is no fixed number of accepted Kachinas. New ones are introduced almost every year, but return the next year only if they develop a popular following or bring about some beneficial effect. The same Kachina spirit may also be presented a little differently in different villages. One of the popular gift-bearing Kachinas now appears in several villages wearing a Western-style business suit, having discarded the traditional buckskin robe still prevalent in other villages. The mask of the Hornet Kachina on First Mesa is completely different from that of the Hornet Kachina on Second and Third mesas. Slight differences in ceremonial role may also occur from village to village.

Each Hopi individual is somehow involved in the cult, and the Hopi group is the only one that has developed the carving of Kachina dolls into a popular and profitable art form.

BUYING A KACHINA DOLL

Visitors to the Hopi Reservation can buy traditional, hand-carved Kachina dolls at the Hopi Arts and Crafts Cooperative Guild on Second Mesa. The cost depends almost entirely on the quality of workmanship. A well executed doll around 8 inches tall sells for about $30; elaborate detail work in the carving or costume design may push the price up as high as $50. Authentic hand-carved Kachina dolls can also be purchased in quality Indian art shops and museum gift stores.

Several Hopi entrepreneurs manufacture a line of "tourist trade" Kachina dolls that are popular items in roadside curio shops. These simulated Kachina dolls (not true representations of a particular Kachina spirit) sell from about $1.50 to $ can usually be recognized by the simplicity of the lathe-t body and by a teepee-shaped notch at the front of the base, representing the Kachina's feet. Genuine, hand-c Kachinas have individually carved feet.

Even the simulated Kachina dolls have their imitators. imitations bear the label "Indian made" and are manufa by non-Pueblo Indians who have probably never seen Hopi Kachina, or by "Indians" in the employ of enter curio dealers. Others come from as far away as Japan first impression of the dancers may be no more than a glimpse through a passageway onto the open plaza, but rabness of the tiny village is immediately transformed by olorful brilliance of the ceremonial pageant. Kachinas ly dance in chorus, and the sight of 15 or 20 of these ed dancers, identically costumed and dancing in slow, ured rhythm, is an experience one is not likely to forget.

plaza is crowded with Hopis wearing their finest silver- and most elaborate sashes. Ceremonial leaders and village s are often seated in places of honor at the edge of the , while youngsters take advantage of the better view the rooftops of houses that front the plaza.

egular intervals during the day-long ceremonial, the masked rsonators interrupt the precision ritual of the dance to dis- te gifts: three-lobed loaves of Pueblo bread still warm from ovens, pumpkin pies, and even canned goods and sacks of from the trading post. At a dance last spring, we saw Kachina withdraw a large birthday cake, complete with icing and candles, from a cardboard carton and present it to a small Hopi boy.

After such gifts are distributed, the masked dancers usually take a short rest period and other Kachina impersonators enter the plaza singly or in small groups. The Powamu Ceremony this month often includes a parade of as many as 50 different Kachinas. Among the many intermission entertainers, the irreverent Mudhead Clown Kachinas are frequently the most popular. The Mudheads burlesque the masked dancers, jest with the spectators, and frequently present biting satires of non-Indian visitors.

As the sun dips behind the rim of the mesa, the masked dancers retreat single-file from the plaza, singing a song of farewell. The villagers, speaking in subdued voices, return to their homes, and soon the plaza is silent.

Once you have seen the Kachinas dance, the doll you bring home is sure to be much more than a casual curio.

lifornia's valleys and coastal regions n the southern Arizona lowlands, the r scene is never austere—even now the weather is doing those things chamber of commerce people never ion. Why? One of the main reasons nt we enjoy the presence of broad- l evergreens on the skyline and in ndscape. (And in Hawaii we enjoy broad-leafed evergreens and a com- lack of winter weather.)

ontrast, when winter comes to Ne- a or Ohio or New Jersey or just t anywhere else in the rest of the ed States except Florida and the heast, the skyline flora consists of ing but cold-looking conifers and the ss skeletons of deciduous trees. Here, ur broad-leafed evergreen country, the winter skyline contains real leaves.

When you plant a broad-leafed evergreen shrub, tree, ground cover, bank cover, or vine, you help maintain one of the special joys of our environment. Long live the b.l.e.'s!

"Evergreen" means a plant that never loses all of its leaves at the same time. "Broad-leafed evergreen" does not necessarily mean that the plant has wide leaves like those of a banana, aucuba, or Fatsia japonica. The person or persons who coined the term used it to distinguish this group of evergreens from the needle-leafed kinds, which are commonly called conifers.

Of all the people in the Western gardening and landscaping fields, it's probably the landscape architects who hold the broad-leafed evergreens in greatest esteem. They use these plants to supply year-around softness, substance, and color in the gardens and grounds of their clients. They use the plants to form the basic framework of the gardens and to do functional jobs such as supplying focal-point interest, screening, and wind baffling. Many broad-leafed evergreens also happen to be major suppliers of flowers and fruits for garden color.

Recognizing this interest, we asked a number of landscape architects from Seattle to Tucson to name their favorite broad-leafed evergreen plants — the ones that they rely on most. When all the votes were tallied, we selected the 40 plants that had been named most frequently. These are listed and described below and on the following pages.

Many are shown in various landscape uses on these pages. And the map below shows the original native homelands for the same 40.

Here, alphabetically by botanical names, are those popular broad-leafed evergreen plants and how to use them. For complete descriptions and how-to-grow instructions, see the encyclopedia section of the Sunset Western Garden Book (Lane Books, Menlo Park, Calif., 1967; $5.95).

The Special World of the Broad-leafed Evergreens

The green dots show the regions of the world where the West's most popular broad-leafed evergreen trees, shrubs, vines, and ground covers originated.

The light green-shaded bands are the parts of the world that share with us one aspect of our West Coast broad-leafed evergreen climate—an annual average temperature range of more than 5° and less than 40°. On the polar sides of the shaded areas the winters are more than 40° colder than the summers. On the equator sides there is little or no change from winter to summer.

As you see, most of our popular broad-leafed evergreens come from the parts of the world that share our temperature range.

These rank high in the balloting

Genial giant. Douglas DC-8.

How can you tell when you're boarding a Super DC-8, or see one overhead?

One way is to look for the biggest jet you've ever seen. It's our Super DC-8, largest jetliner in the world. A giant.

Or you can spot a DC-8 by its nose. DC-8s are the ones that smile back at you.

Those dimples you see are airscoops, and they represent a typical Douglas touch: by taking in fresh air at the front of the plane for the air conditioning system, we eliminate any chance of jet engine exhaust fumes contaminating the passenger cabin air.

You'll discover many other ways Douglas helps make your flight more pleasant and comfortable when you fly a Super DC-8, or one of our quick and quiet DC-9 twinjets.

Take a Douglas jet next time you fly. You'll be all smiles, too.

Bookcases for modified A-frame house are suspended from beams, conform to roof

Here is a hanging bookcase

The roof-wall of an A-frame house can present problems when it comes to furnishing; ordinarily, there isn't sufficient head room to place standard furniture against such a wall.

This hanging bookcase, holding more than 300 books on its four shelves, is one attractive and efficient solution.

The four shelves are rough cedar 2 by 10's, each 18 feet long. Eight pairs of 1 by 3 hangers of clear fir straddle the 4 by 8 beams supporting the roof. Each hanger is notched to accept the shelves. Both edges of the two lower shelves are fitted and nailed to the hangers; the upper two shelves are supported only at the rear by the hangers.

Four short lengths of chain (measuring 1½ inches outside link diameter) support the upper shelves at the front, by means of ½-inch dowels inserted through the links and into holes drilled in the shelves' front edges. The chains hang from hooks attached to the roof beams.

Cost of materials was about $20.

The bookcase was designed by R. L. Loveless, for Mr. and Mrs. Barry Anderson of Issaquah, Washington.

Olds makes you feel so young.

We decided to make Oldsmobile the youngest car on the road this year. And this new Delmont 88 is one example of how we did it. It is young in the way it looks, as you can see. Young in the way it acts. Bigger, more responsive Rocket V-8 engines are the reason. It delivers greater low-end torque for increased efficiency, increased economy, too. And it is young in the way it rides, thanks to four-coil springs and a 123-inch wheelbase. But, like every one of the 31 new youngmobiles, Delmont 88 is pure Oldsmobile, too. It has all the quality and reliability and advanced features you expect from Oldsmobile. At very young prices as well. And the full list of new General Motors safety items is standard.

- Vertical impeller shoots into top of bag . . . doesn't waste suction pushing trash under load in bag.
- Handle folds for compact storage.
- Suction Hose (optional) stays on unit, always ready to use.
- Strong new synthetic fabric bag cleans easily with water—won't shrink or mildew. Zips open quick, empties clean.

The flavor of English muffins in a crunchy, fragrant toa

We had toast, and only toast, in mind when we baked this bread. It's a simple bread. Almost as simple as that of our English muffin. Just unbleached wheat flour, water, corn sugar, and sourdough. No shortening.

Lift a piece, look at its texture, and you can see that the heat of toasting will strike deep. Strike deep it does, to give you about the crunchiest (but not dry) piece of toast you have ever eaten.

And there's the reminder of the lively flavor of our English muffins, tangy with the good sour of natural sour-dough. English Muffin Toasting l comes to you in a plastic bag, d wrapped for freshness.

4-speed synchromesh transmission
This matches the speeds of the engine and transmission to allow the gears to mesh easily. Which makes shifting a lot easier on you and your transmission.

Replaceable wet cylinder sleeves
When the cylinders wear out in a conventional engine, the whole engine has to be pulled out and rebored. Sometimes it pays to buy a new car. But a Renault piston moves in a replaceable wet sleeve. If the sleeve ever wears out, you can put in a new one easily and inexpensively.

Sealed liquid cooling system with expansion tank
Water-cooled engines are much quieter than air-cooled engines. However, water and anti-freeze can frequently overflow. But Renault's water-cooling system has an expansion tank to keep the overflow from escaping.

Instead of three bearings supporting the crankshaft, we have five. (As many as most V-8's.)

Special vents for draft-free ventilation
You can get plenty of fresh air with the windows shut. Which, incidentally, shuts out noise.

Rack and pinion steering
Eliminates play in the steering.

2-speed hot-water heater and dual defroster
Our heater uses the same hot water that circulates in the engine. So our heater heats faster and produces a more even temperature than any air-type heater.

Most economy cars have 13" or less. Our larger wheel makes fewer revolutions to go the same distance. Which saves rubber. Which saves money.

Cornering at high speeds is one of the last things to expect a small car to do, successfully.

Unless it's a SAAB, the out-of-the-ordinary small car.

SAAB is out of the ordinary because it has front-wheel drive.

Because SAAB has front-wheel drive it doesn't push you around the way other small cars do. It pulls you around corners. Around curves. And around other drivers' mistakes.

SAAB's ability to straighten things out gives you incredible control and traction in any weather, and on any surface. (If you think driving conditions are tough in America, think of what they are like in Sweden where SAAB is built.)

Is that all SAAB has? Not on your life. Most ordinary small cars don't give you, even as options, all the safety features that are standard on SAAB.

Now, what about the engine that comes with the world's safest small car?

SAAB's new 4-cycle, V-4 engine has so much power that you can go from zero to 50 in ten seconds flat. And you can do over 90. (Over 30 miles to a gallon is a breeze.)

As an optional extra, on our new V-4 engine you get a LIFETIME GUARANTEE. That could be a long time, for our SAABs have been known to be driven over 180,000 miles.

SAAB

You can drive it like a big car.

It does things other small cars shouldn't do.

To Europe and to Mexico ...for our hamburgers

DARROW M. WATT

Austrian-style hamburger topped with a gently fried egg, capers, and anchovies makes a gala family dinner entrée served with shoestring potatoes, pickled beets, cucumbers

At most family tables hamburgers bring hurrahs. To help you vary the typical bun-mustard-catsup routine, here are four hamburger steaks with international flavors. Visits to Austria, Mexico, France, and Finland inspired these savory entrées.

Festive toppings and sauces dress up the hamburgers in quick order. Buy a lean grade of ground beef (chuck or round). Figure on about 6 ounces ground beef for a generous adult serving; for children, 4 ounces should be adequate. Broil or barbecue the patties, or pan-fry them when you need drippings for a flavorful sauce to spoon over.

A take-off on the famous Austrian Wiener schnitzel, this hamburger is topped with anchovy fillets, capers, and a softly fried, sunny-side-up egg. Include wedges of lemon to squeeze over all before mingling the garnishes with the meat patty.

stretch a leg of lamb into 3 meals

Yes! Today's delicious New Lamb is also a thrifty meal stretcher for your family. U.S. Department of Agriculture studies* prove lamb to be as economical as other comparable cuts of meat and poultry because of lighter bone and more lean meat. For each pound you buy you get more taste-tempting edible meat on your fork.

You can stretch a leg of lamb into three different meals. Start with tender steaks off the sirloin end. Then, a festive roast. What's left is great for sandwiches. Or diced into a nifty lamb salad.

THE $200 DIFFERENCE

Before he fitted this sweep of crushed velvet, the Heritage upholsterer stretched, shaped and stitche layers of support over the arms and back of the frame. When a sofa, or any piece of furniture, takes it from the inside out, only more money can buy it.

You might be able to find a sofa that looks like this for about $575. But you won't be buying the same sofa or one that's even close. As you'll soon find out when buffet suppers, day-to-day sitting, children and reupholstering take their toll on the comfort and looks you bought in the showroom.
Covered in rich crushed velvet, this 101-inch Heritage sofa will cost you about $775. Or $200 more than its "look-alike." Every spring, strip of webbing, length of thread and piece of burlap was hand-picked, then cut, fitted, sewn and secured to support the lines and comfort of this sofa.
The arms alone have burlap, fiberfill, muslin and batting back to back beneath the velvet.
Even the frame was shaped to support the sofa's design.
The higher price on this Heritage sofa, or any other piece of furniture we make, means something. Whether it's our concern for the support behind the looks and comfort of a design. Or the way we'll carve and finish wood by hand . . . because no machine or shortcut method can match it.
When you find work like this, you'll see the Heritage name.

nana-Orange Ice Cream Pie

the pie in the morning or several ead. Using chart at right, figure time for the ham; allow for it to f the oven at least 10 to 15 minutes before it is carved. You can prepare and refrigerate the salad greens and the dressing ahead, if you wish.

For the rice, use your favorite curried rice mix or make about 6 servings from your own recipe. Run hot water over 1 cup frozen peas to thaw quickly; stir into rice, cover, and let stand 10 minutes.

Baked Ham with Chutney. If you want to bake a whole bone-in ham, you may need to order it a day or so ahead. Figure about 2 or 3 servings per pound of ham with bone, about 4 to 6 servings for boneless ham.

To prepare ham for baking, be sure any fabric sacking or threads are removed; leave ham as it is or score fat and skin about ¼ inch deep with a sharp knife.

Bake ham on a rack in an open roasting pan in a 325° oven. To test doneness, use a meat thermometer inserted into the center of the thickest muscle (tip shouldn't touch bone or fat). Partially cooked ham (often labeled "ready-to-cook" or "cook-before-eating") should reach an internal temperature of 160°. Fully cooked hams should reach an internal temperature of 130° to be heated through. This schedule will help you estimate cooking time:

Cook-before-eating ham	Min. per pound
Whole ham with bone	18 to 20
Half ham with bone	22 to 25
Boned, rolled ham	30

Fully cooked ham	Min. per pound
Whole ham with bone	10
Half ham with bone	14
Boned, rolled ham	12 to 15
Canned, about 6 pounds	15 to 20
Canned, 8 to 13 pounds	10 to 15

If you want to glaze the ham, brush it two or three times during the last hour of cooking with ¼ cup chutney whirled smooth in a blender and mixed with ¼ cup canned applesauce.

Green and Gold Salad with Papaya Seed Dressing. Wash, dry, and tear 3 to 4 cups salad greens. Peel and dice 1 small (or ½ large) papaya, reserving seeds for the dressing. Thinly slice 1 medium-sized cucumber. For the dressing, combine ½ cup salad oil, 3 tablespoons tarragon vinegar, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 tablespoon lime juice, ¼ teaspoon each dry mustard and instant minced onion, ⅛ teaspoon salt, and 2 tablespoons of the reserved papaya seeds. Whirl dressing smooth in an electric blender; shake before mixing with greens. Makes 6 to 8 servings.—I. R., North Sacramento, Calif.

ure to consider how long shwasher will last, too.

This is hard to tell, but here are a few things to look for. Is it made of durable materials? (For example, KitchenAid has porcelain enamel on the inside and outside of the wash chambers.) Is the motor dependable? (Few manufacturers bother to design their own motors. KitchenAid does. And tests them electronically before assembly.) Is the dishwasher inspected after it's assembled? (Every part is thoroughly checked and every single KitchenAid dishwasher is hooked up for a test run before it leaves the factory.) Is the dishwasher made by specialists? (At KitchenAid it is. KitchenAid is built by the people who have made commercial dishwashers for restaurants, hotels, hospitals, etc., for over 80 years; home dishwashers for nearly 20 years. And many of these original home dishwashers are still going strong.)

Another point. Find out how much the dishwasher holds. You'll probably get an answer in place settings. But look for yourself, too. If you see empty corners or notches cut out of racks, the dishwasher has a lot of wasted space.

But capacity isn't everything. A good dishwasher should be convenient to use, too. See if you can adjust the racks to hold big things like roasters and deep bowls. And you should be able to pull the racks all the way out so you can reach in the back easily. On a portable dishwasher, can you reach the lower rack without unloading or removing the top rack? And watch out if you have to load dishes in a certain way. This gets to be a pain in the neck.

One more thing. You shouldn't have to fuss with dials or knobs with a good dishwasher. So make sure the dishwasher works completely automatically, at the touch of a button. And if you want your dishes and glasses to dry without any spots get a dishwasher with an Automatic Rinse Agent Dispenser. You'll find this is very important if you live in a hard water area.

Now if you want to save some time before you start looking, here are two more things you can do. (1) Ask some KitchenAid dishwasher owners how they like their dishwashers. (2) Send this coupon to KitchenAid Dishwashers Department 8DG-2, The Hobart Manufacturing Company, Troy, Ohio 45373. You'll get full details on portables, built-ins, convertible-portables and dishwasher-sink combinations.

WE DO NOT "RECOMMEND" LIGHTLY

You're going to see a good deal more of the above seal. But don't think that we permit its use lightly.

We're very careful about the advertising that goes into Sunset Magazine, for two reasons: (1) We want to make certain that you as a reader receive fair value when you buy anything from our pages, and (2) we want to be sure that everything you see here is in good taste.

For these reasons, we are very proud to carry and "recommend" the many fine products and services that are advertised in Sunset. They provide the essential "what-to-do-it-with" information to complement our "how-to-do-it" editorial content.

You may also have noticed that we do not carry tobacco, beer, liquor, many drugs, personal products, or get-rich-quick real estate or investment offers, among others. In no way are we "passing judgment" on these things; we just don't think they belong in our particular kind of a Western family magazine.

It's not easy to turn down advertising revenue. We need it to publish the kind of magazine you want.

But we value the trust and respect of our readers above all else. So we have set unusually high standards with regard to the advertised products and services we carry, and we can recommend them to you with full confidence.

They cheered Finickers' Soup, and also spicy beans, Ol' Grizz, shanks with rice

It's great to have people cheer our accomplishments. Some Chefs of the West give generous credit to those who have encouraged them. William E. Knowles acknowledges his private circle thusly:

"Tempted, yes; but for years I remained a cautious fish in your sea of readers who haven't nibbled at the bait of Chefs of the West accolade. Now finally pushed (or should I say nipped on the fins?) by well wishers, I proudly submit the following recipe for your consideration. It is one of the few of my prized mixtures that received 100 per cent acceptance from my 'Finicky Five' tasters."

FINICKERS' SOUP

- 1 package (1 lb.), or about 2½ cups, each small white beans and black-eyed beans
- Water
- 1 large can (46 oz.) tomato juice
- 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
- 12 beef bouillon cubes
- ¼ cup butter
- 2 large onions, finely diced
- 2 pounds lean, diced ham (about 7 cups)
- 2 quarts water
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon liquid smoke

Wash both kinds of beans, combine, cover with water, and soak overnight. (Or cover with water, bring to boil, boil 2 minutes; remove from heat, cover and let stand 1 hour then proceed with the next step.)

Next day, drain and reserve liquid; place beans in large kettle. Add tomato juice and tomato sauce. Heat 4 cups of bean-soaking liquid to boiling and dissolve bouillon cubes in it. Add all to kettle.

Melt half the butter in a frying pan and santé onions in it over low heat until slightly browned; add them to kettle. Melt remaining butter in same pan and lightly brown the diced ham; add to kettle.

Add the 2 quarts water to kettle, bring the contents to a boil, then reduce heat to simmer. Add sugar and liquid smoke. Continue simmering about 3 hours, or until beans are tender. Serve hot. Freeze any that is left over and reheat as needed. Makes about 9 quarts.

we had at least two different green bean preparations. It finally narrowed down to two and we had a final runoff. I was tasting one and then the other, they were side by each on the plate, and the sauces ran together. One taste, and a fiendish inspiration struck. I emptied one of the serving dishes into the other and stirred. "Although the family had been complaining about having to eat green beans for the previous nine days, not a bean was left from that batch."

JUDIAS VERDES PICANTES
(Spicy Green Beans)

- 1 package (9 oz.) frozen green beans (regular cut, not French cut)
- ⅓ cup thinly sliced green onions (including the green tops)
- 1½ tablespoons butter

Sauce:

- 3 tablespoons soft butter
- 1 teaspoon each prepared mustard and Worcestershire
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Dash each of black pepper and cayenne pepper

Cook green beans according to package directions until just barely tender. Meanwhile, sauté onions in the 1½ tablespoons butter just until soft. Cream together all sauce ingredients until well blended.

Drain all water from beans. Stir in sautéed onions and all drippings from pan. Add sauce mixture and stir well. Cover and let stand over lowest heat 5 minutes; turn into serving dish. Serve with Spanish or Mexican dinners, or with any fairly mild-flavored meat. Serves 3.

The beans have best color if you serve immediately, but they can be kept warm half an hour or so longer, tightly covered, on a warming tray without losing too much fresh color.

read the new Sunset Western Gar-ook (Lane Books, Menlo Park, 1967; $5.95) before selecting varieties for your own garden.

Don't crowd trees. You can't grow even one standard-sized apple or sweet cherry in a 10-foot side yard; obviously you can't grow a whole orchard there. Do consider dwarf fruit trees, either grown as small trees or as espaliers, as space savers. If you need a pollenizing variety, save space by buying a tree that has a pollenizing variety grafted on.

Don't count on fruit trees to give you carefree gardening. Except for fig and persimmon, all will require spraying. All will require shaping in their early years; many will need careful pruning throughout their lives. And many will eventually provide far more fruit than you can use. Do think twice (or even three times) before rushing out to get your 'Delicious' apple, 'Elberta' peach, or 'Kadota' fig.

All-America gladiolus selections for 1968

To win the All-America award, a gladiolus variety must prove its worth against a number of aspirants in gardens across the country. You'll recognize the winners in the nursery; each corm is individually wrapped in a little net jacket that indicates flower color, and each carries a name label. This year a red, a white, and a blue took the honors:

'Royalty.' Velvety, rose red flowers of medium size; up to eight of the 20 or more buds are open at once.

'Purity.' Pure white flowers are very large (5½ to 6 inches across); six or seven are open at the same time.

'Bluebird.' Flowers very near pure blue, with white throats. A miniature, it opens eight of its small (2 to 3-inch-wide), frilled flowers at once.

Another acacia

Last month we showed (page 46) a Bailey acacia (Acacia baileyana) in bloom. Just about the time this tree begins to go off color, its near relative, green wattle, begins to reach its peak bloom, thus prolonging the acacia bloom season.

Green wattle (A. decurrens) and its silvery-leafed variety (A. d. dealbata) resemble Bailey acacia and are often confused with it. They are bigger (to 50 feet) than Bailey acacia, with larger, darker leaves and lighter yellow, somewhat more scattered flowers. Some observers feel that the flowers of green wattle are even more fragrant than those of Bailey acacia.

Green wattle has silvery or green leaves, profusion of tiny, fragrant yellow flowers

Like Bailey acacia, green wattle grows with remarkable speed; a seedling may reach 25 feet in two years if it has good soil and some supplementary watering. Plants will get by in poor soil and with little water, but growth will be slower.

Use green wattle as hillside planting, as a big privacy or sun screen, or (in groves) as fast cover for vacant land.

Spring foliage— another garden dimension

In any given year, the color of autumn leaves may prove disappointing, especially if autumn is mild, wet, or very stormy. But spring foliage is reliably the same color, and it seldom appears until conditions are settled enough to sustain its even development. Spring leaves of many plants are brightly colored, yet only a few connoisseurs would think of selecting a particular plant and siting it for its spring foliage effect.

Of the many trees that have vivid new foliage, Japanese maple (Acer palmatum) is best known. Even common green seedling trees show pinkish, coppery, or red tones in the expanding leaves. Red-leafed varieties show purplish to greenish red in summer, but the spring leaves are rich rose red to scarlet. The variety called 'Bonfire' has brilliant orange-pink leaves.

Scarcely inferior to maples in spring foliage coloration are the beeches. (For an account of beech varieties, see page 89 of the January 1968 Sunset.) Green-leafed beeches have pinkish or bronzy tints in new leaves. Purple beeches have bright coppery red new leaves. Colors in all new beech leaves are toned and softened by a growth of silvery, silky hairs, which disappear as the leaves approach maturity.

Plant your maple or beech where the new foliage can be readily seen from close at hand—alongside a path or near a garden sitting area, for instance. Or plant either one in a container, so it can be moved to where traffic is.

Good companion plantings are delicate-seeming flowers that bloom while tree leaves are expanding—bulbs, pansies, primroses, and violas. These, with their pure, soft colors and tender texture, blend as well with the tender expanding leaves of maple or beech, as bold chrysanthemums do with brilliant autumn foliage.

Unusual hedge planting

The rules of landscape design say that a hedge like the one in the picture shouldn't work. This hedge, say the rules, should be either solid green or green-and-white variegated. Nevertheless, this hedge is successful; it looks right in its setting. Why does it work?

In the first place, it's well maintained. Straggliness, overgrown shoots, gaps, or any results of poor pruning would be more than usually conspicuous in such a striking hedge as this. Good maintenance and clean lines emphasize the formality of the design. In the second place, the background is clean, simple, and modern enough to support some richness in ornamentation.

This particular hedge consists of Cotoneaster lactea or E. parneyi (the solid green portion) and variegated dwarf myrtle (Myrtus communis 'Compacta Variegata'). To start a hedge like this, you could set plants in blocks of t three variegated, and so on. are patient, you could set singl alternating colors three feet maintain a neat look, you'll ha not only top and front, but of each block as well to prev running together.

FEBRUARY CHECK LIST: Here's what needs doing

☐ Bulbs. As soon as pink sprouts begin to appear on surface, start tubers of tuberous begonias in flats of leaf mold or prepared planting mix. Don't set out started tubers until weather is settled and warm. Plant anemones, yellow and pink callas, cannas, gladiolus, ranunculus, and tigridias.

☐ Dividing, transplanting. Divide gerberas, Shasta daisies, and chrysanthemums. Replant vigorous, healthy outer divisions. Discard woody, worn-out center portions. Move carefully any camellias that need better locations.

☐ Lawns. Feed cool-season grasses; they will make vigorous growth during warm spells and the heavier the turf, the less likelihood there is of weeds getting a foothold. If crabgrass was a problem last year, apply pre-emergence controls; see page 100 of the January Sunset.

☐ Pest control. Continue to spread bait for snails and slugs. Small quantities put down frequently will give more killing power than single heavy applications spaced too far apart—especially if rains are heavy. Complete dormant spraying of fruit trees and roses. Get rid of weeds that act as winter hosts for garden insects.

☐ Planting for flowers. Shop now for camellias; they are at the height of bloom. Also prime: some evergreen azaleas, field-grown clumps of delphinium and Polyanthus primrose, Oriental magnolias in bud or flower, daphne, dogwood, bare-root flowering trees and roses. Many of the hellebores are blooming now; they are an excellent choice for narrow beds in shade, for use near floor-to-ceiling windows, or among shade-loving shrubs.

☐ Planting for landscape effect. Balled-and-burlapped conifers and Japanese maples are still available. Bare-root shade trees should be picked up and planted as soon as possible. If warm weather comes early, buds will begin to sprout and nurserymen will can root plants, increasing their p siderably.

Rose-form tuberous begonia — a flower of superb form and substance, available in white, blush pink, salmon, rose, carmine rose, red shades, yellow, apricot, orange shades. Grown from seed about as fine as dust

Growing your tuberous begonias from seed

This month you can start tuberous begonias from seed or tubers. Either method will produce flowering plants this summer, although tubers will give you slightly larger plants that flower earlier.

On these pages you see how Frank Reinelt, internationally recognized originator of the Pacific strain of tuberous begonias —as well as delphiniums and primroses— sows begonia seed. On page 148, observe how he handles tubers from starting time to potting plants in containers.

There's no question but that growing tuberous begonias from seed is a challenging task demanding special care. First, the seed is extremely fine—so fine, in fact, that it takes over 2,000,000 seeds to make an ounce. A regular half-packet contains a minimum of 250 seeds; the biggest (commercial) customers buy only ⅛ ounce; and the entire market in the United States absorbs only 2 to 3 ounces.

Second, because the tiny seedlings are especially susceptible to damping off (a fungus disease) it is necessary to sterilize the seed mix.

Sterilizing mix for a half-packet of seed (the amount used here) is comparatively simple. Put the mix in a heat-proof baking dish, and place this dish in a larger dish of hot water. Let the water boil for at least half an hour. Or bake the mix at 200° for 10 minutes. Let the mix cool before sowing the seed. If you transfer the mix to another container for sowing, disinfect the seed container by soaking it in a solution of 2 tablespoons of chlorinated household bleach in 1 gallon of water. Dry the container before adding the seed mix.

Third, seeds and seedlings require sustained heat. Seed will germinate in 6 days in a temperature of 70° to 75° (considered ideal). Germination takes 12 to 14 days at a temperature of 65°, and 3 to 4 weeks at a temperature of 55°.

9. Lift seedling with point pencil (as above). Hold leaf; take care not to injure as you pry them out of the s

3. Place leaf mold in the bottom of 5-inch-square plastic container (or use shallow pot). Sifted leaf mold - peat moss mix on top. Level surface; don't press hard

How to handle and plant begonia tubers

Here are step-by-step directions for handling begonia tubers from the time they start sprouting small pink buds (almost any day now) until you plant them in the containers or the garden bed in which they will bloom this summer. The best plants are usually produced from young, vigorous tubers 1½ to 2½ or 3 inches in diameter. As with sprouted seeds, started tubers require full light, but should not be exposed to direct sun. They grow best in a temperature maintained at 65° to 75°.

The Lennons all agreed, "Maytags for Janet."

or 33 years, Maytag dependability has been a tradition in the Lennon family.

's grandmother started it all in with a Maytag wringer washer oved hard work.

1939, Janet's mother got married, l youngsters, and found a Maytag t the ticket for big loads, day in ay out.

ien Janet's singing sisters — Di- and Peggy Lennon — got married, ach got Maytags, too.

maybe it's obvious why a busy couple like Janet Lennon Bern- , and her husband, Lee, insisted on Maytags of their own.

Janet likes her Maytags because they have a lot of new features. The Washer has giant capacity. And the Electronic Control on her Dryer is perfect for permanent-press clothes. But what she wants most of all is Maytag dependability.

Janet, that's something we'll never change.

You and your Maytags should be making beautiful music together for a long time to come.

COMMUNITY ACTION:

How to join in on Arbor Day

Californians observe Arbor Day by planting thousands of trees each year on March 7—also celebrated as Luther Burbank's birthday. Nevada and Utah celebrate Arbor Day on the last Friday in April. The activities of this day, in what is actually a nationwide beautification program (started in 1872), have always involved school children most heavily, but people of all ages participate through various organizations.

If you're a member of a garden club or service club, it's quite easy to set up an Arbor Day tree planting project for your group. When given enough advance notice, your park department can usually give you the help that you need.

In large parks, certain areas are sometimes set aside for Arbor Day plantings. At Fresno's Roeding Park, for example, the D.A.R. is establishing a memorial grove to which a new tree is added annually. In most instances, the city park department determines the kinds of trees that are planted on city property and it also usually supplies the trees.

But you don't have to be a club member to participate; you might choose to observe the day with a simple family tree-planting at home or by organizing a neighborhood tree-planting ceremony. Be sure to consult your park department before planting street trees.

Or perhaps your church, club, or scout hall grounds need landscaping; Arbor Day is an appropriate time to inaugurate the project.

Many schools highlight this annual celebration by planting trees on the school grounds, where the children see them frequently and can watch them grow. Parent-teacher associations, garden clubs, and service clubs often cooperate in these ceremonies. Since 1964, more than 1,200 Arbor Day trees have been planted around Sacramento area schools.

Member nurseries and area chapters of the California Association of Nurserymen take an active part in Arbor Day ceremonies, assisting schools, city beautification committees, and other groups. Consult your nurseryman now about projects you have in mind; he can offer valuable assistance.

Pacific Gas and Electric Company, Sacramento Municipal Utility District, and the Sierra Pacific Power Company (Nevada) publish booklets on tree selection, planting, and care; these are available free to individuals and groups.

GIVE SNAILS AND SLUGS A FAIR SHAKE

(...it'll really kill 'em)

Don't be cruel to snails and slugs by making them crawl all around your lawn and garden searching for pellets or mounds of meal. Kill them instantly with Germain's Snail, Slug & Insect Killer, a new granular formula that you sprinkle like salt from a modern shaker can. This faster, more effective killer spreads everywhere like an invisible blanket, ready to deal certain death with one tiny taste to snails, slugs, lawn moths, earwigs, sow bugs, ants, and chinch bugs. (Misery likes company, so kill 'em all!) Not a pellet or meal, it is far less attractive to children and pets. They won't know it's there. Get Germain's Snail, Slug and Insect Killer at your garden supply and kill 'em with kindness!

Isn't it worth $3.98 to protect an investment of hundreds of dollars?

Shrubs are expensive. Inferior garden shears tear branches instead of slicing them off clean, leaving rough edges that invite plant disease. Wiss Garden Tools, like our (#708) Anvil Pruner (pictured) and our (#222) Lopping Shears cost only a dollar or two more than low-quality tools. Their precision-ground blades help you shape your shrubs the way professional gardeners do. Isn't that worth a little more?

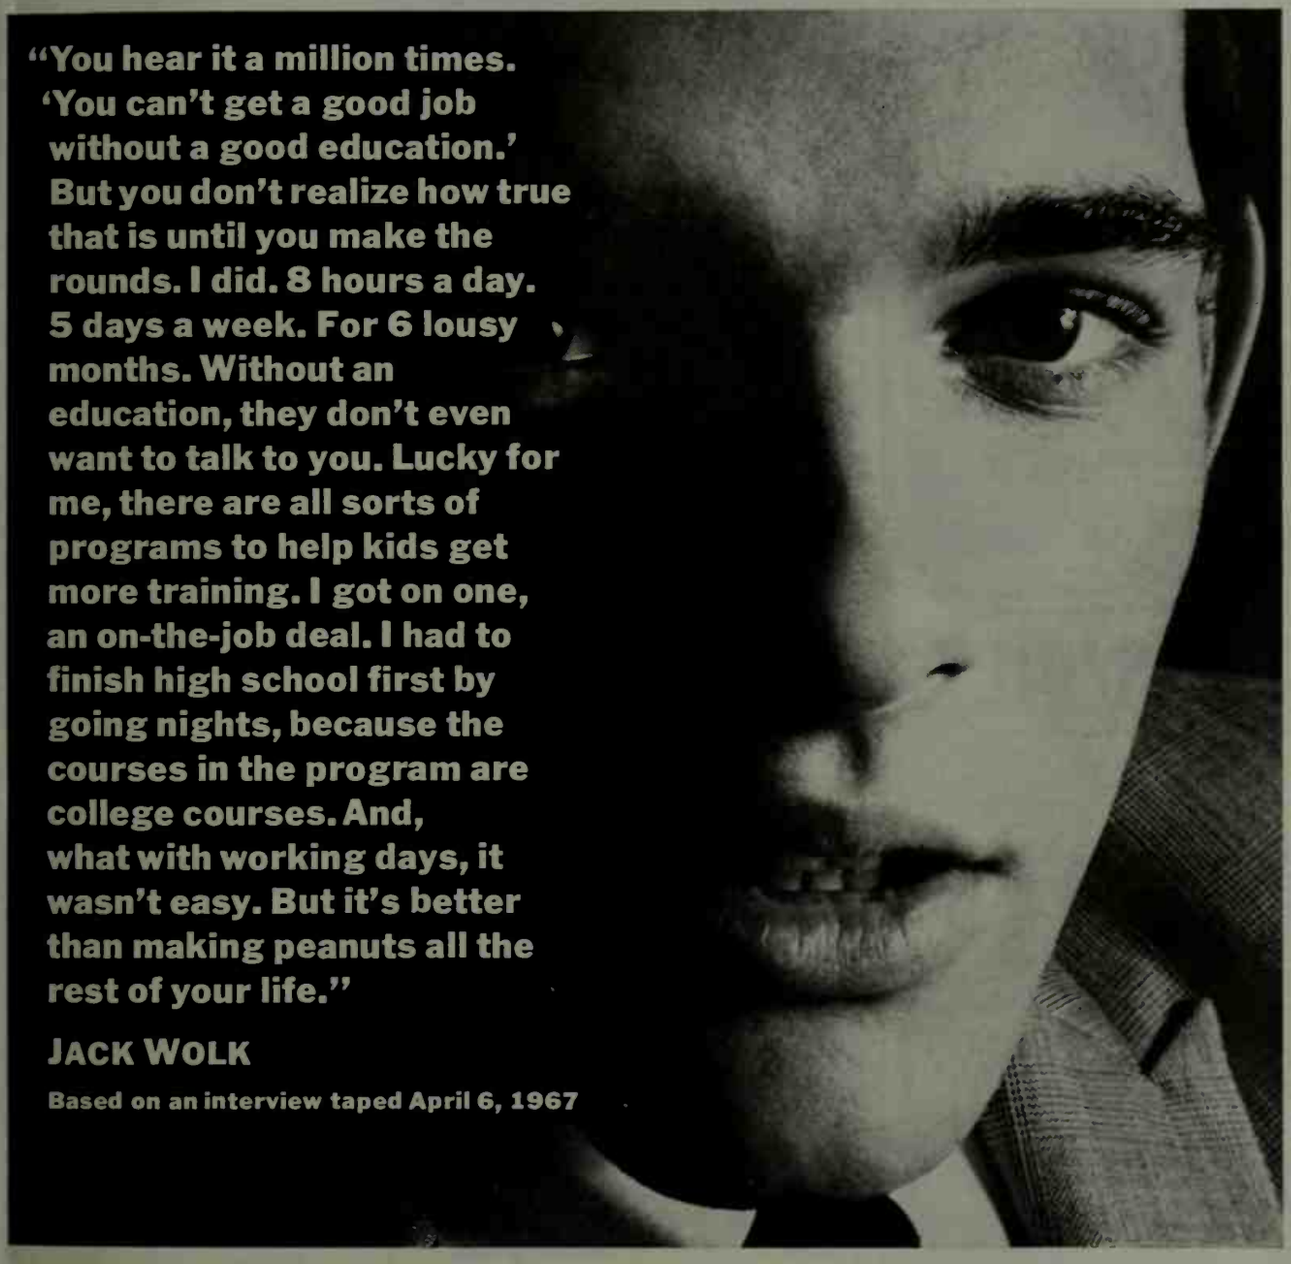
f you think staying in school is tough, isten to someone who quit.



"You hear it a million times. 'You can't get a good job without a good education.' But you don't realize how true that is until you make the rounds. I did. 8 hours a day. 5 days a week. For 6 lousy months. Without an education, they don't even want to talk to you. Lucky for me, there are all sorts of programs to help kids get more training. I got on one, an on-the-job deal. I had to finish high school first by going nights, because the courses in the program are college courses. And, what with working days, it wasn't easy. But it's better than making peanuts all the rest of your life."

LAWN QUALITY COSTS LESS WITH
HIGHLAND COLONIAL BENTGRASS

Ask for Highland Colonial Bent in your lawn seed mixture. It's one of the most inexpensive of the fine-bladed grasses.

You'll find it in home lawns because it's beautiful and retains its color throughout the winter. You'll see it on golf course fairways because it's tough and on golf greens because it thrives on close-cutting.

Ask for Highland in a custom mix, or look for its listing on the back of the pack if you take a mix off the shelf.

February is time to prune xylosma

Fast recovery after a heavy pruning is an important point in favor of xylosma (X. congestum), a very useful and popular broad-leafed evergreen shrub (deciduous when subjected to heavy frosts). You can prune it back to a skeleton of main framework branches, and in about four months, the bare branches become almost completely concealed by fresh, vigorous new growth, as shown in these photographs.

With regular, light pruning once or twice each year, xylosma is easily kept in bounds. The plants in the top photograph happened to have gone unpruned for two full seasons, so more drastic pruning was necessary.

If you have xylosma plants in your garden that need pruning, February is a good time to do the job. Established plants, such as those shown here, normally start to put out new growth at this time. The heavy pruning serves as added growth stimulus, and it won't be long before buds all along the stem begin to enlarge and grow; most of these growth buds are completely hidden beneath the bark.

Because the new growth closely follows the pruning, you won't have to live with the stark, stubby silhouette for long.

The shrubs in this planting are spaced 3 feet apart; they were set out seven years ago against this warm, west wall of light-colored concrete bricks.

These plants needed nutrients to support the strong surge of new growth that followed pruning, so they were fed with a complete fertilizer, containing about 10 per cent nitrogen. Iron sulfate was applied at the same time to prevent chlorosis. (Iron chelates are also excellent for treating chlorosis.)

You can also set out xylosma plants now. They grow best in sun or partial shade, and thrive in most soils. In addition to the hedge-type planting shown here, xylosma is used effectively for screening and espaliers; you can also train it into a 10-foot-tall shade tree.

Cutting an overgrown camellia down to size

Cutting a camellia plant in half sounds drastic, but it really isn't. That's good to know when you have a plant taller than you'd like, when extensive pruning is about the only thing you can do.

The sketches on this page show how Dr. Gordon Richmond, of Lafayette, California, cuts his too-large camellias down to size. His method involves two steps, a year (sometimes two) apart. It also includes a two-step soil renovation.

Start in late winter or early spring, just before camellias begin their new growth. Select the main stem and cut off all its side branches except for a tuft at the top (left there to help the plant nourish itself). Coat the cuts with pruning s same time, dig two trenches sides of the plant. Replace th soil with soil mixed with gr peat moss, well rotted sawdu organic matter.

Vigorous new shoots should along the bare trunk. Select want to form the framework plant, and rub the other shoot

If there's a good deal of new next year, proceed as in diagra wise wait another year. Cut trunk above the top branch low-down foliage clump. Seal and refill two more trenches.

1. Camellia has outgrown space in garden. grams 2 to 4 show how to cut it down to
2. Cut off side branches except for tuft at top. Dig trenches; refill with light soil
3. A year later, cut off old trunk above clun new foliage. Dig and refill two more tren
4. The result: a compact, rejuvenated cam with plenty of fresh soil to grow in

The Cover Story

These flowering plum trees (Prunus blireiana) along a country driveway blend well with the orchard apricots in the background but don't drop fruit on the pavement. Yellow flowers underneath are volunteer wild mustard. This plum's virtues and needs are described on page 70. Glenn Christiansen took the photograph

t month, the road to Sunol Val- nal Park was narrow and wind- l driving for parents with a car oungsters. Now a new, paved, l makes getting there easy.

most of the East Bay Regional Parks, Sunol Park is a 3,870-acre preserve of grassy hills and ragged ravines directly east of Mission San Jose. It is still mostly in its natural state, and plans call for it to be left that way.

But it has become a popular day-trip destination for Bay Area families with young children. Alameda Creek meanders through the park, and several spots next to picnic and camping areas are deep enough for splashing and wading. An archery range is nearby. The park

Capsule, seemingly floating above ground, is really supported on a sturdy pipe in yard at NASA tracking station in Sonora

What's a space capsule doing in Sonora?

There is a U. S.-operated NASA tracking station in Mexico just 271 miles below Arizona's border. You may recall the Mercury and Gemini astronauts in orbit receiving data from this Sonora station.

The tracking station is just one of many surprises, big and small, that Sunset's reporters checked out for this issue's lead article on Sonora. Change is coming fast as the sleepy Mexican state gears up for the steadily increasing inflow of families driving south for the fishing, for the fun of a "foreign" visit, or perhaps to Mexico City and the 1968 Olympics.

And change is one reason Sunset keeps coming back to Sonora. Our last big report was a 16-page feature in January 1961. But the Sonora we pictured in 1961 is a different place today. So we've re-explored the state, made new notes, new photographs, prepared a new report. It begins on page 60.

to camp overnight in one of the park's 11 unimproved campsites; then the charge is $1. No reservations are accepted, but to check availability you can telephone (415) 862-2244. Driving time is about 25 minutes from Niles district of Fremont, via State Highway 84 and Calaveras Road.

Visit to a print-maker's gallery

Visitors are invited to inspect an old printing press, observe the process of linoleum block printing, and see an exhibit of prints of wildflowers in San Francisco this month.

Artist-printer Henry Evans starts with the actual flower, drawing and cutting its shape into a section of linoleum. He attaches the linoleum to a block of wood and places it in his 1852 Washington hand press. Cranking the press by hand and re-inking after each print, he runs off 100 prints, then destroys the block.

The Evans studio is at 555 Sutter St. It is usually open from 1 to 5 P.M. Monday through Saturday, but it is advisable to telephone ahead to be sure. The number is (415) 392-5849.

New park land near Coalinga

Coalinga Mineral Springs, a turn-of-the-century health spa, is open again to the public. The baths and mud cures are gone, but early this year the California Wildlife Conservation Board, the County of Fresno, and the U.S. Bureau of Land Management agreed to turn the 319-acre parcel into a park. Visitors will find a few picnic tables, rest rooms, places to park cars, drinking water, and primitive overnight camping sites.

Although horseback riders and hikers can enjoy cross-country exploring right now, there are plans to develop a system of improved trails.

The acquisition of the Coalinga Mineral Springs opens up to public use a previously inaccessible 12,700 acres of public domain. The land this month is green with grass; there are oaks and Digger pines and chaparral. Highest point is the rocky summit of Kreyenhagen Peak (3,558 feet), well above the winter fog of the central valley. The 5-mile road to the mineral springs leaves State Highway 198 about 12 miles west of the town of Coalinga.

Travel show in San Francisco

Information for trip planning and demonstrations of new recreation equipment are the subjects of Vacations '68, the San Francisco Travel and Outdoor Recreation Show. Dates are March 2 through 10, in San Francisco's Civic Auditorium. Hours are 4 P.M. to 10 P.M. Monday through Friday; noon to 10 P.M. Saturday; noon to 7 P.M. Sunday. Admission is $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for children under 12.

For travel planners, a March check list

Alaska ferry. Late last year the State of Alaska inaugurated a new, once-weekly passenger/car ferry service from Seattle direct to Ketchikan. The ferry leaves Seattle each Saturday afternoon, arrives Ketchikan early Monday morning, then continues north to Juneau and Skagway.

This new service supplements the existing "marine highway" service between Skagway, Alaska, and Prince Rupert, B.C. One-way passenger fares on the Seattle-Ketchikan run are $36.50 for adults, half fare for children 6 through 11. For vehicle rates, write to Marine Transportation Division, Pouch R, Juneau, Alaska 99801.

Banana boat. Passenger-carrying freighters leave Los Angeles Harbor each Tuesday for 27-day round-trip voyages to the Panama Canal Zone with a port-of-call at either Puerto Armuelles, Panama, or Golfito, Costa Rica. Passengers spend seven days ashore in Balboa, Panama. Cruise prices are $385 per person (double occupancy). For information or reservations, write to Philip Martin Associates, 2031 Franklin St., Oakland, Calif. 94612.

Hawaii underwater. Glass-bottomed boat tours leave Kewalo Basin each morning at 9 for a 50-minute cruise beyond the Waikiki breakwaters. Additional tours leave at 10 and 11 A.M., and at 1, 2, and 3 P.M. Tour price is $2 for children under 12, $3 for others. For information, write to Glass Bottom Boats Hawaii, Inc., 1515 Nuuanu Ave., Honolulu, Hawaii 96817.

Lake Powell. Half-day cruises leave the Wahweap Marina daily at 8 A.M. and 1 P.M. for a 22-mile run up Lake Powell to explore the watery passageways of Labyrinth Canyon, part of the Glen Canyon National Recreation Area. Cruise prices are $15 for adults, $10 for children under 12. For information on this and other Lake Powell cruises write to Canyon Tours, Inc., Box 1597, Page, Ariz. 86040.

Rail/sea tour. A combination cross-country rail tour and eight-day Caribbean cruise leaves San Francisco on March 18, returns April 11. You travel to Miami by train; visit St. Maarten, St. Thomas, and Puerto Rico, by cruise ship, then return to San Francisco by train. Complete tour prices begin at $985 per person and include first-class ship accommodations, round-trip rail fare with Pullman between San Francisco and Miami, all meals aboard ship, and sight-seeing tours. For reservations, write to Cliff Travel Service, 495 Geary St., San Francisco 94102.

What a travel agent can do for you: Provide information on tours; reserve space on air, rail, bus, and steamship lines; make hotel, ranch, and resort reservations; take care of trip planning, including side trips and special events. Travel agencies do not charge for arranging transportation or package tours, but do charge for "custom" tour service.

TO FISHING FUN IN DOUGLAS COUNTY OREGON!

There must be a reason why so many fishermen visit Douglas County year after year. Maybe it's the variety of fish available, including salmon, trout, bass and steelhead. Maybe it's the high mountain lakes, the four major rivers, or the challenge of the Pacific Ocean. Maybe it's the scenic beauty, the sandy beaches, historical sites and camping facilities. Why not find out for yourself. This year, visit Douglas County, Oregon's total vacationland.

For further details, write Chamber of Commerce, Box 1026-SM, Roseburg, Oregon

CALAVERAS COUNTY

Enjoy the wide range of winter sports including skiing for expert and beginner. See historic, colorful, Mother Lode towns and explore stage coach stops and trails. Relive the days of Joaquin Murietta, Black Bart and sheriff Ben Thorn, their nemesis.

Pan gold in primitive areas—visit museums, pioneer cemeteries, and scenic landmarks. Excellent accommodations both historic and modern. Just 2½ hours from the Bay Area, 1 hour from Sacramento or Stockton via Highways 4, 12, 26, 49. Discover the grandeur of the last California Frontier.

ON THE BEAUTIFUL SHORELINE TIP OF THE MONTEREY PENINSULA

Lots of things are different about Pacific Grove, the Monterey Peninsula's most unique city.

Take, for instance, the Magic Carpet of pinkish-lavender mesembryanthemum. In late March, this Magic Carpet provides enchanting, vivid color along miles of Pacific Grove waterfront. Enjoy walking trails and the joy of being next-to-nature. The Magic Carpet is at its height in mid-April and is still a sight to behold through the end of May.

March bird watching on southern San Francisco Bay

A passing glimpse of shore birds feeding close to the Bayshore Freeway (U.S. Highway 101) is all that most motorists see of life in the tidelands as they hurry along the western edge of San Francisco Bay. Yet this speedway between San Francisco and San Jose rims marshes and tidal flats that shelter an estimated 70 per cent of the water and shore birds that travel the Pacific Flyway.

If you are curious about bird life along this part of the bay, you might schedule your looking for the ebb of an especially high tide when the birds are feeding close to shore. Your choice in scheduled river runs this year

River-tour operators have scheduled a total of more than 200 expeditions on the Colorado, Green, Yampa, San Juan, Salmon, Rogue, Stanislaus, American, Klamath and other rivers, beginning in April and continuing into September.

The boating services listed here are those that publish an advance schedule of river tour expeditions open to the general public. Most of the operators use large neoprene rafts or pontoon floats, powered by outboard motors in some stretches of the river, by oars in others.

All the scheduled river-tour operators offer options as to length and duration of river trips, and most offer guide service and group charter rates to private river parties. These are the trips scheduled for 1968, and their departure dates (but not their points of departure; for such details, write directly to the operators).

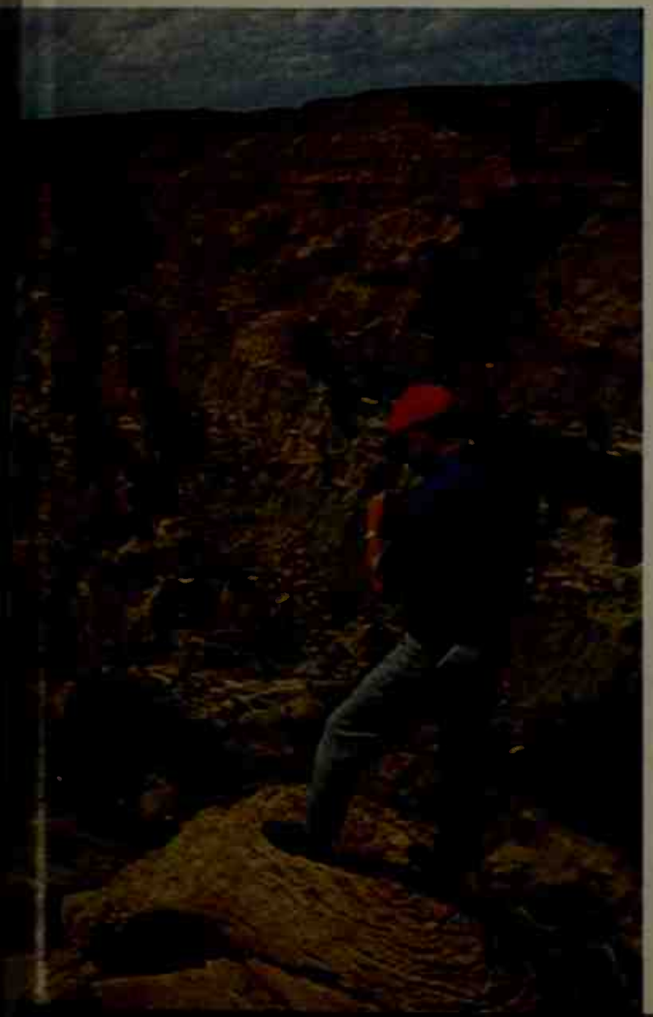
MAKOSHIKA STATE PARK: scenic Montana badlands



Now it's your turn...

Explorers Lewis and Clark traveled 1940 miles in Montana through uncharted wilderness, enduring untold hardships. Today you can travel the same distance, parallel the route of explorers on modern interstate highways, and do it with pleasure and fun.

Follow the official Lewis and Clark Trail highway markers; watch buffalo on the National Bison Range, Indian celebrations, rodeos and stampedes. Follow timber trails into wilderness areas; float the mighty Missouri or the Yellowstone River; visit the site of Custer's Last Stand.

Include Yellowstone National Park on the south border and Glacier National Park on the north border; Pompeys Pillar to the east and the Big Hole Battlefield to the west. Bone up on history; hike, swim, ride, fish, boat and enjoy yourself. This year follow the Lewis and Clark Trail in MONTANA,

A message to anyone who's been to Europe.

If you've fed the pigeons in Trafalgar Square, and looked down at Paris from the Eiffel Tower, if you've stared at the crowds on the Via Veneto, and watched the bulls charge in Madrid; in short, if you've seen Europe and are looking for a new place to write home about, let us make a suggestion:

Come to India.

Stay on a houseboat in Kashmir and sip cocktails prepared by your own personal valet. Bargain for jewels and rugs with merchants who love to haggle. Flirt with par on lush, rolling golf courses.

Visit the caves of Ellora and Ajanta where a 2,000-year-old civilization—Buddhist, Hindu and Jain—has been immortalized in rock. (Bring a pair of comfortable shoes. The caves, filled with carvings and frescoes, stretch on for miles.)

Go see Madras, a colorful, bustling city that boasts, among other things, the finest silk emporiums in all of India. (Only a strong man can resist bringing back his wife a few of the bright, gaily-colored sarees Madras is famous for.)

Journey to the deep south. To Kerala, the fertile, palm-studded region so reminiscent of islands in the South Seas and the Caribbean. Loaf about on beautiful beaches. Explore mysterious inland waterways. Visit a wild life sanctuary abounding in elephants, tigers, and wild boars. (Also visit with some of the handsomest people in the world.)

Does the thought of such a trip intrigue you? We hope so. We hope you come and stay with us awhile. It would be our pleasure to have you.

For more information on what to do and see in India, see your travel agent, or write to: Government of India Tourist Office; New York, 19 E. 49th Street; Chicago, 201 North Michigan Avenue; San Francisco, 685 Market Street. Also in Canada.

discover 3 new worlds of enchantment

Three fantastic worlds are yours to explore in Guatemala. ■ There's the world of the Ancient Maya, whose lost civilization is still a riddle today, some 1100 years later. ■ There's another world, just as fascinating, of Spanish Colonial marvels in legendary cities and pastel-hued villages. ■ And the exciting world of today—blending exotic native market places with the surging tempo of a modern nation writing its own history of progress. ■ What else has Guatemala in store for you? Springlike weather all year long, lofty volcanoes and highland lakes. Exotic market places. Tropical beaches and sophisticated cities. Many of the other ranches accommodate guests in separate cottages, some with housekeeping facilities so you can prepare your own meals; such units typically accommodate a family of four or five for about $75 to $100 per week. And some ranches with separate cottages will supply meals if you wish them, at an added charge.

For an up-to-date directory that includes some small ranches in the West along with the more traditional farms in other parts of the country, see Farm & Ranch Vacation Guide (36 E. 57th St., New York 10022, 20th annual edition, 1968; $1.50). This paperback book, available in bookstores, contains a brief description of each ranch and farm listed, has photographs of many of them, and—new this year—previous guests' comments.

Another source of information on ranch vacations is The Dude Ranchers' Association, Box 1363A, Billings, Mont. 59103. Although most of the member ranches are large cattle spreads catering to a sizable number of guests, the association's directory does list some smaller ranches. When I'm in Hawaii shall I go to the new Naniloa or the Kauai Surf?

THE NEW Naniloa

"My travel agent tells me it's a sparkling new resort right at the water's edge of Hilo Bay. Says the rooms are pure luxury . . . and the view is

THE Kauai Surf

"He called it a swingin' place. Says it has a beautiful big white sand beach called Kalapaki, and a new 9 hole par 35 golf course too. And you can surf, sail, paddle an outrigger canoe, go ti leaf sliding (that sounds like fun!), dine in a penthouse, or one of three other places, dance, play tennis, see a nightly show and I forget what else."

"I KNOW WHAT I'LL DO. I'LL GO TO THE NANILOA AND THE KAUAI SURF!"

May we send you brochures to help you decide? A postcard will do.

If you don't demand luxury all the way and can face the possibility of minor discomforts and delays, you may always cherish the memory of flying into the heart of Guatemala's northern jungle to see the mysterious tall temples the Mayans built at Tikal around the time of Christ.

You can see Tikal in a day-long excursion from your hotel in Guatemala City. Or you can stay over at Tikal's small Jungle Lodge. Its accommodations ($64 for two days, and one night, including meals) seem more than adequate when you learn that even the drinking water is brought in by plane. It also serves lunch ($3) to transient visitors.

Aviateca flies a DC-3 to Tikal ($33 round trip) several times a week (check a day in advance), leaving about 7:30 A.M. You fly first across hills, then real mountains, finally nothing but flat green jungle. There may be a brief stop at Flores, on large Lake Petén Itzá. A little over an hour from Guatemala City, you see Tikal's temples, tallest the Mayans ever built. Here's where your guys beat our guys. Come back, all is forgiven.

This is Old Fort York. Just about all there was to the city of Toronto way back in 1813. After your guys got through with it, there wasn't even this much! Friendship has been restored for over 150 years, but Canada's many fortresses just keep right on surrendering. To tourists from both sides of the border. Take Fort Henry in Kingston, Ontario. Every summer day, the precision-trained guard displays the drill, 19th century uniforms and equipment of the Royal Garrison Artillery and British line regiments of 1867. They even shoot off the ancient, zle-loading cannon, weather permitting. Everywhere you n Canada, there are reminders of our early history... ort MacLeod, Alberta, in restored Gold Rush towns British Columbia's Barkerville, and in recreated pioneer villages like Upper Canada Village at Morrisburg. (Not far from Kingston, so you could see Fort Henry and the Village the same day). And if you're ever down Cape Breton way, be sure to visit Fortress Louisbourg. In the 18th century, it was known as the "Gibraltar of the New World". Why not plan a small invasion of your own to Canada this summer? Obviously, we're ready for you.

The physical similarities to north-of-the-border country make other differences seem less strange—all except for the language. You are in a foreign country. About 75 miles south of Hermosillo, the desert changes subtly. Perhaps it's the landscape looking more violent, like the surface of the moon; perhaps it's the faint tang of sea air. You are nearing the area people call Guaymas, actually three places.

The first is announced by a paved side road and the Guaymas equivalent of the billboard: white rocks on a mountain spelling "San Carlos," and an arrow to the right. This road passes salt flats, laced with the informal road tracks of shellfish seekers, beside the sprawling lagoon called Estero Soldado—your first view of water. Early in the morning you may see a cluster of fishermen handling a net, or perhaps oyster diggers, or probers of the estero's clam beds.

Farther along, a sand spit separates the lagoon from a long crescent beach on the Gulf. The road will be thronged on a Sunday afternoon with Mexicans, a watermelon vendor, a free-lance renter of horses, a crowd at the beer-garden Balneario San Carlos. SLEEPY ALAMOS

This old colonial town is part ruin, part restoration. The time to see it is now... before too much of the past disappears

The discovery of silver in 1683 started the mining boo made Alamos a city. A century later the town had 10 t many people as it has today, and here (in 1781) the S destined to found the pueblo of Los Angeles began the ney to the far land that was to become Southern Cali

Not laid out for and still unclogged by cars, Alamos is best for walking. Street arrangement is whimsical, but you can't really get lost. On foot, you see a rich sequence of architectural detail, but the sensual impressions are bound to be stronger: a wall the color of boysenberry sherbet, a grandmother's face in the dimness behind a jalousied street window, voices of a class reciting in unison in an open-windowed school, a flaming bougainvillea in a sunny interior patio, the clip-clop of horses' hooves on cobbles, silence inside the church—its bells still this month, during Lent.

An excellent illustrated walking or driving guide to the town, called just Alamos, sells for 20 pesos at the shop of the Casa de los Tesoros (this and the Galería Alamos shop on the plaza are the two best shopping places in town). You can hire a taxi driver for 30 pesos an hour, or an English-speaking driver (at the Casa de los Tesoros) for $5 a half day to take you around town and into one or two restored houses and gardens. Anglers who have their own boats go to Mocuzari Reservoir, off the Navojoa road, for the bass. Some visitors take the daily mail bus to backwoods San Bernardo; the ride is a country social affair with spontaneous singing. Some go to nearby Uvulama to see the women make pottery. And some go to Aduana to see the mines, the somnolent village, the little church and its miraculous cactus—where the wealth of Alamos began.

MODERN SONORA

Landscaped boulevards in the towns . . . trailers and campers on the beaches . . . fighting fish in the Gulf, if you are lucky

Travelers who return to Sonora after some years' a notice some changes. One of the most noticeable architecture—often very good, frequently surprisi examples are the border crossing station in Nogal railroad stations at Nogales and Hermosillo, the in Obregón.

This makes a fascinating contrast to existing adol and nineteenth century colonial styles, and to the castle style of public building that echoes the state' military history—notably in the splendid city jail in the fortress at Ortiz, the city hall in Alamos.

A new look is also coming to the highway entra Sonoran towns. Conscious of the important first gained by passing motorists on their way to Octol pics, the towns have been hard at work embelli entrances with planted median strips, new street li paving—and always a statue or monument.

The new environment shows in a different way in residential areas, especially in Hermosillo and Obre areas are worth a drive off the main streets to see landscaped avenues, the inventive designs of thei new houses, and the luxuriant new gardens.

Large old trees give the towns a sense of oasis in The trademark tree of Sonoran towns is probably the Indian laurel, but no city plaza is without its curi trunked kapok trees.

And the cityscape is colorful. One surprise of Sonora —tapering off now after peak bloom in January. O are fragrant now and bright with fruit, orchid t flower, bougainvilleas are riots of vermilion and purp gold vines are splashy with yellow.

Traffic is changing. There's more of it, but except not what a West Coast resident would describe as it a transplant. On second look you know it's not: Shelves do hold familiar brands, but even more that are unfamiliar. And cans and jars may contain guava, mango, sea turtle, abalone, paella—or aromatic Mexican instant coffee.

The marvelous fishing that has brought world fame to Guaymas bears an inverse relation to the marvels of the climate. When the late winter-early spring climate is at its most appealing, there are days when the chief pleasure of a fishing expedition is the weather—and you need a really knowing guide to find and catch yellowtail, red snapper, or whitefish.

But soon, along with the weather's warming in spring, comes the bigger game: first striped marlin, then sailfish and black marlin, for a May-through-September season. Guaymas holds its game fishing tournament in July each year.

Summer in Sonora is just downright hot, but that does not deter such visitors as confirmed anglers, families whose vacations are tied to school schedules, or desert dwellers for whom it's not a radical change.

At the coast at Guaymas a sea breeze, daily until about mid-August, has some cooling effect. The summer heat is humid and comes from the same air masses that move up from the tropics to bring thunderstorms to our southwest deserts and even as far north and west as Los Angeles. And the littoral of Sonora shares, with the Gulf and Baja California, the turbulent, near-hurricane storms called chubascos that sometimes occur during the July-to-October rainy season.

Pink flowering plum Prunus blireiana was discovered April 10, 1901, near the French town of Bléré. Edouard André had planted seeds of a beautiful purple-leaf plum from the garden of the Shah of Persia, and seeds of the ancient and elegant Japanese flowering apricot. The trouble was, he couldn't remember which he planted where. When one seedling produced exquisite semidouble pink flowers instead of the single white ones of the plum, André knew that he had a good thing, but he didn't know whether it was plum or apricot. Actually it was a hybrid of the two, a new pink flowering marvel, the tree on this month's cover, photographed last March in Los Altos, California gray-foliaged plants. Several trees lined up along a street, driveway, path, or garden fence are stunning in bloom or leaf.

Perhaps because it is a partially sterile hybrid, perhaps because spring flowers come on too early for successful pollination, P. blireiana produces only a few scattered fruits or (more likely) no fruits at all—a habit that makes it highly suitable for planting near decks, paved patios, walks, and driveways. Trees planted in such situations should, of course, be trained high enough for easy traffic beneath. P. blireiana grows well in a container. It is possible to keep a tree in good health for several years in a 2-foot-square, 2-foot-deep box or container.

Trees tolerate most soils but need fairly good drainage; if planted in an area where soil stays wet, trees should be set in a raised bed with the soil surface at least 6 to 12 inches above surrounding grade. Stake young trees and prune carefully to control form and keep branches high enough for good traffic circulation. If you prune at flowering season you can use cut branches in arrangements.

Insect pests can be a bother. Spray to control aphids, caterpillars, and spider mites. Watch base of trunk for peach tree borers and treat with DDT or lindane in late spring if damage is evident.

There may be a few bare-root trees left in the nurseries; don't wait too long to look for them, because nurserymen will be canning them up, especially if the weather is warm. Trees are also available in 5-gallon and larger containers; these will be heavily budded or in bloom if they were canned up last spring.

BOO-YA-BESS

The great sea-soup of southern France

Bouillabaisse, the great seafood soup of southern France, has an elusive nature: It's seldom quite the same from one encounter to the next. The contents of a bouillabaisse (pronounce it boo-ya-bess) depend on the fish available in an area or season—and on the whim of the chef.

As you might expect, bouillabaisse has this same happily accidental character wherever it's prepared. The Western version that follows makes a laudable main dish for an informal dinner party.

The saffron-scented tomato broth of this bouillabaisse hints at its Provençal heritage. Widely used in Mediterranean cooking, saffron imparts a distinctive, softly bitter flavor and a brilliant golden color. It is the costliest of all spices, but in most dishes you use but a touch of it. If you wish, you can substitute turmeric in this recipe; it gives a similar color, although the flavor is milder.

To make the bouillabaisse ahead, prepare and refrigerate the tomato base up to the point of adding the saffron. Before serving, reheat it, add saffron and fish, and simmer until fish are cooked.

This version of bouillabaisse was created by the chef of a small French restaurant, La Marmite, in Carmel, California. You can find his choice of fish and shellfish in well stocked fish markets along the entire Pacific coast.

Sablefish is sometimes sold under the name of black cod or butterfish; salmon could be used in its place. Any rockfish may be used; other names for it are rock cod, red snapper, and Pacific ocean perch. If you're unable to obtain clams in shells, use canned ones, drained.

Accompany this bouillabaisse with French bread (spread with garlic butter and heated), a chilled white wine, and steamed rice. Each diner spoons some rice into his bowl as he makes room for it. Follow the main course, or precede it, with a crisp green salad bathed in an oil-and-vinegar dressing.

CARMEL BOUILLABAISSE

- 3 large cans (1 lb. 12 oz. each) tomatoes
- ½ cup water
- 1 teaspoon each salt and whole thyme
- 2 small bay leaves
- ¼ teaspoon white pepper
- 1½ pounds large shrimp or prawns
- 2 dozen small hardshell clams
- ½ pound scallops
- 4 frozen lobster tails, thawed
- 3 sablefish or salmon steaks (about 1½ lbs.), skinned and boned
- 1 pound rockfish fillets
- ⅛ teaspoon powdered saffron or ¼ teaspoon turmeric

In a large pan (about 5-quart size) combine tomatoes, water, salt, thyme, bay leaves, and pepper. Bring to a boil, reduce heat, and simmer, covered, for 20 minutes. Discard bay leaves; press tomato mixture through a fine strainer, reserving broth.

To prepare fish, shell and devein shrimp; rinse clams and scallops with cold water; cut lobster tails in half lengthwise; cut the sablefish and rockfish into about 1½-inch chunks.

Bring broth to a boil in a large deep pan (at least 6-quart size). Stir in saffron. Add shellfish and fish. Simmer, covered, for 10 to 15 minutes, or until shrimp and lobster turn pink and fish flakes easily. Remove from heat and loosen lobster meat from shells; return to fish mixture. Serve soup immediately, distributing some of all the fish into each bowl. Makes 8 servings.—C. H., Carmel, Calif.

You can also train Sasanquas in standard or tree form: outstanding examples grow in the Descanso Gardens in La Canada, California. These tree Sasanquas were grafted onto Japonica understock at ground level; a single stem was allowed to grow to a 4-foot height, then nipped to force side branching. After growing in containers for 10 years, the plants were set out 2 years ago in an open position adjacent to (but not under) high branching trees that cast filtered shade in the late afternoon.

The Japonica standard on the left was planted in the ground as a fully branched shrub in 1961, and transplanted into its present container in 1963. Before potting, lateral growth was removed from the main stem up to 4 feet, and remaining branches were shortened to about 8 inches from the supporting stem. For support, and to keep it straight, the trunk was tied at frequent intervals to a strong stake. Four years later, in early spring, the plant looked as you see it here. It no longer needs a stake, and the head requires very little pruning.

The easy way to add an extra fireplace

"Official approval" is the key phrase to remember when you're choosing a prefabricated metal fireplace.

Such fireplaces are usually about as easy to install as a kitchen stove, but they must be installed under a building permit. And here's where "official approval" comes in: In most cities and towns in the West, building inspection departments now routinely approve installation of any fireplace unit that has passed the rigorous tests set by the International Conference of Building Officials (ICBO). The building department in your area probably has a rather impressive file on such units—there are some 20 different types, most with several models.

Units without ICBO approval, and custom units, usually must meet the complex requirements of the Uniform Building Code, which is interpreted differently in different jurisdictions.

You can also make approximate measurements with parts of your body — quite accurately once you know your own dimensions. Besides your height, and the "built-in" inch, foot, and fathom measurements shown here, you can determine how close to a yard the distance is from your nose to the end of a stretched-out arm; and you can check your stride for measuring long distances.

Don't try to change your stride to exactly 3 feet; use your natural stride, and count how many steps carry you a distance of 100 feet (it's usually 30 to 35 strides).

ou'll find a check list of things to do each month rden ready. The text that follows supplies some xplain the more involved acts on the list.

204 there's a form chart giving good and bad the June-flowering plants that you might consider. phs on these pages were taken last year in a fornia garden as it was being prepared and, later, during a wedding reception that took place on June 25.

What happens first? When realization penetrates the thought processes of the garden-keeper that he is going to have perhaps several hundred people in his garden on a given date, there comes a sort of knee-kick reflex. Even when the date is months away, he's seized by the housekeeper's frenzy: "Company's coming so I'd better get this place cleaned up."

Put down that urge. You'll waste precious time if you begin to clean the place up now. Many more winds are going to blow before June. Instead, take advantage of your lead time, in March, to lay plans and make commitments.

First plans to make are with the "crowd engineer"—the caterer you have booked for the reception, or a wedding consultant, someone who's been through this mill many times. Have that person come to your home and tell you how he thinks you should handle the event, in detail—everything from where the reception line will be to where the bouquet will be thrown.

The second person to consult in early March is a plant-and-design consultant—a landscape architect, nurseryman, florist, or a green-thumbed, hard-nosed friend or acquaintance who has done this kind of thing many times. Tell him what you and the crowd engineer have decided. Carry a notebook and take a full set of notes as you go.

After you've gone all through the garden (the house too, if it figures in) and decided what you will plant where, go back over the list of plants and decide with the consultant when each plant can be planted in order to have it in bloom on the wedding day.

Plant for bold display. Avoid little fussy beds. Avoid intricacies. Your planting should make the day festive; it should be in keeping with the significance of a wedding, and in scale with the outdoors.

You will probably want to order some plants grown in containers in a greenhouse. They should be large plants in large containers. Pots under 10-inch size will probably go unnoticed and might just be something for someone to trip over.

Some plants that you will want to plant out in April or May might normally be in short supply when planting time comes. As soon as you've decided on a planting list, place orders with a nurseryman, florist, or greenhouse grower for all plants—for containers and hanging baskets, those that go in the ground, and even the cut flowers. Order some extra items for both sun and shade, because something is going to go wrong somewhere and you'll need them.

Aim to have all flower beds planted by May 15 if possible, or at the very latest by two weeks before the wedding. Except in the possible case of such stiff-limbed items as hydrangeas, pelargoniums, and forced chrysanthemums, you cannot make a flower bed look natural with last-minute planting. Unless soft plants get two weeks or more to settle in, the plantings will look stuffed, like those you see at new model homes.

Tree pruning comes very early in March because you should let maximum light and heat through to garden beds beneath during the spring to force possible growth. This is very important with evergreen trees, and fairly important with deciduous ones—they may be lightly foliaged in March, but they will have developed maximum leaf density by June.

If the trees are small, you can thin out the branches yourself. If they are over 20 feet high, it would be safer to hire the work done by a commercial tree pruner. Unless the tree is in bad health, you want a thinning job, with a pole saw or lopping shears, not a major pruning. Some commercial tree pruners seemingly have an emotional attachment to their chain saws and would rather amputate with them than anything else; tell them this time to leave the chain saw idle.

Although it may seem like folly to thin a tree and then feed it, that's what we recommend. A feeding—again by a tree crew, using large injectors to put liquid fertilizer down at the root level—will bring on plenty of fresh growth where buds remain after thinning.

One act of garden construction that you should start early (March) would be digging trenches for any utilities that you will want to put into the garden—underground wires for night lighting, water pipes, or even gas pipes for torches or heaters. Roots will be cut and they'll need maximum recovery time. Also, you will probably want to plant over excavated strips.

If your trees are overgrown, consider thinning them. And after thinning, feed them

March is action time. If old plants need a move, act. If you need new shrubs, plant

If time is limited, just dig the trenches, install the lines, cap them temporarily at the ends, and refill trenches. Then in May, you can go back and install the equipment at the capped end.

At the time you go over your garden with the design consultant you may find plants that could wisely be transplanted. Perhaps you presently have one kind of plant spotted here and there but you'd have a better effect on the party day if all were brought together into one colony. Or, you may have some prickly shrubs too close to paths where they might snag guests. March is the time to do any such moving.

At the same time you do the transplanting, plant any new shrubs that you have decided would be helpful. These shrubs won't grow much bigger by June than they are when you buy them in March.

Vines take a long time to establish and perform as you want. With the possible exception of large-flowered clematis in the Northwest and star jasmine in hot parts of the Southwest, the only vines you could count on would be fast-growing annual ones, and they are a gamble. Generally speaking, forget vines.

If you have openings or walkways that would be improved with a trellis, arch, or arbor over them on the wedding day, look into the possibility of renting arches or arbors from a florist, display rental firm, or theatrical supply house. From such places, you often can order an arch of any size covered with a plastic vine—plastic stems, leaves, and flowers of your own choice.

Many good gardeners have a reasonable aversion to plastic flowers. To them we point out that when you prepare for a happening like this, showmanship becomes inextricably mixed with horticulture. Use some Hong Kong flora and don't feel bad about it.

About the lawn, some people say it's foolish to use a lot of time working it up to perfection for a wedding reception because after the first 20 guests arrive it won't be seen. But there are good arguments to the contrary. For one thing, you might as well have the lawn look nice for the first 20. Also, some areas will not be stood upon much and will be seen by all. And, finally, there is that everlasting challenge to make every part perfect, even the lawn.

If grass or dichondra was sparse last summer, look now to the possibility that roots from surrounding trees are starving it. Dig root-severing trenches around the sides in March (see page 64 of the July 1967 Sunset). Feed lawns now and often enough all spring to keep them growing vigorously (strong growth between now and June will keep weeds out).

In California lawns go bad in late summer as a result of a complex of lawn fungus diseases. Most likely, this complex won't strike as early as June, but you can play safe by spraying or treating monthly with a broad-spectrum fungicide. If your lawn has chronically been haven to sod webworms, grubs, or other insects, you might also begin treatment in April.

If the lawn is the bane of your gardening life, put it in the hands of a commercial pest control man early in the spring.

Now, let's say it's April. This is the month to begin planting in the ground—plant everything from the master list as soon as it becomes available and the ground is workable.

Weather permitting, there will be much to plant in California and Arizona and some interior sections. In western Oregon and Washington and some colder interior regions, the bulk of the planting will come after May 1 or 15.

As a matter of course, dig soil conditioner thoroughly into each planting bed before you plant. And feed at planting time —either by putting a small measure of a safe, dry fertilizer (read the label) in soil around the roots or by watering in with a liquid fertilizer. On a calendar make a note of each planting date and feed each again two weeks after planting, and then every 30 days. Use a complete fertilizer, one relatively high in phosphoric acid and soluble potash. It should indicate on the label that feeding of flowering plants is one of its main uses.

In April dry spells can begin to come to California. (But you never know—if you said "dry spell" to a beleaguered, wet, determined wedding gardener last April, he'd have thrown rocks at you.) When and if dry spells do come, begin watering to keep the still-shallow roots growing on the young annuals.

In early May take a critical look at your lawn. If there are some spots that are hopelessly thin and you doubt that you'll see any thickening by the wedding day, overseed them with annual rye grass. Mow the existing grass low. Rake the lawn hard to expose as much mineral soil as possible, sow the seed, scatter a very thin veneer of ground bark or peat moss over the seeded area. Keep it soaked for the next two weeks.

There's a more drastic procedure to correct a hopeless lawn at this stage—install sod from a sod grower (see page 62 of the September 1967 Sunset). This is what was done to the poor lawn in the garden photographed here. The old lawn was thin in the corners because it was too shaded, and it was bare in the middle where it was the floor under a much-used swing.

In the middle or end of May, check your trees and large shrubs to see if any infestations of sucking, honeydew-drip are developing. We refer chiefly to aphids and scale small infestation can explode into a catastrophic very quickly at this time of year. And you know would mean—sticky stuff dropping out of trees thing and everybody beneath. If you have had s tions in the past, you might expect them again. I any doubt about identification or treatment, call mercial pest control man to examine and treat as

Other insects that could destroy or detract from would be the flying ones, the most annoying of wh lowjackets. If you have any, call the pest control what he can do, or try it yourself. Trapping ye is ineffective. Best control is to trace them late (almost at dusk) to their source, usually a nest in or in brush. After dark, pour gasoline or insecti entrance, and then plug it.

Two sprayings with dibrom five days apart on plants, garden surfaces, and the garbage can (inside will reduce or eliminate source of mosquitoes and if they come from your premises. For mosquitoes, standing water. Look for it in obvious places, plus (fill them with sand) and leaking septic tanks leaks). If you can't eliminate water, dose it with or oil. Since you are using water as a medium to hold the dirt, the unit can be used to pick up liquids as well as dry material. You can vacuum up accidental spills, and a squeegee nozzle sold with the unit can be used for window washing and floor mopping. You just dip the nozzle into a cleaning solution, use the wet-mop side for cleaning, the squeegee side for drying.

As with all central vacuum cleaning systems, the price depends to an extent on the size of your house. The basic unit costs about $500, and requires a space 84 inches tall and 34 inches wide and deep. It needs a drain 2 inches or more in diameter and a water pressure of at least 10 pounds per square inch.

Instant hot water in a small space

Hot water heaters with a reservoir tank are so standard now in single-family houses that most people have probably forgotten that any other kind exists. In Europe, however, the instant heater is the rule, as it was years ago in this country. Very large instant heaters are still in use here in places where demand is great, such as apartment houses or gymnasiums, but these units are expensive both to install and to operate.

Recently, small heaters have become easier to find in the West.

The disadvantage of instant heaters is that they require a great deal of heat and consequently more fuel, since cold water is heated as it flows to the tap.

But they have advantages for special situations. The instant heaters made for houses are quite small, since they need no large tank to hold heated water, nor any insulation to keep it hot. Secondly, you can't run out of hot water, since the water is heated as you use it.

These advantages make instant heaters excellent for small vacation cabins where space is at a premium and where large groups of people may all need hot water at the same time of day. Small size also makes such heaters useful on a boat where a reservoir heater may be hard to install.

A small instant heater is also excellent for a garage or workshop where hot water is needed only occasionally.

Gas-fired instant heaters, primarily English or German products, are often available through trailer and boat supply houses for use with LP gas at a cost of about $80. You can adapt them to natural gas where it is available.

Before buying you should inquire how much hot water the unit will produce, since some are intended only for washing a few dishes, but not for bathing. Minimum capacity for showering is about 30 gallons an hour at a 100° rise in temperature. If your cold tap water is at about 40° to 60°, this will give you ½ gallon of very hot water per minute.

Concrete blocks where trucks can't go

On building sites where a sharp slope or limited access makes it difficult for trucks to move around, it is often expensive and complicated to pour foundation walls or retaining walls of reinforced concrete. If you're planning a house on a hillside, you might talk to your contractor about using concrete blocks instead of a poured foundation. Blocks now available fit together tightly to eliminate some mortar joints and cut the amount of labor.

It is still necessary to pour a concrete footing for the blocks, but the amount of concrete and the form work needed is negligible compared to that needed for a full foundation.

The blocks must be reinforced with both vertical and horizontal steel reinforcing rods following local building codes. Once laid, they are filled with a concrete grout so that the finished wall is solid. Building codes usually specify a maximum height for masonry walls that bear a load, but single-family houses will rarely need foundations exceeding the maximum.

Concrete block is available in several colors and also in decorative patterns for areas where large surfaces will be exposed.

How to make a glass and plastic window

This gay panel, offshoot of traditional art, is resin-coated glass framed by a

With plastics now so readily available as an art medium, more and more people are working with them to create new effects.

Simulated stained-glass windows, especially attractive results of this trend, can be made with a few special materials, in two or three days, and by a beginner.

MATERIALS

You will need a pane of inexpensive glass or transparent acrylic, cut at the glass shop to the desired size. (If you use a glass pane, avoid cut fingers by binding the edges with masking tape.)

You will also need sheet lead strips for the design outline. Cut the strips from pieces of sheet lead, available at plumbing supply stores for about 90 cents a pound (a square foot weighs approximately 2½ pounds). Sheet lead is malleable and easy to cut; measure strips of equal width and cut with kitchen scissors or metal shears. Although pre-cut lead strips may be available in a hobby shop, they usually have rounded edges that do not retain the resin as do the strips you cut yourself.

You will also need polyester casting resin; a catalyst; resin dyes; and perhaps, a thixotropic filler (see below). Try to purchase resin in the manufacturer's original can; you can find it at most hobby and marine supply stores. Some hobby stores divide large quantities into their own smaller, unmarked cans, and with these there is the possibility of receiving inaccurate directions.

Other materials you will need are a special lead-to-glass adhesive or white glue; implements for stirring and spreading the resin (ice cream sticks and toothpicks work well); small, disposable wax-coated paper cups; acetone or fingernail polish remover; and rubbing alcohol.

THE DESIGN

Trace your design on a sheet of paper sized to fit the pane. Keep the design simple, with large open spaces. You might look for ideas in coloring books or the lead-strip cartoons available at many hobby shops.

Measure an ounce of resin into a wa coated paper cup. Add dye to the res Mix thoroughly and slowly with an i cream stick so as not to incorporate bubbles.

At this point you may take the option adding thixotropic filler to the resin. T filler thickens the resin (on its own, syrupy consistency) and makes it easi to control. If you plan to work on ad tional resin projects you might consid purchasing one of these commercial fille usually available in quantities of pounds and up. Cast only one color at a time, and allo to dry thoroughly before the next casting If resin is not dry, the next casting ma run into it and blend or mottle the colors The resin may take from ½ hour to over night to harden, depending on such fac tors as humidity, temperature, and color

THE FINAL STEPS

After casting all the colors you want i the design, cover the rest of the pan with clear or lightly tinted resin for a authentic stained-glass effect. (If you have used masking tape around the edges of a glass pane, remove the tape before you apply this resin.)

If you have used a thixotropic filler, you may have to paint a thin coat of clear catalyzed resin over the dry resin for a brighter gloss.

Allow to dry, and remove any resin on the lead strips or back of glass with acetone or fingernail polish remover.

Frame or mount as you desire. Avoid placing the resin window in direct sunlight. Some colors have a tendency to fade.

Vacation? Vacation!

Of course it all depends on you —what kind of time you think a vacation should be. Alaska isn't everyone's Utopia. Let's see if it's yours. Take this simple quiz and we'll score you on whether Alaska is right for you and/or you are right for Alaska:

1) Enjoy seeing spectacular sights like great glaciers, magnificent mountains, abundant wildlife, unspoiled beauty of nature. ____yes ____no.

2) Seek a place without freeways, smog, too many people —and the frantic pace. Long for the great outdoors, where there's over two square miles of elbow room for every man, woman and child—and you can breathe the cool, clean air of the last frontier. ____ yes ____ no.

3) Adventure-minded. Want to see and do things never experienced before. Like to shake hands with an Eskimo, pan for gold, hunt caribou. ____ yes ____ no.

4) Long to meet a new kind of people: friendly, gregarious, enthusiastic. Folks who are allergic to apathy because they're too excited about where and how they live. ____ yes ____ no.

5) Desire an escape from conventional ways of travel. Would go for cruising wondrous waterways on a modern ferryliner through a magnificent land. Or travel a narrow gauge railway over a gold rush trail. Or hop a float plane to a secluded lake. Even ride in a walrus-skin boat. ____ yes ____ no.

If you checked one or more "yes," plan to see Alaska now. You'll love it. If you checked all questions "no," come up anyway. We'd like to change your outlook.

Your downspouts usually collect and discharge the most rainwater that needs to be drained away from the house

How good is your drainage?

Whenever anyone builds a house on a lot, the ability of that piece of ground to absorb and gently drain away a downpour of rain is reduced greatly, often by half or more. Roofs, patios, and driveways do not retain rainwater; they run it off somewhere immediately. And the excavations, fills, and leveling made during construction change the ground's contours, with the result that puddles and washouts may occur even in a gentle rain.

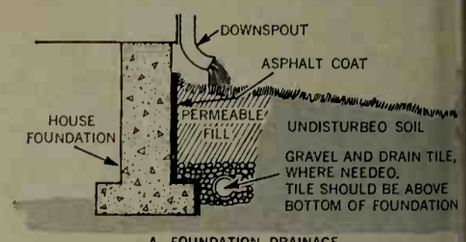
Most of these drainage problems are usually solved during a house's construction by some of the simpler means we describe on these pages; but if your home is new, you should keep a close watch this time of year on how and where rainwater collects and drains away. If there are any drainage problems (there usually are some), you may be able to prevent further damage by correcting them now.

If your home is several years old, the drainage has probably been well taken care of. It is further helped by landscaping. Established plants and lawns hold soil and water in place, and they transpire a sizable amount of excess rainwater into the atmosphere when the sun reappears. But even a fully landscaped home can have some drainage problems that will never go away with usual procedures.

DOWNSPOUTS

The deluge from your downspouts is usually the major immediate source of water that needs to be carried somewhere aw from the house. It should be piped to toward a storm sewer or drainage dit if one is convenient to you, or piped a dry well, or at least led a very mi mum of 2 feet away from the house fou dations toward ground that slopes awa

Carrying the downspout water away important not only to prevent flooding planting beds alongside your house b



A. FOUNDATION DRAINAGE

Even thong it may be carefully graded to slope awa from the house, the backfill (often trash filled) remains soft and permeable fo many years, so that any sizable amoun of water dumped on it will fill it as if were a tank, especially if there is no drai tile along the base of the foundation.

If you just to aim downspout water away from oundations, you can use the 2-foot rete splash blocks available at lumrds, but if there is any indication ooding the foundations, you should the water a few feet farther away a pipe, trough, or ditch.

B. INTERCEPTING DITCHES

ersed throughout the house's length is less likely to work its way down ler the foundations in quantity. In this ation, you may need only to slope the away from the house, or you may need to plant sturdy shrubs or lay ravel strip or the like under the eaves prevent the falling water from eroding soil and splashing mud against the es of the house.

netimes, particularly on the uphill side a sloping lot, you may need more inage — perhaps a line of perforated e or drain tile in a foot-wide ditch filled h gravel to carry the roof's water away, shown in sketch B.

other place where drainage becomes tical is on the uphill side of a hillside . There, your house foundation walls d garden retaining walls may act as ky dams, containing water or divert- g excess water to where it isn't wanted. d level lawns and planting beds can come collecting ponds for surface and ound water flowing down the hillside.

he answer is usually fairly obvious— d simple to achieve because you have a definite slope for draining excess water away. Also, most homes built on a slope in an area with heavy rainfall have drain tile along the foundation bottoms on all uphill sides (sketch A) and have those foundation walls coated with asphalt to resist water penetration through them.

That foundation drainage usually keeps your crawl space or basement dry, but it has little effect on patio slabs and gardens above it on the hillside. For those areas, a line of drain pipe or tile laid in a gravel-filled ditch across the uphill side of the lot (sketch B), with the pipe draining off to one side of the house or both, will usually take care of the excess water. It's best to have this intercepting drainage ditch 15 feet or more away from the house; and if at all possible, the ground and patio slabs should slope down from the house toward this ditch.

A retaining wall with drainage pipe or tile behind it, as shown in sketch C, serves the same purpose as the intercepting ditch; the drain also prevents excessive water pressure from building up behind the wall and collapsing it.

Any hillside drainage piping needs to be led to or towards a storm sewer, ditch, or natural drainage where the concentration of storm water will not cause damage to property farther down the hillside.

LOWLAND DRAINAGE

Often real drainage problems are presented by the house built in a hollow or flat area that has no natural drainage at all. The best answer is to make the foundations fairly high when building the house and to bring in earth fill to raise the ground level around the house so the foundations will not appear high and so the land will slope away from the house.

It's also advisable to build where there are community storm sewers or ditches that either drain or pump excess water away. If your home was built close to the ground in a lowland, where there is no community drainage, you may have a drainage problem that you'll simply have to live with. One possible answer is to dike off your property from the surrounding area with earth fills and to make it more absorbent with dry wells.

Several dry wells dug down through a somewhat impervious topsoil to a sandy

RESEARCH

Good companies are not always good investments

Sound contradictory? It really isn't when you think about it.

Many times the market price of stock in a fine, well-managed company will outstrip the fundamental value represented by the stock. In other words, the marketplace simply overvalued the stock. This is not a reflection on the quality of the company, but rather a reflection on the enthusiasm of the stock-buying public. Often, the public fails to realize that the real key to investment success lies in correctly analyzing the relationship between fundamental value and market price.

Making such evaluations is one of the functions of the Dean Witter & Co. Research Department, one of the largest and we feel one of the finest in the country. They maintain a constantly-updated list in which 800 issues are rated on this, and other bases. Every Dean Witter Account Executive has this list available and will be glad to review the stocks in your portfolio in the light of current information.

If you hold high-quality issues which have become overpriced compared with other possible investments, it may be time to put the money to work in a more favorable situation.

, a spring may occur right there. The nd water level usually varies season- with the amount of rainfall, but it remain fairly constant if prevented draining away by tilted substrata act as dams, particularly in localities receive some rainfall every month.

n you've cut into a hillside to build home, you may reach this ground r level and thus create a spring of s that will keep a concrete slab, crawl e, or basement almost continually p. The answer is the same as for ace hillside drainage—to install drain or tile along the bottoms of the up- foundation walls and to coat the ls with asphalt. A deep intercepting h some distance up the hillside helps.

tch F (below) illustrates how ground er has a tendency to rise up slightly ler a large concrete slab (usually only ler a large home or building). Also, 'll occasionally find a building site ere ground water has a definite upward ssure, like an artesian well, that will e it upward underneath the smallest slabs. In either case, the ground water ll usually find its way somewhere ough any waterproofing membrane at may have been laid underneath the ab, and then, by its pressure or capil- ry action, it moves up through the con- ete to produce a damp concrete floor.

he best answer to this problem is to ace one or more lines of drain piping nderneath the slab before it is laid. hese drain lines can be level (until out- de of the slab), because they are there mply to lower the ground water level eneath the slab and to eliminate any pward pressure. If such lines were not stalled underneath a concrete slab and he slab proves to be damp, another pos- ibility is to lay lines of drain piping ompletely around the perimeter of the lab and about a foot below it.

Similarly, one or more lines of drain pipe or tile laid underneath a concrete patio lab will drain excess water away and help prevent frost heave in cold climates.

SPECIAL PROBLEMS

Hard-to-explain dampness. Sometimes a new or older house that is built on a slope with a good system of foundation drain- age and drains under large slabs will still have a damp concrete floor, damp crawl space, or damp basement in wet weather. Perhaps the drainage pipes are clogged with silt. If you can't clear them with a

You meet such good sports in the Pacific.

Elephant boys, sherpas, skiers and kendo men; you'll meet them all as you jaunt around the Pacific. You may also meet fishermen—Tahitian style—or boxers who fight with their elbows, knees and feet—Thailand style—and beach-happy surfers and lifeguards. Or you can be a sport yourself. You can surf, skin dive, scuba or just float on your back in a lovely Hawaiian lagoon. (Some travelers say Pacific water is more buoyant; actually, it just makes you feel that way.) You can get your boards into some great skiing in New Zealand, even in the middle of summer. (Their winter is our summer.) You can bag a tiger in India or a bear in Alaska, or climb a mountain in Nepal—Everest, for example. There's exciting spear-fishing in Tahiti, New Caledonia and Western Samoa. Colorful cock fights Guam. Horse racing in Hong Kong, J Alai in the Philippines. You can fis with a lasso in American Samoa or hu elephant and wild oxen in Cambodi Best of all, you're surrounded by a tra eler's favorite indoor sports: good foo and good accommodations. That's th beauty of the Pacific—the familiar con forts are close to fascinating, unfamili sights. But perhaps the greatest sport of all will be planning your trip and deciding where to go: twenty five different destinations, each offering a profusion of things to see, do, taste, touch and buy. Your travel agent can help you sort this out and tailor your itinerary. Meanwhile, read our beautiful 28-page color story, DISCOVER THE PACIFIC. It's free.

THE $125 DIFFERENCE

After the flowering vine has been carved from a single piece of wood, the hand of the Heritage finisher p up its ridges in gold. When a cabinet is given a character that mirrors much more than pure function, only more money can buy it.

You might be able to find a cabinet that looks somewhat like this for about $640. And, if all you want is a shelf to hold a pair of bronzed baby shoes, you'll be happy with it.

This Heritage cabinet costs about $765. Or $125 more than its look-alike. This cabinet was made for the person who considers a cabinet a showcase, of no less importance than the objects she puts on the shelves.

The antiqued, delicate look of the finish was built up slowly. Two coats of paint, a striping of gold, lacquer, a glazing to pick up the marks of the brush, more lacquer, a flick of some paint for distressing and a final shield of lacquer produced this elegant exterior finish. Inside, we textured the wood, added a coat of pure silver, dyed it the color of gold, then accented, mellowed and aged it.

The higher price on this cabinet, or any piece of furniture we make, buys something that only more money can buy. Whether it's the way we'll take a cabinet out of the realm of cold function or the way we'll shape a chair from its frame to hold its lines and looks.

When you see work like this, you'll find the Heritage name. Burned inside the doors of this Heritage cabinet, hiding under the cushions of a cru e velvet Heritage sofa.

If you'd like to see how He a could fit into your home, se l two dollars for a Heritage c collection and room planni kit to Dept. SS-3-68, Heri ge Furniture Company, High Po North Carolina.

CONCRETE SURFACES Your choice is almost endle

One plus feature of concrete is the almost infinite variety of ways you can finish it. You can have it smoothed, lightly or heavily brushed, washed to expose the aggregate, seeded with rock salt for a pocked effect, surfaced with handsome pebbles, swirled, scored, patterned.

Pictured on this page are two possible effects. One combines two different finishes. The other utilizes plant leaves to produce a pattern.

The two-textured effect shown above was designed by landscape architect Robert W. Chittock for the entry at the Philip Meyer house on Bainbridge Island, Washington. The pads were poured first. Each was formed with 2 by 4's on the straight edges, and with sheet metal strips on the curves. A hard rubber float was used to produce a sand finish without directional lines or swirls.

After the pads had set up sufficiently, the forms were removed and the spaces between them filled with concrete and almost immediately hosed and brushed to produce an exposed aggregate finish. Lampblack was added to this mix to darken the concrete and to sharpen the contrast.

For the concrete surface shown in the photograph below, the decorative in with the leaf imprints were cast s ately in a mold, then set in place s rest of the walk could be poured ar them. They were designed and mad Charles R. Hooper of Upland, Califo who used a tapered, 2-inch-deep mold (about ⅛-inch taper from bo of mold to open end). He coated the tom and sides of the mold with paste

Putting his name on

To prevent arguments over ownership—and to make retrieval easier if small wheeled toys are borrowed or lost—you may want to "brand" the toys your youngster owns. Cut a cardboard stencil (or large and small stencils, if the range of toy sizes is great) with his name or initials; place it on each toy in turn, and spray with enamel. Use any color that will show up well.

A piece of waxed paper, with a hole cut to frame the stencil openings, will shield the rest of the toy from vagrant paint spray.

moved the counter and lower cabinets along the inside wall toward the center of the room. Above this counter, he used space between the new backsplash and the original wall for upper cabinets and for two tin-lined storage bins. Because the upper cabinets don't project at all, the counter work space is unhampered.

The new deck (not pictured here) opens off the breakfast room and living room; the interior stairway was replaced by exterior stairs and the floor space thus freed was added to the new kitchen.

One of the pleasantest work stations in this kitchen is the tiled cooking alcove with its large picture window. The same 6-inch red quarry tiles used here were used as flooring in the breakfast room. All cabinetwork and trim is vertical grain Douglas fir; walls, appliances, counters and vinyl sheet flooring are white.

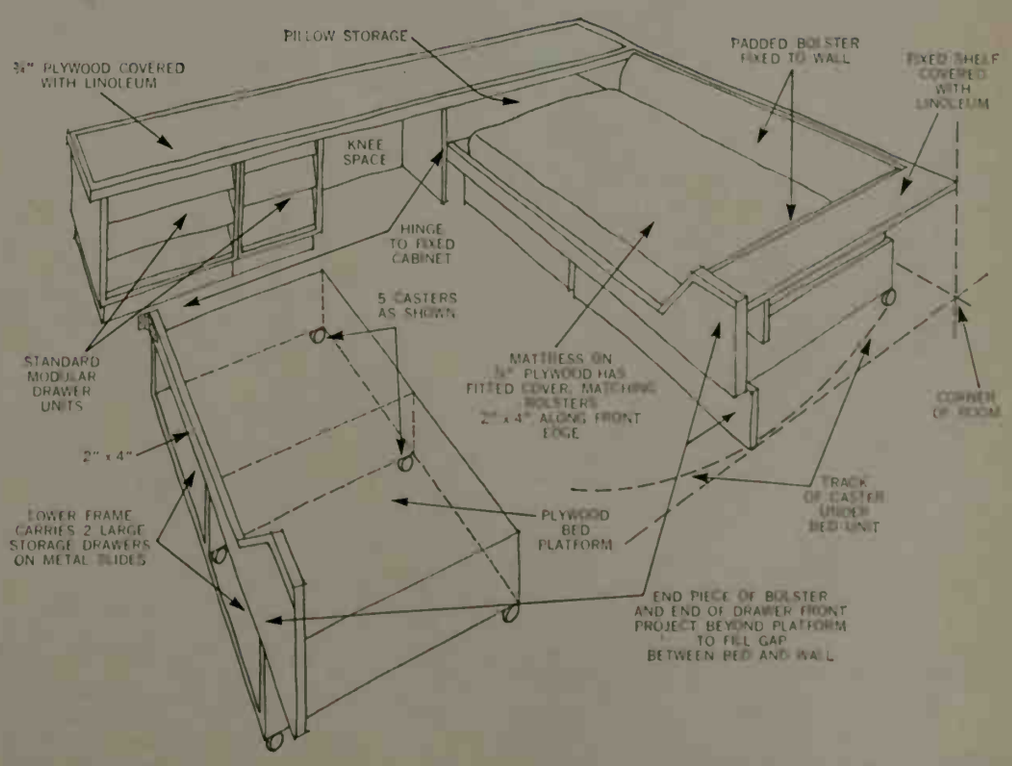
Built-ins make his small room generous

We had a great problem figuring out a good furniture arrangement for our boy's room—bed plus desk and storage in a small room only 8½ by 11½ feet. It worked out so well I decided to send it along to Sunset." So writes architect Peter Gray Scott of Oakland. And here you see how highly workable his solution was.

Where possible, Mr. Scott utilized standard commercial products. The drawer units, for example, are the kind of modular, ready-to-finish (or prefinished) units sold at furniture and department stores and at many lumberyards. The two drawers under the bed were custom-made.

Mrs. Scott upholstered the bolsters and made the mattress cover and pillow slip. The total cost of the project, including all the built-in units but not the mattress, light, pillow, or two hanging shelves above the bed, came to roughly $150.



After lo these many years our humble little bug has gone automatic.

Gone is the clutch.

Gone is the wifely whine, "It's cute, but I can't drive it."

Gone is an era of Volkswagendom. Sniff.

And in its place?

A Volkswagen you can drive all over town without shifting.

Only on the highway do you shift.

Once. (This is an economy move. Which, after all, is still the name of the game.)

But you do have a choice in the matter: you can drive it the easy way (described above). Or you can start out in low and take it through the gears like a regular stick shift.

The automatic stick shift is an option: you pay a little more.

But you do a little less.

CURRIED PEA SOUP

Served in small bowls, this soup makes a delicious first course for a company dinner. For a family lunch or supper you might serve it with tuna or ham sandwiches, or try the recipe variation that uses ham.

- 2 slices bacon
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 2 tablespoons each finely chopped onion and celery
- 1½ to 2 teaspoons curry powder
- 1 cup water
- 1 can (about 11 oz.) condensed green pea soup
- ½ cup half-and-half (light cream)
- 2 tablespoons Sherry (optional)

In a frying pan, cook the bacon until crisp; remove and drain on paper towels. Add butter to the bacon drippings in the pan and sauté the onion and celery for about 5 minutes. Stir in the curry powder. Add the water and the soup. Heat to boiling, stirring frequently. Stir in the cream and Sherry, if used. Reheat, but do not boil. Crumble the bacon and sprinkle on each bowl as you serve. Makes 4 to 6 small servings.—H. N., San Francisco

To make the pea soup with ham, omit bacon; sauté the vegetables in 2 tablespoons butter; stir in about 1½ cups diced, cooked ham with the curry powder. Garnish soup with toasted croutons when you serve.

Crumbled crisp bacon is sprinkled in each bowl of soup when it's served

CARROTS AND ARTICHOKES IN OLIVE OIL

This marinated vegetable salad is adapted from an Armenian recipe. Serve it with lamb or poultry.

- 1 bunch carrots (about 5 medium-sized carrots)
- ⅓ cup olive oil (may be part salad oil)
- ⅔ cup water
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 package (8 oz.) frozen artichoke hearts
- Lettuce for garnish (optional)

Cut carrots into ½-inch-thick diagonal slices. Heat olive oil in a large pan, add carrots, cover, and cook until partially tender, about 8 minutes. Add the water, lemon juice and peel, salt, sugar, and pepper. Bring to boiling, add the artichoke hearts, and cook until they are just tender, about 4 minutes. Lift out vegetables with a slotted spoon and arrange in a bowl. Cool vegetables and the cooking liquid separately, then pour liquid over vegetables and refrigerate for several hours.

To serve, lift vegetables out of the marinade and arrange on serving plate; spoon some of the marinade over top. Garnish with lettuce leaves, if you wish. Makes 4 to 6 servings.—E. M., Los Altos Hills, Calif.

Cooking liquid is poured over vegetables; then they chill and marinate

BANANA SPICE CAKE

- ½ cup each brown sugar, packed, and granulated sugar
- 2 medium-sized fully ripe bananas
- ¼ cup commercial sour cream
- 1¾ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon each baking powder and soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg

In a small bowl, beat the egg whites until they hold firm, moist peaks; set aside. Cream together the butter and both sugars until light. Mash the bananas (you should have about 1 cup) and add to sugar mixture with the egg yolks and sour cream; beat well. Combine the flour with the baking powder, soda, salt, and spices and sift into batter. Mix until blended. Stir in the walnuts. Fold in egg whites. Spoon into a greased 9 or 10-inch tube pan.

Bake in a 325° oven for about 50 minutes, or until cake tests done when a pick is inserted. Cool in pan about 10 minutes, then turn out and cool on a rack. Makes about 12 servings.—R. M., Roseburg, Ore.

DARROW M. WATT

Bologna rings heat on butter-roasted potatoes; serve with sour cream and pineapple

These unusual and delicious shortcut main dishes are reminiscent of more complex European dishes. The sausages that give each its unique character come in loops or long strands that you coil in the cooking pans.

Ring bologna, ring biroldo, salsiccia vin blanc, and linguisa are rather special sausages, occasionally available in refrigerator sections of well stocked supermarkets but more consistently found in good delicatessens. For this reason, we give optional choices of sausages easier to locate—pork link sausages, frankfurters, bratwurst, and Polish sausages. You might try the different suggestions just for the variety they offer. As each dish involves many flavors, a salad or bread and a light dessert can complete the meal.

The traditional Swiss dish kartoffelröst (a carefully pan-fried potato dish served with sausages) is the inspiration for these crusty, butter-baked potato bits handsomely presented with fat, juicy bologna circles. If you wish a substitute for the bologna, use the equivalent amount of frankfurters or the slender veal frankfurters.

Although you start the potatoes on top of the range, they finish browning in the oven, so be sure to allow time for the oven to reach the correct temperature.

RING BOLOGNA WITH BUTTER-ROASTED POTATOES

In an oval 11-inch or round 10-inch pan (that you can use for cooking both on top of the range and in the oven), blend together 4 cups peeled, diced, raw potatoes; 1 cup diced onion; ¾ teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; and 6 tablespoons melted butter. Spread potatoes evenly in pan. Cook over moderate heat for about 5 minutes, or until edges show signs of browning; do not stir. (If you use a heavy frying pan, such as a cast iron one, the potatoes may need to cook as long as 10 minutes to begin browning.)

To design a meal around ring sausage

mediately bake, uncovered, in a 450° n for 15 minutes. Place 2 small ring gnas (or a total of about 1 lb. sau-) on top of the potatoes and return oven for 10 minutes longer. Remove h oven and spoon ½ to 1 cup com- cial sour cream in a mound over sau- s and sprinkle with 3 or 4 thinly d green onions. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

simplified version of this family-style ian entrée combines gently sautéed ons, frozen Italian green beans, and lly (but distinctly) flavored blood sau- e. You can use the Italian biroldo g, plain or with raisins; the Portuguese rcella (or murcela); or the French bou- . You might prefer to try the dish first ng the same amount of veal bratwurst sages; if so, cover the bratwurst with ling water, let stand 15 minutes, drain, then brown with the onions as di- ted—except do not cover pan.

ROLDO AND ITALIAN EEN BEAN SAUTÉ

inly slice 3 medium-sized onions and nd with 6 tablespoons melted butter in ide frying pan. Add ½ teaspoon basil, mbled, and cook over moderately low t until onions are soft and golden with nt browning; stir occasionally.

sh onions to the sides of the pan and the center lay a biroldo ring sausage bout 1½ to 1¾ lbs.). Cover and cook ntly for 10 to 12 minutes to heat sau- ge through; turn it over after the first or 6 minutes. (An alternate method you n use if you prefer the sausage slightly isp is to cut the uncooked sausage in 2- ch lengths and place them, cut sides wn, in pan with onions; cook, uncov- ed, for 10 to 12 minutes, turning once.)

ransfer biroldo to a serving dish and ep warm. To pan add 2 packages (9 oz. ch) thawed, frozen Italian green beans d 2 tablespoons water. Cook over high at, stirring frequently, until beans are ell heated and lightly cooked; takes about 3 minutes. Salt beans to taste; spoon with onions in and around sausage. Makes 6 servings.

A separately cooked risotto (the savory Italian rice) sets off nicely the delicate salsiccia (sal-seech-chee-ah) vin blanc, or French-style pork sausage. This sausage, although credited to the French, is also found in Italian delicatessens. In place of this meat, you can use the more generally available Italian garlic-flavored pork links, salsicce (sal-seech-chay), and follow the same cooking directions; or cook regular pork sausage links by the same method, but simmer for only 10 minutes.

SALSICCIA VIN BLANC WITH RISOTTO

Neatly coil about a 1½-pound length of salsiccia vin blanc in an 8 or 9-inch frying pan and add enough water to fill pan about ¼ inch. Prick sausage lightly in several places with a fork. Cover and simmer gently for 30 minutes. Drain off juices, cover, and brown sausage in its own fat over moderate heat, turning once; use a wide spatula to guide meat.

In the meantime, combine in another pan 2 tablespoons melted butter; 1 medium-sized onion, chopped; and 1½ cups pearl (short grain) or long grain rice. Cook over moderately high heat, stirring, until rice looks translucent and onion is slightly browned.

Add 3½ cups regular strength chicken broth and cook, loosely covered, over low heat for about 18 minutes, or until rice is tender to bite; stir occasionally. Stir in ½ cup shredded Parmesan cheese and turn mixture into a serving dish; lay the sausage on top and serve. Makes 6 servings.

In the cuisines of Spanish and Portuguese-speaking people, there are several hearty, wholesome stews of similar characteristics —puchero, cocido, cozido—and this dish might well be described as a liberal interpretation of any one of them. You use canned garbanzos, thereby saving hours of simmering. The seasonings come from the spicy Portuguese linguisa (lin-gwee-sa). Other sausages you can use the same way are smoky Polish sausages or the highly seasoned Portuguese chouriço (chore-ree-so), sometimes called hot linguisa.

LINGUISA-GARBANZO STEW

In a large frying pan over moderately low heat cook ½ cup diced onion and 3 cups shredded cabbage in 2 tablespoons olive oil or salad oil until vegetables are soft and lightly browned. Stir in 3 cans (about 1 lb. each) garbanzos and liquid (also called chick peas).

Gash or cut in large chunks 2 linguisa sausage rings (or a total of about 1½ lbs.) and add to pan. Cover and simmer gently for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour into serving dish and garnish with 1 hard-cooked egg, finely mashed, and 3 or 4 pitted large ripe olives or pimiento-stuffed Spanish style olives. Makes 6 servings.

One Chef comes bearing spinach . . . another offers Greek Stroganoff in Mexican style

"More people should pay attention to spinach," affirmed one of our tasters when Chef A. L. Marshall's Fried Spinach was brought to his attention.

The fact is that spinach is not a neglected vegetable, and right now at the height of the season great quantities of the crisp, dark green leaves will be carried home from produce counters. The extraordinary thing is that with all that spinach being sold and presumably eaten, so few people admit to liking it. Only Popeye shows a real passion for the stuff, and he relies on a canned product that is efficient but inferior to fresh.

Chef Marshall's mixture is bound to change all that. He describes it as "quite hearty—not bland at all," but it's a good deal more. If you cook it as spinach should be cooked—just until wilted but still freshly green—it will be worthy of the grandest as well as the most humble of meals.

MARSHALL'S FRIED SPINACH

- 2 bunches fresh spinach (about 1½ lbs.), stems removed
- 1 small clove garlic, minced or mashed
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper

Thoroughly wash the spinach; drain. In a large frying pan with a lid, sauté the garlic in the oil and butter about 2 minutes. Add spinach, cover, and cook over low heat until spinach is wilted, about 3 or 4 minutes. Drain. Add the eggs, 2 tablespoons of the cheese, salt, and pepper, and stir gently with a fork until the egg is just cooked, about 1 minute. Turn into serving dish and sprinkle on remaining cheese. Serve immediately. Makes about 4 servings.

Some great wines are serving time at Inglenook.

Although it resembles a prison, the cellar of the Inglenook winery is really more of a finishing school.

Inside, Gamays, Cabernets, Zinfandels, Rieslings and other promising wines acquire a final touch of maturity and character in casks of white oak, some of them three hundred years old.

The amount of time a wine spends here depends on the wine. Since all Inglenook wines are sold with the year of vintage printed on the label, each wine must reach full maturity before it's bottled. Some wines serve a little time, others a lot.

We have a house rule: every wine is bottled only when it's ready, not when we are.

Not surprisingly, this strict upbringing has won a large reputation for our small winery. And one we're determined to live up to. Which means it's still possible to get a good deal more than you pay for when you buy a wine, when the wine you buy comes from Inglenook.

Example: Inglenook Chenin Blanc, a fruity, medium dry white wine, delightful served chilled with either light or rich foods. Like every Inglenook wine, it has to be awfully good to get out of our "finishing school".

The one-dish Swiss breakfast

Switzerland breakfast is often a one- meal, Birchermüsli. A doctor named cher developed this surprising mixture uncooked rolled oats, milk, nuts, and t more than 50 years ago and whim- lly named it Müsli (pronounced mewz-), a word in the Swiss-German dialect t means small mousse.

r tasters were dubious about the com- ation until they sampled it; now sev- l of them make this Swiss-style oat- al at home.

rt of the appeal of the dish is in the le range of flavor variations. You have ne choice of nuts and dried fruits to incorporate in the oatmeal mixture, and you can serve almost any fruit on top, including sliced bananas, apples, pears, or papayas; sliced or halved strawberries; halved seeded grapes; or halved orange slices.

You soak the rolled oats overnight in milk. We found that regular rolled oats, the kind that cooks in 5 to 10 minutes, or longer, gave the best texture in this dish. You may wish to experiment with different packaged and bulk rolled oats to find which you like best.

Blend the soaked oats with the other ingredients just before serving.

SWISS-STYLE OATMEAL (Birchermüsli)

- 1⅓ cups each regular rolled oats and milk
- 2 tablespoons regular or sweetened wheat germ
- 2 tablespoons currants, golden raisins, or chopped dried fruit
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup chopped toasted blanched almonds or toasted filberts
- ¼ cup honey
- 2 unpeeled, tart apples, shredded
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- Sliced fresh fruit
- Milk
- Brown sugar (optional)

Combine rolled oats and milk in a large bowl; cover and refrigerate for about 8 hours or overnight. Just before serving, mix in wheat germ, currants, salt, almonds, honey, apples, and lemon juice. Top with fresh fruit and serve immediately with milk and brown sugar. Makes 4 servings. —R. G., Ashland, Ore.

EASY CROISSANTS

A quick way to make buttery crescent rolls

New, easy method: Cut butter into part of the flour, mix in yeast batter. Cut dough circle in eight wedges; roll each, curl to make crescent

DARROW M. W

Serve warm, butter-flaked croissants with coffee for c tinental breakfast, or use like dinner rolls at other m

Travelers to Europe bring home pleasurable memories of the light, flaky, crescent-shaped breakfast rolls that go by the French name croissants. Traditionally these famous rolls are made by incorporating layers of butter into yeast dough; by repeated folding, chilling, and rolling of the dough, bakers create the thin, thin layers of butter and dough.

Recently we've discovered a remarkably simple home method of making croissants that closely resemble the traditional ones. You cut firm butter into flour (as you would when making baking powder biscuits), then blend this mixture with a yeast batter. The resulting dough is marbled with pockets of butter that form layers when rolled to a flat circle for shaping.

It's essential to keep the dough cold while making and shaping these croissants.

You can store the dough in the refrigerator up to four days, until you're ready to shape and bake the rolls. Or you can freeze the baked rolls, tightly wrapped, and reheat them before serving.

QUICK BUTTER CROISSANTS

- 1 package yeast, active dry or compressed
- 1 cup warm water (lukewarm for compressed yeast)
- ¾ cup evaporated milk, undiluted
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅓ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 5 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- ¼ cup butter or margarine, melted, cooled
- 1 cup (½ lb.) firm butter or margarine, at refrigerator temperature
- 1 egg, beaten with 1 tablespoon water

In a bowl, let yeast soften in water. Add milk, salt, sugar, egg, and 1 cup of the flour. Beat to make a smooth batter, and blend in melted butter; set aside. In a large bowl, cut the 1 cup firm butter into remaining 4 cups flour until butter particles are the size of dried kidney beans. Pour yeast batter over top and carefully turn the mixture over with a spatula to blend just until all flour is moistened. Cover with clear plastic film, and refrigerate until well chilled—at least 4 hours or up to 4 days.

Remove dough to a floured board, press into a compact ball, and knead about turns to release air bubbles. Divide dou into four equal parts. Shape one part a time, leaving remaining dough, wrapp in plastic film, in refrigerator.

To shape croissants: Roll one part of dough on a floured board into a cir 17 inches in diameter. Using a sharp kn cut the circle into eight equal pie-shap wedges.

For each croissant, loosely roll wed toward the point. Shape each roll i a crescent and place on an ungrea baking sheet with the point down; all 1½ inches of space around each croissa Cover lightly, and let rise at room te perature in a draft-free place. (Do speed the rising of the rolls by plac them in a warm spot.) When alm doubled in bulk (about 2 hours), bru with egg and water mixture. Bake 325° for about 35 minutes, or un lightly browned; serve warm. Makes

To reheat, arrange rolls in single layer baking sheet, and bake, uncovered, 350° oven for about 10 minutes.

A home ripener for fruits

If top-quality produce isn't available or you can't shop several times a week, you might want to consider a new electric appliance that ripens fruits and vegetables at home. It would enable you to buy less-ripe produce, with fewer bruises, and ripen it yourself. The new item resembles two soup bowls: a lower one to hold the produce, and an upper one, inverted, containing a special lamp that plugs into a standard outlet. Tested in the Sunset kitchens, it worked best on such fleshy fruits as avocados, papayas, pears, bananas, tomatoes, and pineapples. Instructions for use come with the appliance. It retails for about $17.

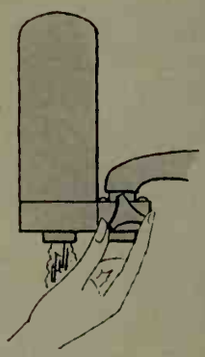
New filter to make the water taste better

Our own tests of a new water filter that attaches directly to the kitchen faucet indicate it may hold promise for people living in areas with poor drinking water. Those of our taste-testers who happen to live in an area with a private water supply that gets progressively worse during the summer months were enthusiastic about the filtered water. Other testers could detect an improvement in municipal water when filtered by the new unit.

The chrome-plated filter, about 7 inches high, diverts tap water through an activated carbon cartridge that removes the unappetizing flavors of chlorine and phur as well as foreign matter like scale, and algae. By turning a s valve, you can r normal faucet fl any time.



Cartridge life is iable—with f dirty waters, yo figure on about months for a fam four who use th tered water for ing and drinking Complete with a ers that make si fast installation possible on most ki faucets, the unit retails for about replacement cartridges cost $2.50.

At the drop of a hat

Here are three delicious suppers planned for quick preparation with no advance warning at all

Impromptu supper parties are easy to stage, provided the hostess plans ahead and keeps her kitchen equipped with the supplies she will need.

These three menus are designed for a spontaneous supper invitation whenever the occasion arises — after the theater, following a ball game, or at the conclusion of an "open house" when some of the guests decide to wind up the evening by having a meal together.

The menus rely on easy-to-stock ingredients from cupboard or freezer. Because the dining hour tends to be late for most last-minute suppers, the fare leans to the lighter side. A basic criterion for each menu is speed of preparation, since the hostess generally arrives home at the same time as the guests.

An omelet supper

Individual omelets with assorted toppings are particularly welcome fare for late evening. Since they must be made singly, they are appropriate only for a small group, say 4 to 6 guests. And fresh pineapple shells make a handsome dessert for topping off this meal; or, lacking the fresh fruit, substitute canned pineapple, perhaps served in a footed compote.

Two-Egg Omelets
Sour Cream Caviar Cherry Preserves
Asparagus Spears Crescent Rolls
Gingered Pineapple Half Shells

First prepare the pineapple dessert, cover, and refrigerate. Put rolls in to heat and cook fresh or frozen asparagus spears. Fill condiment dishes with commercial sour cream, lumpfish caviar, and cherry preserves.

Then assemble the ingredients for the omelets so you can make them one right after another. As each is made, turn it out on a warm plate and keep warm in a low oven until all are made.

Two-Egg Omelets. For each omelet, break 2 eggs into a bowl and add ¼ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon water. Beat with a fork or wire whisk just enough to mix yolks and whites. Heat 1 tablespoon butter in a 7 or 8-inch omelet pan or frying pan over medium heat until the butter sizzles. Shake pan so butter coats bottom evenly, then pour in beaten eggs, all at once. As the eggs start to set, lift edges with a fork so that the liquid on top can run under.

Repeat until liquid is gone but eggs are still moist and soft. Remove pan from heat and with a spatula flip over one-third of the omelet toward the center. Fold over the other third and lift out of pan onto hot plate. Repeat, allow omelet per person. Keep plates hot i oven until all are ready to serve.

Gingered Pineapple Half Shells. Cut l fresh pineapple in half lengthwise, ing plume intact; use a grapefruit to scoop out meat. Cut out core. and dice pineapple and return to half shells along with 1 can (11 oz.) darin oranges, drained. Sprinkle w tablespoon finely chopped ginger, i sired. Serves 6 to 8.

Tostada supper

A Mexican-style tostada is a meal in itself, with its crispy tortilla base, meat sauce, shredded cheese, and various relishes to pile on top. Rum stirred into soft coffee ice cream is the cool finale.

California Tostadas

Coffee Rum Ice Cream Cooky Rolls

Fry the tortillas and keep them warm in a low oven while simmering the meat sauce and assembling the relishes in small bowls. For 6 to 8 servings, offer several or all of the following relishes: 2 cups shredded iceberg lettuce; 1 cup shredded jack cheese; 1 small avocado, diced, or 1 can (6 oz.) guacamole sauce; 1 large tomato, chopped; and 1 can (2 oz.) sliced ripe olives.

California Tostadas. To fry the tortillas, heat ½ cup salad oil in a large frying pan over moderate heat. Using 1 dozen (1 package) corn tortillas, slip one tortilla at a time into the hot oil and cook for about 30 seconds on a side (until it bubbles and browns slightly); turn with a fork or tongs and cook other side; remove to paper towels to drain. Wrap loosely in foil and keep warm in a low oven. Offer extra tortillas as "bread."

For the meat sauce, sauté 2 finely chopped medium-sized onions in 1 tablespoon butter until golden brown; turn out of the pan and reserve. Brown 2 pounds ground chuck in pan, stirring with a fork to make it crumbly. Season with 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon garlic salt, and ¼ teaspoon ground cumin. Add sautéed onion and 2 cans (8 oz. each) tomato sauce. Cover and simmer 20 minutes. Makes enough sauce for 8 servings.

To assemble tostadas, each guest places a crisp tortilla on his plate, spoons over the meat sauce, and sprinkles on the condiments of his choice.

Then concentrate on the fettucine, which you can complete at the table in a chafing dish, if you like, or in the kitchen.

Fettucine Alfredo. Cook 1 package (12 oz.) tagliarini (fine egg noodles) in boiling salted water for 6 minutes, or until barely tender; drain thoroughly. Using a large frying pan or chafing dish, melt 6 tablespoons butter, add noodles, and pour over 1 cup whipping cream. Sprinkle with 2 cups shredded Parmesan cheese; using 2 forks, mix lightly over moderate heat until sauce blends together and coats pasta thoroughly. Meanwhile drain sauerkraut thoroughly. Spread about a third of the sauerkraut in a roasting pan, Dutch oven, or 4 to 6-quart casserole; sprinkle on about half of the remaining seasoning mixture, then top with half of each of the following ingredients: pimiento, onion, apples, and uncooked bacon. Repeat with another one-third portion of sauerkraut and the remaining seasoning mixture, pimiento, onion, apple, and bacon. Cover with remaining sauerkraut. Pour beer over all. Bake, covered (use heavy foil if pan does not have a cover), in a 325° oven for 3 hours (if you use a glass baking pan, reduce oven temperature to 300°).

Pat seasoned pork roast dry with paper towels; in a frying pan brown it on all sides in butter and oil. Spread sauerkraut mixture to sides of baking pan; place browned pork roast in center. Cover again, return to oven, and cook until thermometer inserted in thickest part of roast registers 170°, about 1½ hours. Mansef: tender lamb pieces with rice, pine nuts; scoop into flour tortillas to eat

5 to 6-pound leg of lamb
6 cups water
2 teaspoons salt
2 cinnamon sticks, each 3 to 4 inches long
10 whole cloves
2 large packages (8 oz. each) cream cheese
5 tablespoons lemon juice
Butter, about 4 tablespoons
16 flour tortillas (1½ packages)
Hot cooked rice (directions follow)
1 cup pine nuts
Mint and lemon slices

Have your meatman bone the leg of lamb, but save the bones. Trim off and discard most fat from meat and cut meat into about 1 to 1½-inch pieces. Put meat and bones in a large pan with water, salt, cinnamon, and cloves. Cover pan and bring to boiling, then simmer for 1 hour.

Skim off and discard as much fat as possible. Ladle out 3 cups of meat juices and save. In the large bowl of a mixer (or in a blender), gradually blend the 3 cups juices smoothly with cream cheese; then return all to pan. Add lemon juice and continue to simmer, covered, for about 1 hour, or until meat is very tender when pierced (you can cover and chill overnight).

When meat is done or reheated, lightly dot the tortillas with butter and pile in 2 stacks of equal size. Wrap each stack in foil and warm for 10 to 15 minutes in the center of a 350° oven.

Melt about 2 tablespoons butter in a wide frying pan and, stirring constantly, lightly brown the pine nuts over moderate heat; be careful not to scorch. Mix most of the nuts with the rice and pile rice on a large rimmed platter. Lift meat from juices with a slotted spoon and distribute through the rice; discard bones. Strew remaining nuts over all. Fold tortillas in quarters and arrange around the mansef. Garnish liberally with mint and lemon wedges.

Keep the meat juices very hot and, just as you serve, pour several ladles of the sauce over the mansef; keep mansef hot by spooning on the steaming juices as needed. To eat, spoon a little of the meat-nut-rice mixture onto half or quarter of a flour tortilla, fold up, and eat with your fingers; or you can eat with a fork from a plate. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Hot cooked rice. Bring about 3 quarts water to boiling in a large pan. Add 1 pound long grain rice and 2 teaspoons salt. Boil moderately, partially covered, for about 15 minutes, or until rice is tender. Drain well and serve. Makes 8 cups.

You build a salad pyramid

We discovered this handsome and unusual chicken and smoked tongue salad in Amsterdam. It is a pyramid of diced chicken, apple, and celery (molded first in a custard cup), surrounded by julienne strips of the meat. A spiced whole peach and crisp apple wedges enhance the combination of flavors. You might consider it for a guest luncheon.

Salt cod... the Italian way

An Old World staple of undeniably assertive character is dried salt cod. This hard, flat fish (see right)—treated with respect and imagination in cuisines all around the Mediterranean—differs in appearance and requirements of preparation from the Scandinavian Lutfisk and from the thick, moist-looking chunks of brine-cured cod sold in many fish markets. You will usually find salt cod in stores that specialize in foreign foods from Italy, Portugal, Greece, Spain, or Mexico.

A real fondness for the rather mild taste (surprising after the rank aromas of cooking) and the coarse, chewy texture of salt cod will come readily if you are one who genuinely enjoys plain, peasant-style dishes, such as this robustly flavored

Pardon me, Ma'm, but half of your gas air conditioning is showing.
Lucky you. What you thought was only a gas forced air furnace, could actually be half of a complete air conditioning system. Chances are you could add a gas cooling unit to your existing heating system.
Gas Air Conditioning has no major moving parts in the cooling/heating cycle, so maintenance costs are low. And it lasts so long it can be included in your home mortgage.
If you've always wanted the cool comfort of an air conditioned home, take another peek at your furnace. You might be half way there. And now's the time to add a gas cooling unit, before the hot weather sets in.

Do's and Don'ts for those who Watch and Weigh

Since you have to cut down on ories, do make sure that your require-nts are met mainly from the four od Groups: Milk, Meat, Vegetables Fruits, Breads and Cereals.

Don't forget that your bones, muscles, and nerves need calcium whether you're dieting or not. Milk stands out as a source of calcium as well as high quality protein and riboflavin. Non-fat or low-fat milk gives you just as much of these nutrients but with fewer calories.

3. Don't go off on a diet "kick" of your own. Drastic changes and off-beat food habits can endanger your health by causing you to omit essential nutrients.

4. Don't torture yourself. Base your diet on sensible eating habits that you can stick to without hardship. Otherwise the pounds you lose will soon come creeping back.

5. Do increase your physical activity. Walk short distances instead of riding in the car. Mow the lawn. Wash the car. You'll burn up calories and maybe even save a little money at the same time.

People who are physically fit look better, feel better and get just a little more out of life. And that's quite a bit.

plan to replant the bulb bed, if you to convert it to another use, or if for ther reason you find it necessary to ve bulbs shortly after bloom, lift carefully, keeping as much soil about oots as you can. Set bulbs and root es in a trench in some out-of-the-way , cover them with soil, and keep t until leaves ripen. Then lift, separ- ulbs, and replant at once or store in l, dry place.

ng-established bulb plantings have n to drop off in bloom production, likely that the bulbs have split and grown to the point of overcrowding and that they have exhausted nutrients in the soil. Lift and divide overgrown clumps when foliage has ripened.

Sedum and mounds

Low mounds of earth can be handsome and useful additions to the landscape—and they can do more than just look good. Consider the mound at left.

Its first use is to preserve the soil level around the base of the big native valley oak. It also keeps lawn irrigation water away from the base of the oak. It breaks up the flatness of lawn and fence line and relates the garden to the hilly landscape of the neighborhood. And it serves as a stage for displaying plants.

The principal plant in the mound is Mexican sedum (S. amecamecanum or S. confusum). The sedums grow well either in full sun or in the light shade of high-branching trees. Since they are at their best in well drained soils, they are well adapted to mound planting. With good drainage they can take much water (as they do on the side nearest the lawn) or very little (as they do near the base of the oak, which will not stand much summer water).

Evergreen leaves of Mexican sedum are fleshy and bright yellow-green. In March and April the 6 to 8-inch-tall plants brighten even more as golden yellow flowers appear.

In colder climates other hardier sedums replace Mexican sedum. S. acre, S. spathulifolium, and S. spurium are three of many that can withstand subzero temperatures.

Converting square feet to acres—the easy way

Sometimes you'll find agricultural chemicals available in large sacks at a good price per pound. One problem in using them is that application rates may be given only in terms of pounds or ounces per acre. How do you convert the back orchard or side hill into acreage?

Here's an easy way that came to our attention recently through the courtesy of the United States Forest Service and the Agricultural Extension Service, University of California:

First, find the number of square feet in the area concerned. If the area is rectangular, multiply average length by average width. For triangles, multiply the height of the triangle by half the base. For circles, multiply the square of the radius by 3.14.

Next, multiply the number of square feet by 23, and point off six decimal places in the product. The result is in acres, tenths, and hundredths of an acre. Accuracy of the method is high enough, error being only two one-thousandths per acre.

For example: Find the acreage of a rectangular area 30 feet by 200 feet.

Step 1: 30 x 200 equals 6,000.

Step 2: 6,000 x 23 equals 138,000; so the answer is .138 acre.

Using the same method, you can quickly gauge the acreage of your present lot, or of a lot you intend to buy.

Two careers for this tree

Chinese parasol tree (Firmiana platanifolia, formerly F. simplex) will grow for many years as a single-trunked tree with an umbrella-shaped crown of big (to 12 inches wide), deeply lobed, tropical-looking leaves on long stalks. If roots are confined by planting in a container, parasol tree will not exceed 3 or 4 feet in height for many years. At this stage it resembles a papaya plant, rice paper plant, or fatsia, and has similar uses.

When a parasol tree begins to outgrow its container, set it out in the open ground. It will grow rather slowly up to 15 to 30 feet, with a roughly equal spread. The bark is light gray-green and smooth. The trunk usually forks into three or more branches fairly near the ground; these fork again into a sparse, irregular branching pattern that is picturesque during the rather long winter dormant season.

Leaves continue to cluster at the branch ends on older trees, so that the name parasol tree continues to be applicable.

These trees do best out of strong winds, which can tatter the leaves. Plants withstand sharp frosts and high summer heat but won't take prolonged freezing temperatures.

Beware gifts bearing bugs

March, April, and May are the great months for informal plant exchanges among friends and neighbors. Unfortunately, plants that enter the garden over the back fence often bring with them pests and diseases. These will not be the obvious kind; no one would bring you anything so gross or conspicuous as a tomato hornworm. The ones to worry about are the invisible or nearly invisible pests that inhabit the soil—nematodes, soil mealybugs, weevil grubs.

Gift plants in soil can also carry soil-borne diseases if the plants are lifted from infected areas. Nurserymen take great pains to sterilize soil or provide substitute soil for their plants; they can't risk losing a crop. Well meaning friends can't be expected to take such pains, and their garden soil could carry spores of such soil diseases as verticillium.

Seeds and cuttings are safe; plants grown in containers in prepared mixes are usually safe. It's the plant dug out of the garden that can cause trouble. If you are given such a plant and can't find a tactful way to reject it, at least put it in quarantine. Plant it in a container and grow it in some out-of-the-way place until you're satisfied that it's healthy; then plant it out in the garden.

Bird of paradise seeds

The patient gardener can grow bird of paradise plants (Strelitzia reginae) from seed. Sprouting takes three to nine months and total time from sowing to bloom takes five years or more; but plants are sturdy and easy to grow once started. The problem until recently has been finding the seed, which forms in this country only if flowers are hand-pollinated. Seeds, although they have always been obtainable, have not been widely distributed.

Lately we've seen little packets of seed in nurseries and garden stores. A packet of six seeds costs 50 cents; a sheet containing how-to-grow-it information accompanies each packet. Packets make good gifts for young people just getting interested in gardening, for a visitor from back East who wants to carry back a typically Western plant as a souvenir, or for a patient and curious gardener who wants to grow a number of bird of paradise plants.

Ordinarily a packet of seeds wouldn't make much of a gift, but these seed quite large (the size of small navy b and strikingly colored—glossy black bright orange wigs at one end.

Seeds of bird of paradise are small size, shiny black with fuzzy orange

Gift for young naturalists

It's always encouraging to detect i very young glimmerings of interest i ture. Foster them in any way you by taking children on camping tri hikes, by visiting parks and botanic dens with them, and by encouraging do-it-yourself nature projects at sch at home.

One useful device for teaching young dren about native plants has appear cently. It is California Plants to Co coloring book of native California and wildflowers published by the Barbara Botanic Garden, 1212 Mi Canyon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. 9 The 32 pages contain clear, acc sketches of native plants. The brief

MARCH CHECK LIST: These are the basic jobs

☐ Feed. For most plants the big growth push is about to begin. Be sure that when it does, plant food is in the soil. An annual feeding suffices for most deciduous or evergreen trees and large shrubs that make one annual growth flush. Camellias and azaleas should be fed after bloom and again later in the season. Don't feed rhododendrons until buds show color or until after bloom. Feed established annuals and perennials for fast growth and heavy bloom.

☐ Food garden. If soil is not too wet, spade or rotary-till soil for food and cut-flower garden. If you haven't added organic material recently, now is the time to do it. Even durable peat moss and ground bark break down in time and lose their aerating power. Till in complete fertilizer at the same time.

In most of California it's late to look for berry and grape plants, rhubarb, and artichokes, but some nurserymen can them up (or plant strawberries in flats) for late planting. In mountains or intermountain areas plant berries, rhubarb, asparagus, and American grapes as soon as soil is ready to work.

Set out canned or balled and burlapped citrus and avocado trees now.

☐ Lawn care. Cool-season grasses make their best growth in March, April, and May — if they are well fed. Temperatures are right for growth, wrong for pests and diseases; the more vigorous the growth of grass at this season, the sturdier the root system and the resistant the plants are to summer s Feed lawns well and encourage deep ing by infrequent deep waterin needed.

Control broad-leaf weeds with sprays taining 2,4-D; 2,4,5-T; silvex; dicamb combinations of these. For pre-emer weed control, see page 100 of the uary 1968 Sunset.

☐ Plant for flowers. Flat-grown p available now include kinds us thought of as winter and early s flowers (calendula, pansy, stock, v and summer flowers (China aster, nia). All will give satisfactory bloo planted now, but the cool-season k will go out of bloom first in hot in accompanying the drawings describes flower color (or fruit and leaf color where pertinent), tells where the plant grows, and, in some cases, furnishes other worthwhile information. Drawings are by Jacqueline Broughton, text by Mary Allcott. California Plants to Color can be ordered from the botanic garden at the address previously listed for $1 plus 15 cents for tax and handling.

A new color in miniature trees

Latest miniature rose to appear (February 1968) is 'Lavender Lace,' a breakthrough in miniatures—a true lavender without magenta shading. Slight touches of yellow at the bases of the petals serve only to make the lavender look brighter. Flowers are 1½ inches in diameter or slightly less (large for 10-inch-tall plants) and have 30 to 40 petals. Buds and open flowers have true Hybrid Tea form.

Like other miniatures, 'Lavender Lace' will grow well indoors or out and is useful and attractive in a number of landscape situations. Grow it in flower borders, as edging for beds of taller roses, or in containers.

Deck the halls with prunings

Flowering fruit trees should be pruned while they are in bloom or immediately afterward. You can use some of the cut sprays in arrangements, but you'll probably have far too many for this purpose if you do a thorough pruning job on a fair-sized flowering peach or flowering plum.

Wade in as soon as flowers fade and remove superfluous wood. At this period trees make fast recovery, cuts heal quickly, and fast-pushing shoots soon conceal the bare look of a freshly pruned tree.

Prune early-flowering deciduous shrubs (forsythia or weigela, for instance) at the same stage of growth, cutting out to the ground old wood that has flowered, weak shoots, and dead branches. Resist any temptation you may feel to shear tops of these plants to a uniform height.

Shape camellias and daphne by carefully cutting flowers and foliage for arrangements or for corsages. Cut to well placed side branches or vigorous buds. "Well placed" means so situated that subsequent growth of the side branch or bud will go the way you want it to—into a bare space, or outward (if you want the plant to spread), or upward (if you want the plant to grow taller).

Fast flowering tree

It takes as little as two years for the golden trumpet tree (Tabebuia chrysotricha) to go from seed to 5 or 6 feet tall, with yellow flowers like those shown in the photograph at right. Such a growth rate and such stunning flowers explain why this Brazilian native is quickly catching on in Southern California.

It's also worth a try in the milder areas of northern California. One batch brought in by an experimental-minded nurseryman in Los Altos survived last wint 5-gallon cans, then bloomed. Plants withstand temperatures of 24°.

Display a golden trumpet tree whe can be seen—in a lawn, on a patio, hillside. It should eventually reach a 25 feet high, 15 to 25 feet wide. It take most soils and watering sche

The leaves, a dark olive green, ar vided into five leaflets. At flowering in early spring, the foliage drops off new growth follows soon.

As in many trees that grow rap growth habit is awkward. You'll ne stake a tree for its first five years o You'll also have to prune annuall shape it. After flowering season, cut any branches that get out of line give the tree a lopsided look.

areas. If you live near the coast, these cool-season plants bloom into and through summer. A few real heat-lovers (zinnias, for instance) won't really grow well until the days grow warmer in late April or May. They will just sit there.

Continue planting gladiolus, and set out dahlias if soil is reasonably warm. Set out perennials from cans, flats, or plant bands.

☐ Plant for landscape effect. If March is cold and damp, you may still be able to buy bare-root trees and shrubs. If you can, waste no time in planting them. Buds and roots are beginning to push, and both are easily damaged by even brief drying out.

It's one of the best months for planting ground cover plants and native shrubs—in fact, one of the best months for all except tender plants (bougainvillea, heliotrope, hibiscus) that might suffer in light frost and that need warmth to grow.

☐ Propagate. To increase stocks of favorite chrysanthemums, take tip cuttings; or remove single rooted divisions from the outside of the clump, discarding the woody center. Divide Shasta daisies. If you'd like to propagate some rare or difficult shrub or tree, try layering a low-growing branch. You'll find details on page 89 of the new Sunset Western Garden Book.

☐ Prune. Hurry out and finish pruning any deciduous trees and roses not pruned as yet. Also prune fuchsias and pinch tips of chrysanthemums, geraniums, and pelargoniums to force side branching—but don't pinch young seed-grown geraniums. These are bred to grow, branch, and bloom as annuals. Pinching this spring may seriously delay bloom.

Don't be over-pessimistic about tropical plants that look shabby following winter's sharp frost. Give them a ch to sprout before you cut them bac the ground. They may have more wood than you think.

☐ Spray or dust. If plants have yet been sprayed and if buds l not yet expanded, give fruit trees roses a dormant-strength spray. If r are heavy and late, spray deciduous trees to control brown rot, which en blossoms and later affects twigs, f foliage, sometimes even whole branch ☐ Water. Don't forget to water pl under overhangs. Water newly plants if rains are not frequent or d Avoid over-watering new bare-root pl ings that haven't made new roots and growth yet. Be especially careful newly set silk trees, fruitless mulbe Japanese persimmon, fig, and walnut never method you use, the follow-up especially during the first two years pruning, is extremely important. A few weeks after pruning, closely spaced new shoots appear along the stems, mostly toward the tips. Remove up to half of these: those you keep should be rather evenly spaced along the stems. Cut off any new growth from below the bud union.

Later, cut off a few more of the fastest growing shoots. To force remaining new growth to branch out, prune back the tips when about 8 inches long.

The resulting new branches should be tipped back, in turn, after they've grown about 8 inches long. At the same time, remove crowded branches; too dense growth shades the center of the plant and restricts future flower and fruit production.

To protect the newly exposed bark from sunburning, either coat it with a white protective paint (often called "tree white") or build a cloth-covered wood frame to shade the plant from the hot afternoon sun. Because of the drastic reduction in the size of the plants, they require less frequent watering; too much water might cause root rot. Irrigate more frequently as the plants increase in size.

Citrus pruned this heavily normally won't produce a crop for two or three years.

What a Jolt, Ben, But Can You Make It Last— Like Nonburning Nitroform?

When Ben Franklin flew that kite, he got quite a jolt—but it didn't last. And, he could have been badly burned.

Jolting lawns with fast-acting fertilizers doesn't last either. Many applications are necessary for adequate nitrogen feeding. And, there is always danger of burning the tender grass.

That's why long-lasting, nonburning NITROFORM® turf food is the best nitrogen choice for balanced lawn fertilizers. The 38% nitrogen is nonleaching and in a chemical form that lasts for sustained feeding. Since the nitrogen release depends on moisture and temperature conditions needed for growth, the Nitroform feeding is slow and constant. And, Nitroform nitrogen is available just when the grass is growing and needs it most.

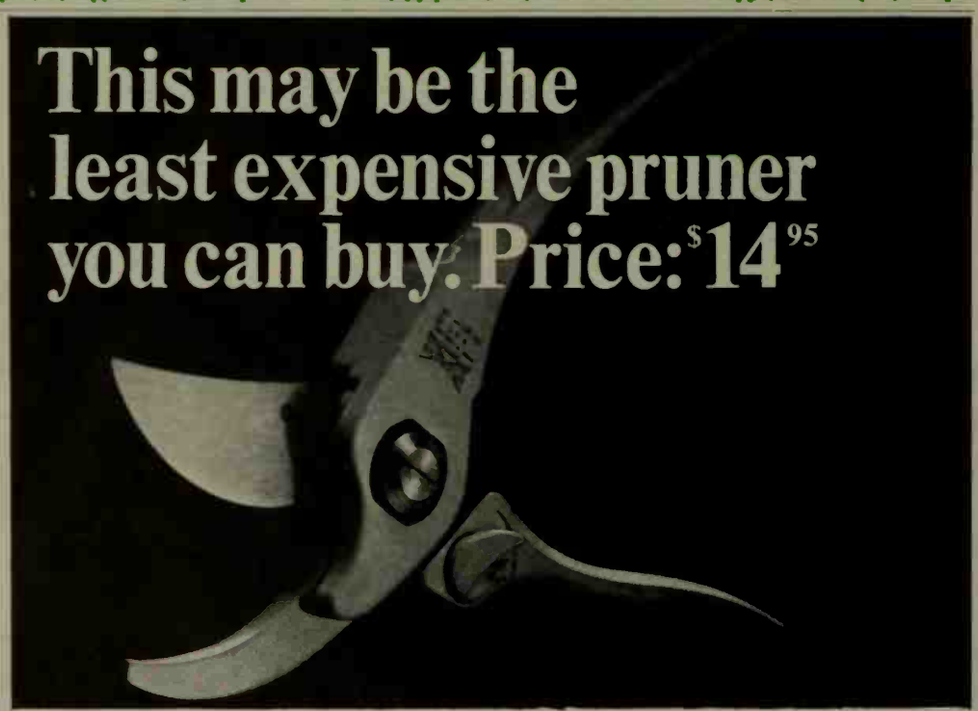
This may be the least expensive pruner you can buy. Price: $14.95



You can buy a pruner for $6.95. Or $2.50. Or $1.79. But a Wilkinson Sword Pruner gives you things you can't put a price on.

For example, it's almost impossible to make a pruning mistake. It cuts clean, like a nurseryman's knife. Won't bruise tender shoots. Cuts close to buds, so branches won't die back.

Blades are rust resistant. They stay sharp for years. The nylon bearings never need oiling. Balance is perfect. An exclusive groove lets sap run off, so blades won't jam.

And this pruner is built so well, you may never again have to buy another.

Think about it.

At $14.95, the Wilkinson Sword Pruner is a steal.

ut if some doubters remain, fer this challenge:
ind another car under $2,000 has all that the Renault 10 and we'll buy it for you.

The Renault 10 has, s standard equipment:

4-wheel disc brakes brakes take hard braking r than drum brakes. They long been used on super- , super-priced automobiles.

4 doors instead of 2

don't have to fight the front to get to the back seat.

35 miles per gallon

e people say they get more.

Contoured seats that recline for sleeping

18 other positions for when re not sleeping.

Engine weight over the drive wheels drive wheels bear down on w and ice because the engine ht bears down on them.

Turning circle of 30 feet can make most u-turns in clean sweep.

4-wheel independent suspension

h wheel moves up or down hout affecting all the other wheels. So when one wheel hits a bump, only one gets bumped. The other 3 keep the car and you going in a level position.

4-speed synchromesh transmission

This matches the speeds of the engine and transmission to allow the gears to mesh easily. Which makes shifting a lot easier on you and your transmission.

Replaceable wet cylinder sleeves

When the cylinders wear out in a conventional engine, the whole engine has to be pulled out and rebored. Sometimes it pays to buy a new car. But a Renault piston moves in a replaceable wet sleeve. If the sleeve ever wears out, you can put in a new one easily and inexpensively.

Sealed liquid cooling system with expansion tank

Water-cooled engines are much quieter than air-cooled engines. However, water and anti-freeze can frequently overflow. But Renault's water-cooling system has an expansion tank to keep the overflow from escaping.

5 main-bearing engine

Instead of three bearings supporting the crankshaft, we have five. (As many as most V-8's.)

Special vents for draft-free ventilation

You can get plenty of fresh air with the windows shut. Which, incidentally, shuts out noise.

Rack and pinion steering

Eliminates play in the steering.

2-speed hot-water heater and dual defroster

Our heater uses the same hot water that circulates in the engine. So our heater heats faster and produces a more even temperature than any air-type heater.

15 inch wheel

Most economy cars have 13" or less. Our larger wheel makes fewer revolutions to go the same distance. Which saves rubber. Which saves money.

Spare tire not in trunk

If you get a flat you don't have to unload the trunk and get everything dirty.

11 cubic foot trunk capacity

We're not the biggest in this department, but neither are we the smallest. The smallest only has 2.3 cubic feet, which is about as much space as we have behind our back seat alone.

Hits a top speed of 85

That's pretty surprising considering the mileage we get.

Unique warranty

12 months/unlimited mileage.

How to master the art of gardening-to-a-deadline

When you plant for a wedding reception or other important occasion in your garden, you must suddenly and completely master the art of gardening-to-a-deadline. The article on pages 82 to 86 tells you how to plan and carry out the work involved in getting a garden ready for a June wedding date. Here, we appraise the plants that you could plant in March, April, or May for flowers in June.

These are the best plants for this purpose. We took nominations from many professionals and advanced amateurs and then had a panel of experienced gardeners grade each plant (using the old classroom grades A, B, C, D, and F) for the four considerations that can make a spring-planted, June-blooming plant succeed or fail. The plants listed here make up the honor roll. The first alphabetical list of 30 (with descriptions) got a B average or better. At the end there's another list (names only) of those that averaged B-minus.

In our grading, decorum means appropriateness to weddings and other grand occasions. Deportment means garden manageability.

Take the "work" out of working in your garden.

The patented floating blade action of our Grass Shears (#702) multiplies power, giving more bite with less effort. The comfortable, hardwood handles and hardened steel blades of our Hedge & Shrubbery Shears (#8 A) keep them cutting easier, longer than ordinary hedge shears, and there's a convenient hang-up hole in the blade. Use double-acting Wiss Shears in your garden. They cut your plants and your work at the same time.

If you know Sunset better, you'll find it more useful

This page inaugurates what we hope will become a rewarding conversation between Sunset's readers and Sunset's staff.

This March 1968 Sunset will go into some 850,000 homes, most of them in the Western states of California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, Hawaii, Idaho, Oregon, Washington. It will be read by something over 2,000,000 people during the next month. It will then hang around the house for more weeks or months (sometimes years), getting picked up or referred to, being used.

If you are a long-time Sunset reader, you are probably aware of some of Sunset's differences. Among American magazines ours is somewhat unorthodox, and deliberately so. For one thing, Sunset is a regional magazine, the only regional consumer magazine in America that has achieved large circulation. There are four different editions of Sunset, edited for four different parts of the West.

Sunset carries a lot of advertising, and this makes it possible for us to publish a great many editorial articles. But Sunset also turns down a lot of advertising—and some people think that's strange.

Sunset publishes books, and most of these are handbooks or how-to-do-it books that are direct outgrowths of the magazine's editorial research.

For a long time we've been answering questions about Sunset's reasons for doing things as we do, but answering them only in letters or in conversation. Now we're ready to try an experiment—to explain a little about Sunset on this page each month. If we are successful, you'll understand Sunset a bit better and you should find the magazine more useful.

We'll be answering questions about Sunset that have been raised frequently in the past; for instance, why we keep Sunset off newsstands outside the Western states and why we charge more for subscriptions outside the West, why we don't run articles on personalities, and why we don't have by-lines on our articles. But we also expect to talk about subjects that haven't come up before, tell you about new Sunset projects, and invite you to visit our publishing headquarters at Menlo Park when we have something new to show you.

WINDOW ON THE WEST: Hot Creek

These cheerful swimmers are enjoying the 115° water of Hot Creek in California's Mono County on a pleasant day in March. About a mile above them is snow-tipped, 11,812-foot Mount Laurel. These swimmers were skiing on Mammoth Mountain only one hour earlier. Such a quick switch from cool to hot, from high to low, from cool forest to warm desert or from mountains to salt water, occurs again and again in the West. Most striking to strangers, possibly, is the quick switch from crowded city to wilderness. From some Western cities you can make this move within an hour. From any Western city you can do it in half a day.

For less than you'd pay at a resort that doesn't go anywhere...

we'll show you San Francisco, Hawaii, Japan, Hong Kong, Singapore, India, Ceylon, Africa, Rio de Janeiro, the Caribbean, Florida and Acapulco.

How can you stay at a First Class American resort—and still see the world? Book passage now for the next round-the-world sailing of the SS President Roosevelt.

In 90 days, this all First Class luxury liner will take you to 20 faraway ports. Between calls, you'll enjoy all the special pleasures of an ocean voyage. On board you'll discover large sunny areas for shuffleboard and other deck games. A golf driving range. A heated swimming pool. Enclosed promenades for strolling. A quiet library and writing room. Six different lounges where a partner for bridge is never hard to find. And the biggest luxury of all: time to relax.

Superb cuisine is an American President Lines specialty. Your day can begin with breakfast in bed and end with a midnight buffet. Room service is available round-the-clock—just pick up the telephone in your air-conditioned stateroom. Now prepare for the evening ahead. Your dinner menu will list 40 different dishes—and you'll never see the same menu twice. After dinner you can take in a first-run movie, or ride the elevator up to the glass-enclosed Starlight Room and dance to the ship's orchestra. This is the life of luxury you can live for 27,000 miles—with American comfort and service going with you all the way.

In every port of call American Express Company has arranged a schedule of optional ½-day and day excursions. You can shop for bargains in Hong Kong, go nightclubbing in Rio, sightseeing in Acapulco. Longer side trips can take you across Japan, inland to India's Taj Mahal, through Africa's great game reserves and national parks. You can even spend a night at Treetop Hotel and watch the lions come down for a drink.

The SS President Roosevelt is the only U.S. passenger liner making a round-the-world voyage this year. And we hold our passenger list to 275. Previous sailings have been well-booked months in advance. Make sure you have choice accommodations by making your reservations now. The seat for every body.

For years, Eeonomy Class passengers squirmed in their seats. Long legs longed for a plaee to rest. Angular elbows sought more eomfortable angles. Freshly-pressed clothing quiekly became rumpled.

Then, along came a more advaneed eommercial jet: the BOAC VC 10. And with it came a more advanced Eeonomy Class seat. Roomier, cushier, eomfier.

In designing it, we tossed out the conventional bulky metal frames that took up so much room. And got rid of the lumpy padding that caused so much diseomfort.

In their place, we've substituted spaee-saving mould-ed plastic shells and a special synthetic foam. The eombination not only eontours itself t shape that's in it, but also supports that shape be fully.

We then reeessed the baek of eaeh seat so the pe behind eould really streteh out. (Even if he pened to be a 7-footer like basketball star Chamberlain.) We also redueed the nu of seat legs needed to support each row six to two. Leaving more room for people Compared to an ordinary jet seat, the V seat is more like an armehair. A cus made one, at that.

We invite everybody planni spend some time in the air (t to Britain, Bermuda, Na Freeport, Jamaiea, Anti Barbados, Europe, Africa Middle East or the Orien sit in one.

It looks easy—until the bronc bucks rider and heads to the left

Going where the action is

The rodeo arena is no place for a greenhorn, but one Sunset assignment last year put a photographer into a rodeo arena anyway. He rapidly lost his greenhorn status.

Braving runaway broncs and wild bulls, photography editor Ellsworth Marugg worked inside several different rodeo arenas week after week to catch the rodeo excitement at close range. Sometimes it was too close. One of Marugg's memorable experiences was being run down and trampled by a riderless saddle bronc at San Juan Bautista. Photographer and camera survived the mishap, but the incident increased his respectful regard for the hazards of rodeo.

Mostly, Marugg shot with a hand-held 35 mm camera with a moderate-length telephoto lens. By the end of the 1967 season, his rodeo portfolio was filled with a remarkable collection of action photographs. You'll find the best of them published in the 8-page article that begins on page 80.

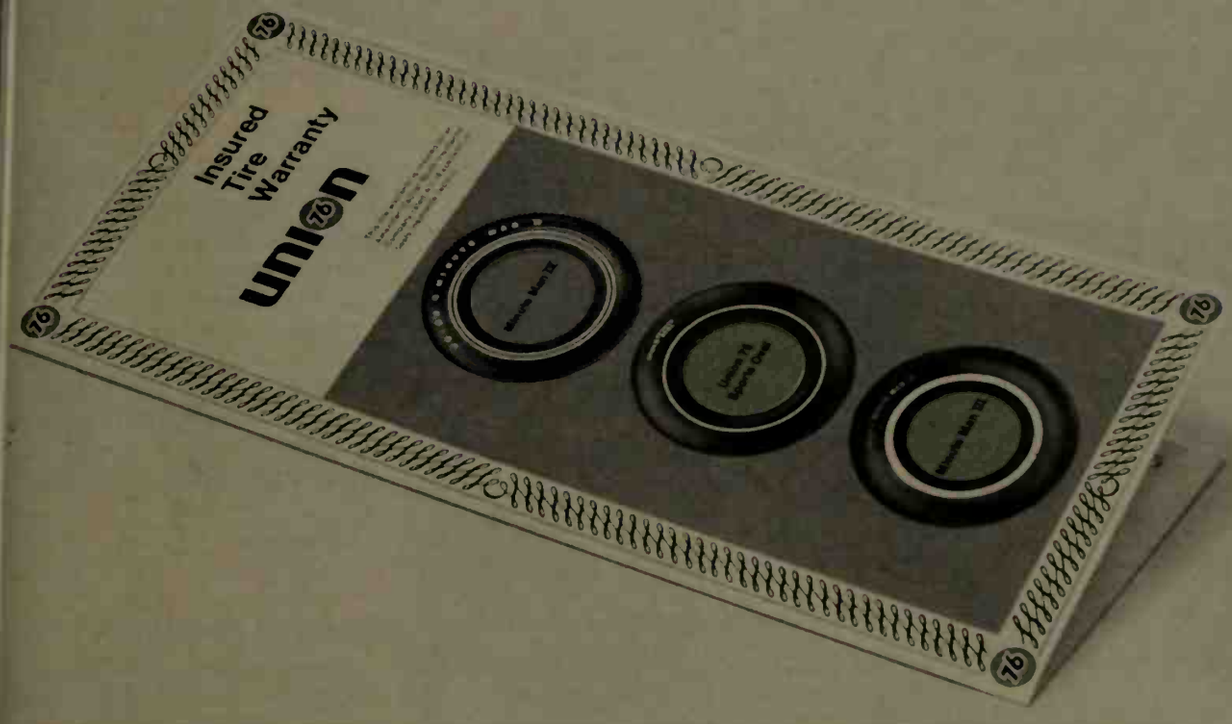
Who else but Union Oil would give you an Insured Tire Warranty like this on the tire you buy?



So far, nobody.

e tire fails, you get a new one free.

's the gist of Union Oil's Insured Tire Warranty. ll find it on Union's Minute Man IV tire, the Union 76 rts Oval tire and the Minute Man III. Don't bother ing for it on any other make of tire on sale anywhere ny price. You won't find it.

Union Oil offers America's strongest tire warranty. e tire fails for any reason except malicious damage epairable puncture during the first year or 10,000 es (whichever occurs first), you get a new tire free. at's more, you get many more miles of prorated pro- ion after that time.

t's the kind of confidence Union Oil has in the tires its dealers sell you. And that's why you can drive with confidence on them.

The Minute Man IV — The passenger-car tire with the Concave racing tire design. It's probably America's safest tire.

The Union 76 Sports Oval — The wide-ride tire with Concave design. A wider, stronger, lower tire that can take it. A true high performance tire.

The Minute Man III — A tire that delivers up to 35% more mileage than an original-equipment tire on a new car.

For your own protection, you can't beat the Insured Tire Warranty that each of these Union Oil tires carry.

Neither, for that matter, can any tire manufacturer.

you care to. Fires are prohibited, and there are no designated areas with table and benches.

You can return from Glen Ellen south through Sonoma. Or you could make it a loop trip by taking Bennett Valley Road back to Santa Rosa, then the Petaluma Hill Road south to Penngrove.

Cienega Road. This route runs about 25 miles, beginning at San Juan Bautista, a short distance off U.S. 101, and ending at Paicines on State Highway 25. From San Juan Bautista you go about 5 miles due east on State 156. Just where the straight stretch ends, turn right on Union Road, then take the next right on Cienega Road. From there on, you are in little or no danger of losing your way. (An alternate approach is to Cienega Road all the way from Hollister.)

For the first few miles from the Union Road junction, Cienega Road is quite lonely, but the bare hills are now clothed with deep green or the intense yellow of mustard. The road dips and winds considerably, then settles down into a straight stretch — which happens to coincide with a quite active part of the San Andreas Rift Zone. (For more details, see the Sunset book Earthquake Country.)

You continue past vineyards, winery buildings, the little red Cienega School, and occasional farm houses before crossing the San Benito River and merging with State Highway 25 just south of Paicines.

You can return quickly to Holl San Juan Bautista on State 25. may want to go just a few miles

Walker Lake, the only spot for a lakeshore picnic on the long, dry drive between Reno and Las Vegas, now offers two public recreation developments along its western shore. Tamarack Point Campground, just 18 miles north of Hawthorne, Nevada, contains 20 cabaña-type picnic and camp units, complete with picnic tables, drinking water, fireplaces, and sanitary facilities. Three miles south along U.S. Highway 95, Sportsman Beach Recreation Site features 17 of the cabaña-type units, spaces for trailers, and a concrete launching ramp.

Both facilities were developed under a public works program by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management, and are now county-operated under a special lease agreement. The two facilities are open all year; there is no entry fee.

The quiet waters of this brackish desert lake are popular with swimmers, boaters, and water-skiers.

Oyster grower loads up gunny sack for visitors to Tomales Bay near San Francisco

Oysters in the shell... they're delicious now... and the great place to buy them is at the beach

Oysters divide people. There are oyster lovers, oyster snobs, total abstainers, and many others who just haven't met oysters yet in their natural state.

Along the West Coast, oysters still aren't the familiar sight they are to an Easterner or a European. You have to comb the fish markets or order ahead to find them in their shells, and only the lucky Northwesterner can go oyster picking on his own and hope to come home with a bucketful for dinner. Washington has many more oyster beaches, Oregon has a few. In California you have to rely on commercial oyster beds, where you can buy some to take home or just stop on the spot for an oyster picnic.

Whether you buy or find your oysters, you're much more likely to come home with an immigrant from the Atlantic or European than the tiny native Olympia.

The Olympia, Ostrea lurida, was once so numerous that the Indians of San Francisco Bay and the Point Reyes Peninsula piled up great mounds of their empty shells. In recent times the Olympia has dwindled in California; but in Gold Rush days, a San Francisco-bound sea captain could find a good supply in the Northwest, notably in Willapa Bay and Samish Bay, and coast lumber ships carried them down to California until the 1890's, nearly stripping the oyster beaches clean.

At least two Northwest towns were founded on the oyster trade: Oysterville, Washington, a quaint village facing Willapa Bay; and Newport, Oregon, now a resort community on Yaquina Bay.

Preserved Eastern oysters (Crassostrea virginica) were shipped to the West Coast as early as 1849, but it wasn't until the completion of the transcontinental railroad (1869) that seed oysters were brought from New York and Baltimore and planted in San Francisco Bay. By 1900, the Bay was producing nearly 3 million pounds of oyster meat a year, but just a few years later the industry was almost gone, mostly because of pollution and also because the oysters failed to fatten.

The Giant Pacific oyster, Crassostrea gigas, is the one you're most likely to find these days. The Pacifics are brought in as seed oysters from Japan and planted from Washington to Southern California, reaching sizes up to 10 inches long. These oysters like other imports don't normally reproduce themselves in commercial quantities since the water is too cold, but last year's long hot summer in the Northwest brought on a healthy set of spat (baby oysters), and oysters may begin appearing where there were none before.

The Pacifics come to market under many names. Most of them reflect the locality of origin, and each year adds more. You'll find Willapa, Quilcene, Waketickeh, Tillamook, Hamma Hamma, and Rock Point. Willapoint is a registered trade name.

The Kumamoto or Yaquina, a small variety of the Pacific, is also imported from Japan, but so far has only been planted in limited quantities. Kumamotos are ready to eat when only a little bigger than the Olympia.

Drakes Estero and Morro Bay oyst[ers] have recently begun to experimen[t] French and Portuguese oysters.

WHERE TO LOOK FOR OYSTERS

In Washington, look for oyster-pro[ducing] tidelands and state parks with [public] beaches in lower Puget Sound, on [Hood] Canal, and bordering Willapa Bay[. Pri]vate beaches and state-owned oyst[er] serves are off limits to oyster picke[rs] they are usually well marked. You [need] no license to pick oysters, but the [limit] is 18. If you eat them at the sho[re] sure to return the oyster shells t[o the] water. Oyster spat needs the smoot[h] face to anchor and grow.

In Oregon there are four commercia[l] ter growing locations (see map on [page] 35). If you don't find oysters in n[atural] public areas, you can probably buy [them] from one of the growers.

In California you can't pick oysters [but] you can buy them from oysterme[n] Humboldt Bay near Eureka, and a[t] males Bay and Drakes Estero, an h[our's] drive north of San Francisco. Durin[g the] week, business hours are 10 A.M. to 4 [P.M.]; at Tomales Bay there's always som[eone] present on weekends. Farther south, [you] can buy from growers at Morro Bay, [near] San Luis Obispo, every day of the we[ek].

THE OYSTER SEASON

You can eat oysters at any time of [the] year without harm provided they c[ome] from clean waters, but they are fi[nest] and fattest from November through J[anuary]. During the summer if the water is w[arm] oysters expend prodigious amount[s of] body materials in spawning, which le[aves] them thin and milky.

RAW OR COOKED?

Oysters that are ideal for eating raw [in]clude these varieties: the aristocratic [and] distinctively flavored tiny Olympias; [the] somewhat larger, milder Kumamotos; [the] culent Eastern oysters and delicate [Pa]cifics from shells no longer than 3 [or 4] inches. Pacifics over this size look m[ore] appetizing—and are generally conceded [to] be more palatable—when they're cook[ed]. One of the simplest and most delici[ous] treatments for Pacifics that we have e[ver] tried is to bake them in their shells ([see] the directions that follow).

WASHING OYSTERS

Regardless of how you intend to serve [them], the first thing you should do with a[n] oyster in the shell is to scrub the sh[ell] well with a stiff brush under clear runni[ng] water, then drain.

HOW TO OPEN A RAW OYSTER

The most efficient implement for pryi[ng] open a raw oyster is the oyster knife (p[ic]tured on page 34). The oyster grower m[ay] be able to sell you an oyster knife (abo[ut] $1.50) or direct you to a hardware sto[re].

in the area. But you can make do with any strong, narrow-bladed instrument.

The objective when opening an oyster is to get the knife into the shell carefully to cut the adductor muscle that holds the shell closed while preserving the shape of the oyster. Put the oyster cupped-side-down on a firm surface, then proceed as directed for each variety (experts hold the oyster, but there is danger of the knife slipping).

Olympias and Kumamotos are easiest to handle because they are small. Force the knife into bill (curved side opposite hinge end of shell), and follow bottom contour of shell until you cut the adductor muscle. Pull off top shell, cut oyster from it, and serve the oyster in the bottom shell or in a dish.

Pacific and Eastern oysters can be opened in about the same way, but less effort is required if you first break off about ⅜ inch or so of the bill with a hammer to make a gap between the shells; then a knife can enter without force (rinse bits of shell off first). Again, follow bottom curve of shell, cutting adductor muscle. Pull off top shell, cut oyster free, and serve it from bottom shell or in a dish.

Take care, in all cases, to preserve as much of the juices as possible. Chill oysters until ready to serve.

Eat plain, or season as you like with lemon juice, catsup, seafood cocktail sauce, liquid hot pepper seasoning, horseradish, or any such condiments that suit your fancy.

HOW TO BAKE PACIFIC OYSTERS

Fill a wide baking pan (or bottom of broiler pan) with about ¼ inch water. Lay well scrubbed Pacific oysters cupped-side-down in pan, arranging closely together in one or two layers. (You can prepare two pans for the same oven if you want to cook large quantities; or cook oysters in sequence for a hot batch as desired.)

Bake in a 400° oven for 20 to 30 minutes. If you can pry the oysters open after 20 minutes, they will be just nicely heated and very juicy; by 30 minutes they will definitely have a cooked appearance, but the shells will gape slightly and be easier to open.—H. T., San Francisco.

HOW TO OPEN A COOKED PACIFIC OYSTER

Put an oyster, cupped side of shell down, on your plate. Protect your fingers with a hot pad if shell is still hot; however, shells usually cool quickly. With an oyster knife or a blunt table knife, pry shell open at wide end, slipping in knife to cut adductor muscle that holds shell closed, then pull off top shell; preserve juices. (You'll need a container for empty shells.) The tricky part is seeing where these wildly voluted shells come together, and deciding where to pry.

oyster; grind on a little pepper, if like; and eat. You may have to cu Pacific oyster into smaller pieces to bite-sized portions. Allow 6 to 12 oy for each serving. And keep in mind known true oyster fans who polish double the maximum suggested.

BUYING OYSTERS IN THE SHELL

You can sometimes order oysters in shell from your fish market. Pacifics 85 cents to $1.50 a dozen. A dozen O pias in the shell cost about 50 cents. are grown commercially in Puget So Eastern oysters from Tomales Bay Drakes Estero are about $2.50 a do Kumamotos, grown in the Northwest, about $1.25 a dozen.

Put your boat in at Pardee

To the impatient fisherman in California, the April 27 opening of trout fishing season throughout most of the state still seems a long way off. If you share that feeling, now is a good time to try your luck at Pardee Reservoir.

At this impoundment of the Mokelumne River, the season started on March 1 and will run through July 28, each weekend from Friday noon until Sunday evening and on holidays from dawn to dark. Here you can picnic and camp and go boating and fishing—but not water-ski or swim.

Another advantage of Pardee will become apparent later in the year. Since it is located upstream from the much larger Camanche Reservoir, which serves as a storage supply for flood control, it suffers less from the summer "draw-down" (or release of water) that often lowers the level of Central Valley reservoirs.

This season's fishing—and kokanee is the big attraction at Pardee—is predicted to be better than average because of unusual conditions last spring and summer. There was an extremely heavy run-off at both Camanche and Pardee reservoirs because of the unusually abundant late rain and snowfall of the previous winter. The result is that a great many catchable kokanee remained in the reservoir—and 300,000 fingerlings planted in 1964 will be mighty big fish in 1968.

Facilities include a boat launching ramp (see photograph) and a boat and bait shop (rowboats, $6 per day; $3 to $3.50 per half-day; or $1.50 per hour; motors, a tional, at the same rates). Berthin available for privately owned boats.

Also at Pardee are campsites ($1 night), trailer sites ($1.50), picnic a (covered by the $1 admission charg the recreation area), and a coffee shop.

What do you want more of?

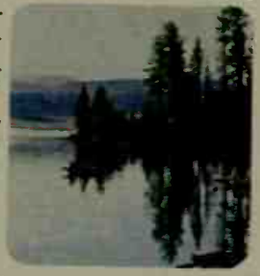
INDIANS We've got the most. More than any other state. Navajos tending sheep, making rugs, jewelry and diodes. Apaches herding cattle and running fishing lodges. Hopi mesa villages, with houses over 700 years old still occupied. Prehistoric cliff dwellings. Ceremonials and snake dances.

COWBOYS They're outnumbered by the Indians, but we still have 50,880,000 acres of range land in Arizona, some of the world's finest cattle, several of the world's most thrilling rodeos.

CITIES Clean, modern, ringed with resorts designed for your pleasure. You can rough it in Arizona — you can also find luxurious comfort. We want to be sure you have a good time!

MEXICO Tacos, senoritas, bullfights, exotic shopping are just across the border from our southern Arizona towns.

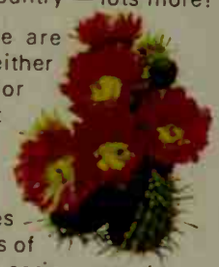
MOUNTAINS AND COOL PINES We have the world's largest expanse of Ponderosa pine forest, 17,736 sq. mi. of national forests, and ski slopes within easy drive of the warm, sunny valleys.



HISTORY 400-year-old missions, 2,000-year-old Indian ruins, ghost towns, old mines and military posts, the trails of Coronado, Cabeza de Vaca, Padre Kino, the Pony Express, Cochise Stronghold and Zane Grey country.

SUNSHINE You can hardly get away from that here. Our valleys are warm, dry, sunny. Our high country is cool, dry, sunny. We have more sunny hours than any other part of the country — lots more!

CACTUS Some people are fascinated by it. You either love the desert or run for an oasis (we've got plenty of them, too — with swimming pools). Come see how you react. We have 62 species of cactus, whole forests of giant Saguaros. In the spring, our desert is a mass of color.



WATER SPORTS 2,000 miles of shoreline. The Colorado River runs around two sides of Arizona through the Grand Canyon, deep blue lakes and rich farm land into the Gulf, where Arizona roads lead to the world's sportiest deep sea fishing. Bass, trout, crappie and channel cat are plentiful in the Colorado and the canyon lakes. Rainbows are jumping in our mountain lakes and streams. Coming down from the mountains, we have a chain of canyon lakes that store water for our valley cities and make the world's best water skiing.

GOLF 78 sporty courses from near sea level to 8,000 feet (where your drives do go farther). You can play golf every day of the year in Arizona.

SCENERY If you want to roam and look and wonder — at painted deserts, petrified forests, red rock canyons, gigantic dams, mountain lakes, unspoiled wilderness, hundred mile vistas — we've got them here for you — more national parks and monuments than any other state.

We'll be glad to tell you more about it. That's why we put the coupon at the top — to make it easier. Send it in today.

A major change in Salt Lake City's h toric Temple Square is the new Visit Center, completed last summer. Its dom roof is somewhat reminiscent of t Tabernacle, but otherwise its modern sign and glass-walled façade bear lit resemblance to the structures that ha graced the square for so many years.

One of the most striking features of t Visitors Center is a spiral ramp th winds upward into the circular rotunc As you walk up the ramp you are su rounded by a huge mural painting the universe covering more than 11,0 square feet.

We built an airline for professional travellers.

American can't forget a request for diapers or a dinner of baby food.

We own the world's biggest business computer, just for remembering.

It remembers a businessman's order for filet instead of the regular main course. It remembers salt-free diets and kosher meals, too.

Of course we didn't build this computer for babies. We built it for professional travellers—businessmen who buy up to fifty plane tickets a year.

We go all out for customers like them.

For them we flew the first fan-jets. Built the first Stewardess College. Were the first to check bags at the curb. To introduce the air credit card. To seat everyone within five rows of a movie screen.

In fact, we baby them.

On American Airlines, everyone gets the full professional treatment.

Rain slicked roads and high winds are enough to make the driver of an ordinary small car wonder what he's doing behind the wheel.

But not in a SAAB, the out-of-the-ordinary small car from Sweden.

SAAB is out of the ordinary because of front-wheel drive.

Because SAAB has front-wheel drive it doesn't push you around the way other small cars do. It pulls you around curves. Corners. Out of skids. And out of trouble.

Front-wheel drive coupled with SAAB's dual diagonal braking system (the safest on any car) gives you incredible control and traction in any weather.

And SAAB's 4-cycle, V-4 engine lets you go from zero to 50 mph in ten seconds flat. Hit top speeds of over ninety. (But please don't on a wet day.)

As an optional extra, our new and powerful V-4 engine has a LIFETIME GUARANTEE.

So don't let the weather get you down. Remember that you can't drive a better built small car to save your life. SAAB You can drive it like a big car.

HemisFair opens April 6 in San Antonio

This month San Antonio, Texas, begins celebrating its 250th anniversary with HemisFair '68, which will hold forth on a 92-acre site in downtown San Antonio from April 6 through October 6. HemisFair '68 rates officially as an international exposition—meaning a "world's fair" of the same category as the 1962 Century 21 Exposition in Seattle. Its theme, "The Confluence of Civilizations in the Americas," will emphasize the cultural contributions of distant continents to the development of the American nations.

The exposition grounds adjoin the city's attractive Paseo del Rio, a landscaped walk along the banks of the San Antonio River through the heart of historic San Antonio. Visitors can reach the fairgrounds by boat from hotels and motels in the central shopping and business district, then tour the fair by gondola, minirail, or overhead skyride.

The focal point is the 622-foot Tower of the Americas, 22 feet higher than Seattle's Space Needle and featuring a revolving restaurant and observation decks. The exposition includes a United States pavilion, a host exhibit by the State of Texas, exhibits by foreign governments and private enterprises, an elaborate amusements area, and horticultural displays and gardens featuring plants from every nation in the hemisphere.

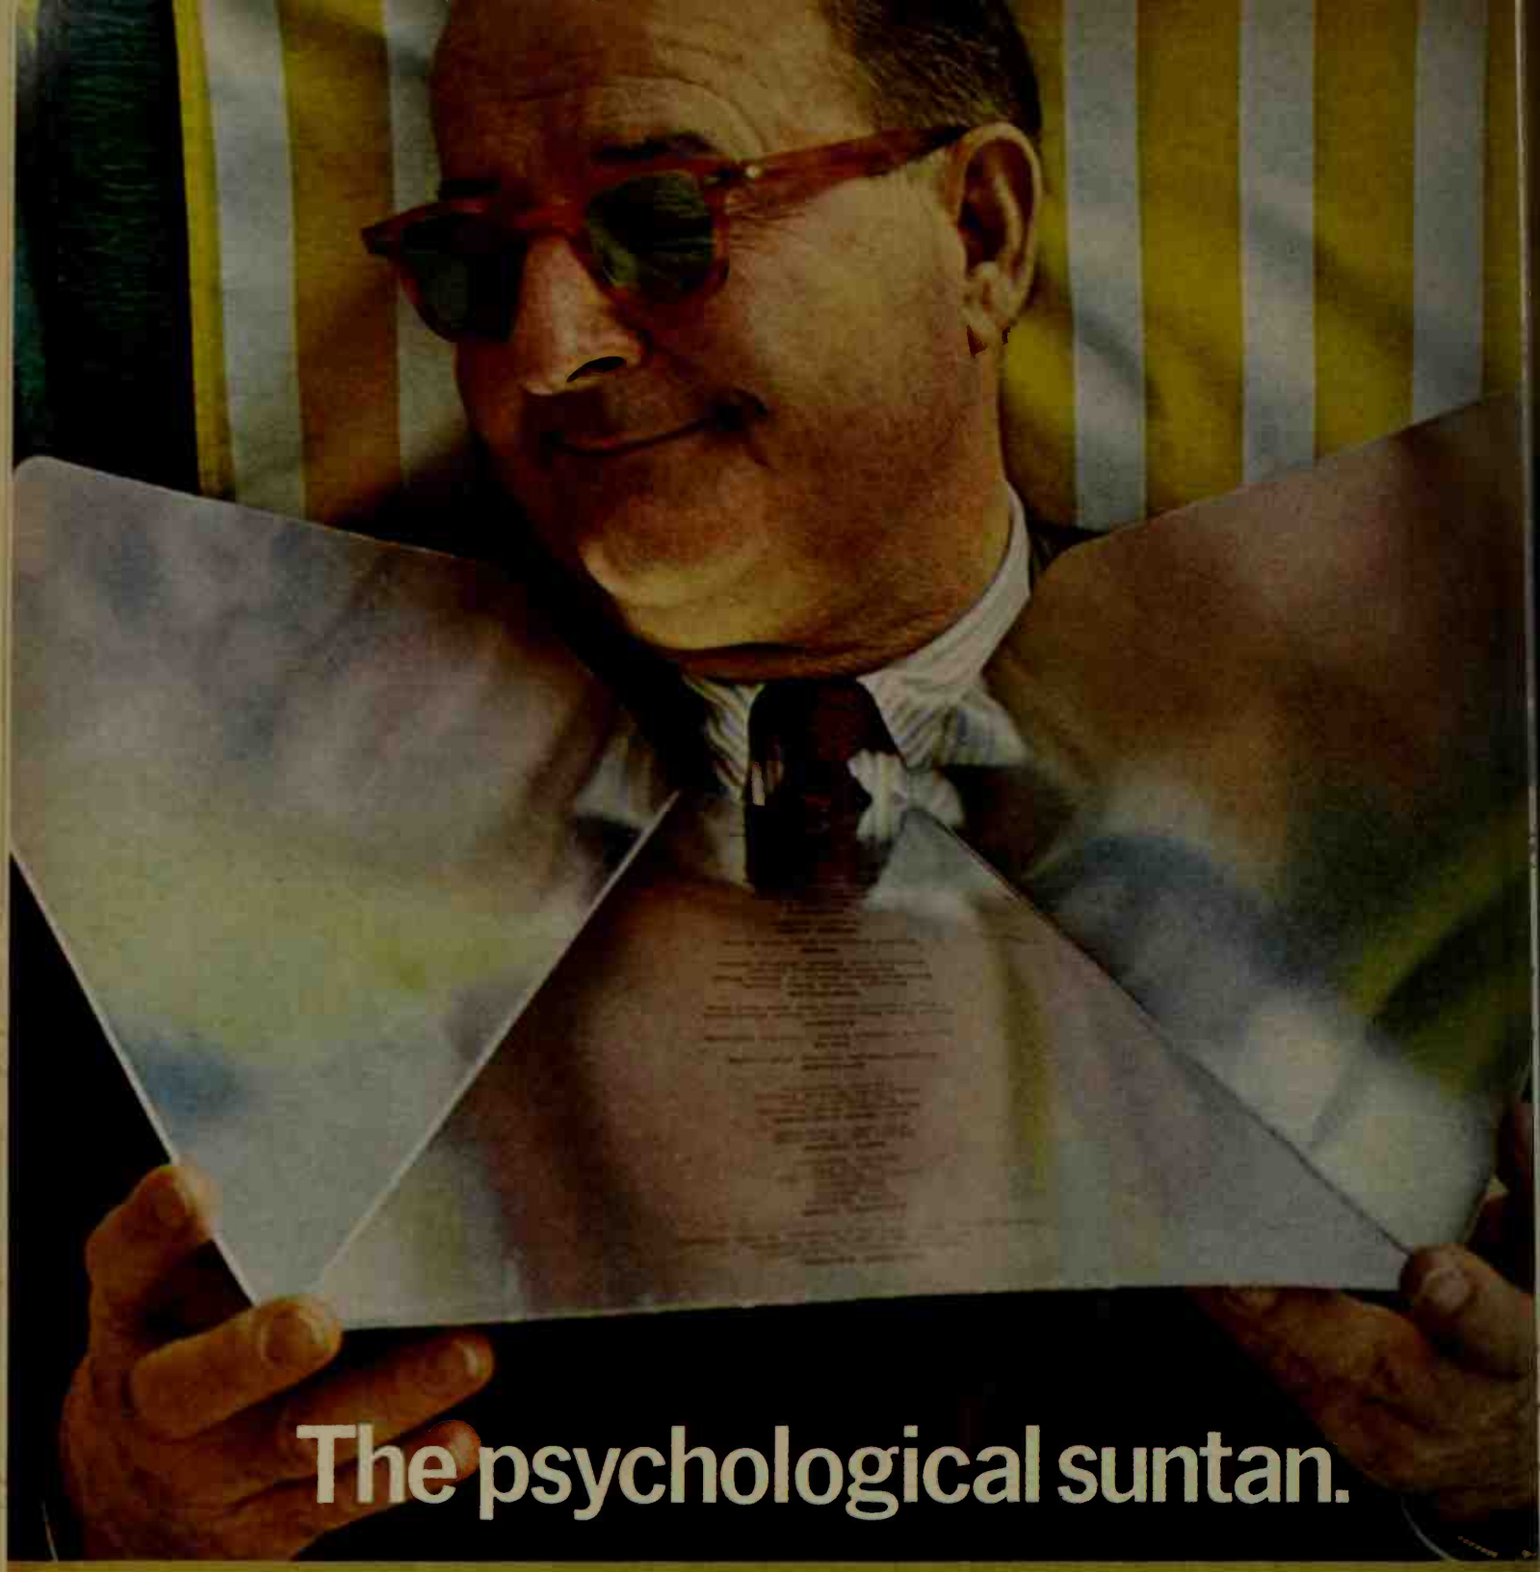
STANDARD OF THE WORLD



The psychological suntan.

If you think about it, a good suntan doesn't just make you look better, it also makes you feel better.

Healthy, and with a sense of well-being so that the whole world looks like one big smile.

And this is how we want you to feel when you're on one of our National jets.

Relaxed. Free of all the everyday pressures.

In a way, we'd like you to feel like you're in Florida, vacationing.

So, for starters, we give you a sun reflector. Not a big deal in itself, but with some imagination on your part, it should start things going.

To help you along there are tropical sounds. Birds peacefully singing away.

There are Florida seafoods. Like stuffed shrimp. Desserts like key lime pie. Drinks like tropical punches and flips.

The chair you sit in, with yellow and white stripes, looks like a cross between an airplane seat and a beach chair.

And, of course, there's a crew of National stewardesses in their bright, Florida-colored outfits.

Put them together and they add up to what we call the Psychological Suntan. It's relaxing, it's fun, it's kind of nice. And it won't cost you a penny extra.

For reservations see your travel agent, or National Airlines.

Is this any way to run an airline?

You bet it is.

National turned Florida into an airline.

just a cruise and a drive away from Vancouver, B.C.

North of Vancouver's towering office buildings, parks and beaches is a unique holiday area, totally separated from the city, yet less than 2 hours away by car. To get there, drive the Upper Levels Highway to Horseshoe Bay and board a spacious car-ferry. A 50-minute cruise across spectacular Howe Sound lands you at Langdale, near the town of Gibsons. Technically, you're on the Sechelt Peninsula, but everyone calls it the Sunshine Coast – partly for its pleasant climate, but more for the slow-paced, relaxing mood of the place.

You drive north through evergreen forest, wending near the coast past coves dotted with resorts and summer cabins. Take a side road and you could find a rocky beach covered with oysters, or a sandy stretch with nothing before you but the sea and, perhaps, a wooded island or a passing tug.

Fishing is excellent along this coast, with Pender Harbour the favored centre for anglers after big Spring and Coho salmon. Plenty of marinas to supply gear if you're in the mood for action. You can travel 92 miles north of Langdale, with a second ferry cruise – across Jervis Inlet – taking you to the upper Sunshine Coast and the major centre of Powell River.

Returning to Vancouver, you might be in the mood for dinner at one of the city's fine restaurants, followed by a night club or theatre. You'll find Vancouver an exciting, cosmopolitan city, in the midst of a magnificent scenic and recreational area. For a detailed Visitor's Kit, write: Greater Vancouver Visitors and Convention Bureau, 650 Burrard Street, Vancouver 1, British Columbia, Canada.

At Sechelt, an old Indian church faces the sea – and the broad beach, though it rims the town, is never crowded.

KIYOMIZU: What you hoped to see in Japan

The antique array of shrines and temples at Kyoto may do more than bedazzle you and eventually confuse you as to which is which: It can also run you ragged, if you're determined not to miss anything in the course of the usual few days' stay.

So when you look at the hill you must climb to explore Kiyomizu, you may be tempted to skip it and move on to the next thing on your list, but this is no place to falter. The temple complex amounts to a capsule display of the kinds of things you go to Japan to see, and its elevated position is ideal for viewing central Kyoto and musing on the misty groves and pagodas showing on the hills all around.

An hour is all you need for the buildings and approaches. Add whatever time you wish for contemplation of the gardens, and for shopping (check the tea sets) along the pedestrians-only extension of Gojo Street that ultimately becomes a series of short stone staircases leading up to the temple grounds.

Among the structures—most of which were rebuilt in 1633, although the temple was founded here in 805 A.D.—one of the most pleasing is a generously wide three-story pagoda flanked by mellow old pavilions with gracefully upturned eaves.

But the outstanding architectural achi ment is the relatively plain but impo open-air veranda of the main hall, n of which rests on a massive trestle of g timbers rising boldly out of the pine maple forest in the ravine to the south The whole site is dedicated to the elev headed Kannon, or Goddess of Mer represented by an aged wooden statue

Caymanians speak English with a soft and musical West Indies accent, and pronounce the name of their island "Grahn Caymáhn." Their currency is the Jamaican pound, and like the English they drive on the left.

Grand Cayman is about 22 miles long and 1 to 8 miles wide (a huge lagoon almost cuts it in half). Its interior is mostly a scrubby jungle of mangrove, ironwood, mahogany, bougainvillea, mango, palm, breadfruit, and tropical almond. It is penetrated by several roads which you can explore on a bicycle ($2 a day), by car ($10 a day), or by cab. Since the island's highest elevation is about 60 feet, there are few sweeping views except along the beaches.

During the hot summer, and any time after a rain, mosquitoes are abundant and vicious, particularly at night. Bug repellent is as useful as sunburn lotion. Most of the hotels have antimosquito fogging machines.

The resort hotels, mostly new, are quite pleasant. A few offer modern cottages. Winter rates, December through April, vary from $50 a day for two (American plan) to $10 a day for two (European plan). Rates are less from May through November. Meals are moderately priced and good; local specialties are Caribbean lobster and turtle steak (the turtles are now caught by Cayman sailors off the coast of Central America).

All the resorts are water oriented, and most rent diving gear (from face masks to scuba equipment) and boats (sail and motor). There is charter boat fishing for barracuda, marlin, sailfish, dolphin, tarpon, grouper, snapper, mackerel, bonita, and other species. Spear fishing is excellent, and there are numerous submerged shipwrecks to explore.

Miles of isolated beaches provide excellent beachcombing and shell collecting.

Grand Cayman became a free port in 1965, and a traveler can do some bargain shopping there. Cameras, radios, and perfumes are cheap.

Lacsa Airlines and British West Indian Airways fly directly to Grand Cayman from Miami; and from November through April, Pacific Western Airlines offers a $550 two-week tour package to the island from Vancouver, B.C. The cut rates in air travel

Most travel agents feel that the promotional fares offered by airlines are too complicated and should be simplified, standardized, or eliminated, according to a survey recently made by Western Airlines. The travel agents complained that their customers were confused and often irritated by the various fares, and that much of the agents' time was used simply to explain which, if any, of the discount rates were applicable.

You may see it differently. If you're planning a family air excursion within the United States, and take the time to thread your way through all the options now available, you may find you can save a sizable amount of money. The special fares discussed below are offered by most major domestic airlines, with only minor differences in discounts.

FAMILY PLANS

Families traveling together are entitled to a discount on all except one adult ticket. All tickets must be purchased together, but you do not have to make the entire round trip at the same time; flying one way together is all that is required, making the plan suitable for combined vacation-business trips. The family plan also applies if only one parent is flying: He or she pays full fare, the first accompanying child (12 through 21) pays what would otherwise be the other parent's fare, and the other children get the normal discounts according to age. (If all children are under 12, one of them would pay one-half of the regular fare.)

Family plan discounts are in effect for both coach and first-class travel, differing only on amount of discount. "Black-out" periods (times at which these fares are not available) are the same for both classes: noon Sunday through noon Monday, and noon to midnight Friday.

The least expensive family plan is to fly coach between Monday noon and Friday noon: One parent pays full fare, the other parent pays two-thirds fare, and each child 2 through 21 years pays one-third of the regular fare. (Usually children under 2 years fly free, if they do not occupy a seat—but if you have more than one child under 2, only one is free. The second child's fare would be subject to the appropriate discount for children 2 through 11.)

If you fly coach family plan on Saturday or on Sunday morning, or first-class family plan anytime except the restricted periods, you will pay full fare for the head of the family, three-fourths fare for spouse and children 12 through 21, hal fare for children 2 through 11.

Family plan fares are not in effect t Alaska during the summer months, or t Hawaii. Special excursion rates are offere by several airlines, however.

DISCOVER AMERICA EXCURSION FARE

Based on regular round-trip air fare (except first-class jet), these excursio rates offer 25 per cent discount for adult and 50 per cent discount for children through 11. Main restriction is on whe you can travel. You cannot return befor the next calendar week, and most excur sions must be completed within 30 day after date of departure. The same black out periods as for family plan are i effect, and there are also certain holiday periods in which you cannot travel.

Two stopovers are permitted, one of which is your turn-around point. For example, you can fly from Los Angeles stop off in Chicago, end up in New York and fly back to Los Angeles—if you stay within the 30-day period.

You can't combine the discounts of both family plan and Discover America excursion fares. A full fare ticket can be discounted only once. You should check with your travel agent or with the airline you are planning to use to learn which plan would be best for your particular family.

The airlines have petitioned to change both the rates of discount and the blackout periods for the family plan and the Discover America excursion, so check the current situation when you make your reservations.

MILITARY AND YOUTH FARES

Airlines differ somewhat on both of these, but generally both military personnel and youths can travel for one-half the regular fare on a standby basis, or two-thirds the regular fare with confirmed reservations.

To qualify for military fare you must be on active duty, be in uniform, have a copy of your orders, and be traveling at your own expense. Youth fares apply to persons 12 through 21. You need (as proof of age) an air travel identification card, available in advance from airlines for $3.

OTHER FARES

Discounts on other fares are offered by some major air carriers and many smaller airlines. These include "commuter" flights between heavy traffic areas (for example, San Francisco-Los Angeles-San Diego; San Francisco or Los Angeles to Las Vegas); special "thrift" fares (no meals included) from San Francisco or Los Angeles to Hawaii, and from Los Angeles to Chicago; package excursions for specific areas in the United States; and 17 to 30-day excursions from the United States to Puerto Rico and other islands in the Caribbean.

Visit five great NATIONAL PARKS in one trip along the Rocky Mountain Continental Divide in Montana and Alberta

This year . . . enjoy your vacation in the WONDERLAND of the Rocky Mountains. In less than 800 miles visit five magnificent national parks, effortlessly cross an international border, hike, swim, fish, ride horseback, boat, walk on a glacier, photograph wildlife and world-famous scenery in abundance . . . all in the fresh, clean air of the Rockies. Modern highways all the way. This year, make yours the Montana-Alberta "vacation of a lifetime."

Jasper National Park A superbly beautiful vacationland of 4,200 square miles, Jasper cuts along the eastern slope of the mighty Canadian Rockies. A sea of peaks, it lifts snow-crowned heads above the clouds. Beautiful alpine valleys are spangled with lakes and coursed by rushing streams. To the south, glaciers of the vast Columbia Icefield send meltwaters to three oceans: Pacific, Arctic and Atlantic.

Banff National Park Straddling the main ranges of the Canadian Rockies, Banff's 2,564 square miles stretch 150 miles along the eastern slope of the Continental Divide. To the north, Columbia Icefield, remnant of the Ice Age, links it with Jasper. Banff Park highlights include two world-famous resorts, Banff and Lake Louise.

Waterton Lakes National Park This park is immediately north of the International boundary. Colorful and charming, its mountains rise abruptly from the plains. Their remarkable colouring of purple, green, and gold gives to the peaks a warm and brilliant tone. In 1932, through legislation enacted by Canada and the United States, Waterton Lakes and Glacier National Parks were proclaimed the Waterton-Glacier International Peace Park.

Glacier National Park
Its site in the rugged Montana Rockies, Glacier is a million-acre alpine wonderland named not from the 60-odd glaciers of today, but because huge Ice Age glaciers carved its breathtaking scenery. Two hundred glacial lakes stud valleys or sit like jewels in rocky cirques. Crystal clear streams offer good fishing. Going-to-the-Sun Road, a spectacular 50-mile drive east and west, crosses the Continental Divide at Logan Pass and traverses the towering Garden Wall.

Yellowstone National Park Three of Yellowstone's five entrances are in Montana. This "Nature's Wonderland" is renowned for geysers, pools, mud caldrons, mountains, canyons, streams, lakes, forests, waterfalls . . . 2,221,000 acres of scenic beauty. Park wildlife includes buffalo, moose, elk, deer, antelope, Big Horn sheep, grizzly and black bear. Fishing is excellent in the largest and oldest of all national parks in the United States.

Houses, known as fale (fah-lay), are thatch and open-walled, but at least one monumental European-style church dominates each village scene.

Politically there are two Samoas.

Western Samoa, independent since 1962, is ruled by a noble head of state and elected chiefs, who are treated with royal respect. It began the century as German territory, then was administered by New Zealand, still representing it abroad.

British flavor is strong in Apia, the capital, only town, and home of 25,000 of the tiny state's 135,000 people. Apia is on the main island, Upolu, second in size (430 square miles) of the nine in this volcanic group. Savai'i, accessible only by small boat, is half again as large and rises almost twice as high—to 6,094 feet.

The U.S. Territory of American Samoa is a group of seven islands and coral atolls to the southeast, totaling only 76 square miles. Most of its 25,000 people live around the rim of mountainous Tutuila (52 square miles) which is almost bisected by magnificently fiord-like Pago Pago Bay. Acquired in 1900 for a naval base and administered by the Navy until 1951, American Samoa is now under the Department of the Interior. The President appoints its governor; the people elect one house of the legislature and village councils select chiefs for the other.

Governor H. Rex Lee's stay (1961-67) brought the territory into today's world fast with a jet airport, luxury hotel, schools with educational TV, new houses of wood and concrete, and more corrugated iron roofs on the traditionally thatched fale.

Samoa's driest months are May through September, but seasonal change is more noticeable in Western Samoa. Pago Pago rainfall is about 200 inches a year, almost twice Apia's. High humidity and 70° to 90° temperatures are fairly constant.

To enter Western Samoa, you must have a passport, smallpox vaccination certificate, and onward or round-trip ticket. No visa is necessary to stay three days, and you can arrange a longer visit at the Immigration Office (or arrive with a visa obtained at a New Zealand or British consulate). For American Samoa you need a vaccination certificate, on-going ticket, and proof of citizenship.

You spend dollars in American Samoa, and can use them in Western Samoa or change to tala ($1.40) and sene (14 cents). Tipping is discouraged. You'll use English to get around and do business, but most Samoans still converse in Samoan. It is similar to Hawaiian: vowel sounds like those of Romance languages and every syllable pronounced. A peculiarity is the way g is given the ng sound—as in Pago Pago, or palagi (foreigner).

Pan American has three flights a week each way between Honolulu and American Samoa. Two of the five-hour trips are legs on West Coast - Sydney runs and the other a leg on a Hawaii-Tahiti turnaround. A special Honolulu-Pago round-trip fare of $298.20 now applies on trips to Western Samoa; just add $26.60 (round trip) for the 80-mile, 45-minute hop made twice most days by Polynesian Airlines (on DC 3's) to grassy Faleolo Airfield, 23 miles west of Apia.

Air New Zealand has a weekly jet turnaround flight to American Samoa from Auckland and Nadi, Fiji. From Western Samoa you can make connections once a week to Suva, Fiji (Fiji Airways), and twice a week to both Nadi and Tonga (on Polynesian Airlines).

Matson's South Pacific cruise ships Monterey and Mariposa visit Pago Pago for a morning on their homeward journey; one calls every three weeks.

Union Steam Ship Co. of New Zealand's 69-passenger Matua calls at Apia and its 73-passenger Tofua at both Apia and Pago Pago on monthly cruises to Fiji, Tonga and Samoa.

Matson Lines and Pacific Islands Transport Line cargo-passenger vessels usually put into Samoan ports (Matson at Pago Pago only) about once a mounth, South Pacific-bound.

Western Samoa's hotels are institutions. Aggie's, at the east end of Apia's waterfront, is run by owner Aggie Grey herself, a famous South Seas personality. The main house has a veranda dining oom and lounge, busy bar, and some ooms, but most of the 78 units are in ings spread about the garden (along with ool and entertainment fale) and have ir-conditioners and private baths. Rates $16 to $26 a day, double) include meals.

The Casino Hotel, near the other end of Beach Road, is a picturesque, rambling, German-built structure, publicly-owned and run by Aggie's sister, Mary Croudace. Rates for its 24 rooms are $7 to $10 per person a day and include meals.

American Samoa's only hotel, the 101-oom, air-conditioned Pago Pago Inter-Continental, is handsome indeed, but ooms and meals come at stateside prices rooms alone: $18 to $25 a day double). Sixty more rooms are planned. There's a luty-free shop here and at the airport.

Upolu has three agencies (Gold Star, Retzlaff's, Samoa Scenic Tours) and Tutuila, two (Samoan Tours, Pago Pago Tours) to take you touring with perhaps a picnic stop beside an emerald lagoon where you can go swimming and snorkeling. Guided trips cost about $5 an hour per car. Drive-yourself cars rent for $8 a day plus 7 or 8 cents a mile. Taxiing about the towns costs 50 cents. On Tutuila you can ride boxy, open-air buses for 25 to 50 cents. In either Samoa you can arrange outer-island boat trips.

In Western Samoa by all means visit villages. People are active in the morning and before sundown — bathing, washing clothes, drying pandanus, toting water or taro, building fires, playing cricket.

Near Apia you might visit Mulinu'u, with royal tombs, the parliament fale, and independence monument; and Valima, Victorian mansion of the head of state, and Robert Louis Stevenson's last home (a trail goes to his tomb on Mount Vaea).

In Apia opposite the curved, tree-shaded seawall, you can shop Samoa's best selection of baskets and mats, tapa, shell jewelry, and carved wooden kava bowls, miniature canoes and fale—at 50 cents to $10. Cottons hand-printed on tapa blocks cost $1.25 a yard, and Aggie's shop and several boutiques will make a lavalava or puletasi (Samoan dress, a lavalava with tunic).

Along Tutuila's 26-mile south shore drive or cross-island to Fagasa, you're struck with the scenery: Sculptured, wooded peaks and ridges rise out of the surf. Pago Pago is still the hamlet of Somerset Maugham's Rain, with a clutter of wooden buildings beneath and upon the hillside back of the bay. But modern touches include two tuna canneries (visitors welcome) and the television studio where school lessons for the whole territory are produced (visit Tuesday and Thursday mornings). Feature attraction is the 7-minute, mile-long tramway ride across the harbor to the lookout (and TV transmitters) atop 1,612-foot Mount Alava; the round trip costs $2.50.

Bolex makes a sound silent projector and a silent sound projector.

Making a sound silent projector, like the Bolex 18-5 Super 8, involves designing the most light-weight compact body, the most precise automatic threading, optical perfection, and maximum brilliance. For frills, the Bolex 18-5 has an extraordinary ultra-slow motion at 5 frames per second which permits detailed analysis of movement. Then there's instant switching from forward to reverse projection. The Bolex 18-5 is available with 15, 20 or 25mm lenses or versatile zoom lens. All four lenses have a remarkable f/1.3 aperture, for more light on your screen.

As they used to say back in 1910, this projector's sound as a dollar. And being a truly great silent projector, it's soundless.

Making a silent sound projector involves removing the usual static sound track you're used to hearing every time you project a film. With the Bolex SM-8 you get faithful sound reproduction. And you can record or do a mix in the completely transistorized projector amplifier. (The SM-8 comes with a microphone.)

Along with silent sound, you get bright, sharp pictures because of the quartz iodine lamp and Paillard 15, 20, 25mm or zoom lenses. Choice of speeds — 18 or 24 frames per second.

The Bolex "silent sound" projector lets you really hear your soundtrack. And from only $379.50, it's a very sound deal.

Back into the colonial 19th century

It's easy enough to stop over in Guyana (formerly British Guiana, and still quite British in many ways), either on an aerial circuit in South America or as an extension of a trip to any of the islands in the Caribbean Sea. This westernmost of the three Guianas is attractive to hardy tourists of the old school for the spectacular scenery of its interior (see The Potaro goes over the edge in the May 1966 Sunset). It deserves fame also for its capital city of Georgetown, the only English-speaking capital in South America.

Georgetown represents the British colonial epoch better than any of the Latin American capitals represent colonial Spain or Portugal—partly because Guyana remained a colony until 1966 (after first having been in intermittent possession of the Dutch from 1621 to 1814), but also because it is small and has not done much Expo 67. Now, Canada 68.

This year get a close-up of the country that created Expo 67, Canada.

Quebec, the Old World come to the New. Winding streets with the sights and sounds of Europe. Children scampering by in a cascade of French. Not cooking, but cuisine. And the countryside. And beyond, forests of solitude. In Canada's cosmopolitan Montreal, "Man and His World," the encore to Expo 67.

The Atlantic Provinces, salty and scenic. Fishing villages so unspoiled, you'll feel you alone found them. The drone and skirling of bagpipes. Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. New Brunswick and Newfoundland. On the crisp waters of the Atlantic where the sun rises.

Ontario, Canada's contrast country. Shakespeare at Stratford, Indian powwows at Manitoulin Island. Hot Dixieland jazz in Toronto and red-coated soldiers in the changing of the guard at Ottawa's Parliament Hill. Thousands of lakes rippled only by trophy-size trout, and thunderous Niagara Falls gasped at by the world's tourists.

building since the turn of the century.

Named for the king in 1812 (it was Stabroek under the Dutch), Georgetown is called the best-preserved collection of Georgian buildings anywhere — although the construction that continued actively through the Victorian period actually resulted in overlapping and hybridization of styles, even adding Victorian gimcracks to some of the graceful, uncluttered older eaves and gables.

Neither of Georgetown's two principal hotels, the Tower and the Park, is anything to write home about, and you will not be there for the dining or the shopping. Aside from the great outlying Botanic Gardens, the best places to spend your time are the downtown streets, where you can enjoy the imposing architecture and also the outgoing friendliness of the racially heterogeneous people. Negroes and East Indians are most numerous, with strong Amerindian, Chinese, Portuguese, and English minorities and just about every mixture you can imagine.

A popular Georgian motif — the arched window flanked by two shorter rectangular ones — will help you identify the more venerable houses, which often are as well preserved as newer structures and just as freshly painted.

Built of a highly resistant native wood called greenheart, Georgetown buildings are practically immune to dampness and termites. But the town is not fireproof;

"Fish On"

"Fish on!" is a familiar cry to seasoned charter boat skippers like Zane Rockey, of Westport. It means that another sea-going passenger has felt the slamming strike of a King or Silver Salmon...and the fight is on! Washington's saltwater fishing season starts in mid-April and runs through October, as hundreds of charter boats operate from ports like Ilwaco, Westport, Neah Bay, Sekiu, La Push and Port Angeles. No license is required. Bring your own gear — or you can readily rent all the equipment needed. This year toss a line over the gunwale of a charter boat... then settle back and wait for your fish to hit. The excitement really starts the moment you feel a fighting salmon take that hook and head for the open water. "Fish on!"

Evinrude's Rogue survives the ultimate test

— 1,000 hours with teen-age test drivers

What are we trying to prove? That the Evinrude Rogue is th most unbreakable and unsinkable 19-footer ever built? No. W already know the answer to that.

The question is: Is even the Rogue tough enough?

Tough enough for a fisherman caught miles offshore when a mil day suddenly turns into a wild one? Tough enough to survive low blow from a hidden shoal? Tough enough and safe enoug so a family man can relax and really enjoy the good life afloat?

To find out, we recruited a team of hell-for-leather teen-ag drivers and dared them to do their worst. Two years and dozen of teen-agers later, they're still at it—still trying.

Which explains why we build the Rogue the way we do. Why w make it so indestructible, so comfortable, and so uncommonl well equipped. And why it may sometimes cost more than some thing else that may look as good on the showroom floor.

But — out where sea meets sky, with nothing but wild water al around — there's hardly anything so unimportant as the few dollars you might have saved.

Especially when you consider what you might have to give up.

the power behind the fun revolution

A season in the wilderness

novelist-poet from Pennsylvania came Utah, took a job as seasonal ranger in rches National Monument, and kept a urnal that grew into a great book. It the salty, unabashed collection of oughts and anecdotes—sometimes dead rious, sometimes irresistibly funny— en- led Desert Solitaire: A Season in the ilderness, by Edward Abbey (McGraw- ill Book Company, New York, 1968; 5.95).

e suspect Abbey is wrong in his forecast n the introduction) that "serious critics . . will if they read this book dislike it tensely; at least I hope so." For its asual syntax, some critics may dislike the ook a little, but only the spoilers of eautiful places will dislike it intensely.

he opening paragraph of Chapter 1 is a ingle sentence, evoked by waking up at rches after arriving in the dark the night efore: "This is the most beautiful place n earth." From then on, Abbey's lone- ome house trailer is the base to which ou and he return from time to time for using and reverie, for contemplation f the natural scene and the mostly far-off uman race. The rest of the time is spent anging near and far, often on projects hat have nothing, officially, to do with is being a ranger.

s Abbey warns, this book is an elegy; nost of what he writes about is "already one or going under fast." Where destruc- ion is deliberate, he responds with fury, ut he observes the inevitable—such as he passing of "real" cowboys, for ex- mple—with sentimental fatalism. His vivid account of participation in a cattle drive, in which you share his thirst, sad- dle-weariness, and mixed sympathy and hatred for the plodding, bawling, dust- raising herd, is a classic.

There is much more—like the stern mo- ments when the irrepressible Abbey takes risks with cliffs or darkness and gets into trouble; thoughtful discourses on Nava- jos and on Mormonism; some brief floun- derings in politics; an occasional rousing whack at his temporary employer, the National Park Service; and a memorable sequence of the witty things he says to the Labor Day tourists along with the things he is tempted to say but doesn't: ". . . Turn that motor off. Get out of that piece of iron and stretch your varicose veins . . . Yes sir, yes madam, I entreat you, get out of those motorized wheel- chairs . . . and walk, walk, WALK upon our sweet and blessed land!"

Rodeo...our wildest spectator sport...

Sunset

e top cowboys who follow the professional rodeo circuit have t Phoenix and the Jaycees Rodeo to move on to Long Beach · the Pacific Indoor Rodeo and on up the coast for the big ows at Portland and Spokane. Meanwhile, almost any week-d, you'll find other cowboys competing in smaller contests over the West. The rodeo season lasts all year; and many of highlights of 1968 are still to come.

o-day-o" may sound better to students of Spanish, but here the West you're likely to be taken for a dude if you pro-unce it that way. The cowboy contestants say "ro-dee-o," d they're the ones being bucked, banged, and bruised by the ones and Brahma bulls.

hether it's a small town "pumpkin roller" or a big city "grand tional," the rodeo remains one of our wildest and wooliest ectator sports, akin to the bullfights of Latin countries and reminiscent of the days when gladiators faced the imperial n nagerie in the circuses of Rome.

Match up 2,000 pounds of raging, red-eyed Brahma with 1 pounds of stubborn, showoff cowboy and you have a guara teed attention-grabber. Toss in a brass band, the colorful spe tacle of the grand entry, and the humor of the clowns, and t result is two hours or more of solid entertainment.

No two rodeos are exactly alike, but there are two things y can always count on: the showmanship of the rodeo cowb and the ornery disposition of the rodeo stock.

HOW IT ALL BEGAN

A truly Western phenomenon, the professional rodeo grew o of the boastful dares of working cowhands who pushed her north on the long cattle drives from Texas in the years th followed the Civil War. Arriving in a trail town, the dust drovers would often pit their riding and roping skills again those of the local cowboys, or stage exhibitions to impress the small-town audience.

At Cheyenne, Wyoming, in 1872, the townsfolk flocked dow to the edge of town to watch a wild bunch of cowboys hold "cow-riding" contest. In 1883 the citizens of Pecos, Texas, pu up prize money for a steer roping contest right down the mai street. In 1886 the town of Prescott, Arizona, awarded a silv buckle to a top rodeo contestant, and two years later it built grandstand and sold tickets to what was to become the olde annual rodeo in the West.

Today California is the rodeo center of the world, with mor such events each season than any other state in the union; an the professional rodeo circuit stretches clear across the conti nent, even invading a few of the New England states.

After the grand entry come the competitive events. Roping is always a contest with the clock

1. Roper throws loop at running calf. In addition to cowboy's skill with lariat, event requires well trained horse

odern rodeo has become a highly competitive sport, as well ganized as professional golf or baseball. The rag-tag trail ver contestant of yesteryear has been succeeded by a new ed of rodeo cowboy whose skills can bring the fame and for- ne accorded professional athletes in other fields.

iding light of rodeo today is the Rodeo Cowboys Associa- n, an organization that sets the standard rules and regulations governing every RCA-approved contest. The RCA also serves as a sort of "cowboys' union" to look after the interests of the professional rodeo contestants.

Prize money for each rodeo event is made up of a "purse" plus entry fees paid by the contestants. Each event is divided into "go-rounds"; the high-scoring cowboy wins "day money" in each go-round plus the chance at "average" money for the best total or average score.

EO EVENTS

t rodeo events are a contest against the clock—trying for fastest time in one of the roping events or "lasting the t" during a ride. But the skill and technique of the con- nt (and in riding events the performance of the animal g ridden) are equally important factors in the final score.

can enjoy the thrills and excitement of rodeo without erstanding all the fine points of judging. A basic knowledge ow an event is scored, however, will make the rodeo even e meaningful. Here are a few points to watch in the tradi- al events:

dle bronc riding. The rider must have his spurs in contact on the horse's shoulders as the animal's front feet hit the nd on the first jump out of the chute. One of the rider's s must be free at all times. The rider is disqualified if he bucked off, loses his stirrup or buck rein, wraps the rein nd his hand, touches the saddle ("pulls leather") with er hand, or touches the horse or rein with his free hand at time during the ride. The event is timed for either 8 or 10 nds, at the discretion of the stock contractor. The horse is red separately for his bucking performance.

eback riding. As in saddle bronc riding, the horse's shoulders st be spurred on the first jump out of the chute until its nt feet hit the ground. One of the rider's hands must be free ll times (with the other he holds fast to a kind of rope belt ed the surcingle). The rider is disqualified if he gets bucked touches the animal with his free hand, or allows the sur- gle rigging to come off the horse. The event is timed for 8 onds. The horse is scored separately.

l riding. The rider must keep one hand free at all times (with other he holds fast to a loose bull rope). The rider is dis- alified if he gets bucked off, touches the animal with his free nd, or uses sharp spurs. The event is timed for 8 seconds. e bull is scored for bucking.

lf roping. The mounted rider waits in the chute until the re- sed calf crosses the barrier line. If the roper leaves the chute reaks the barrier") before the calf crosses the line, he's nalized—usually 10 seconds. The roper may carry two ropes d, if he misses with the first, use the second. When the calf roped the rider must dismount, "go down the rope," and ow the calf by hand. Rope and rein must be adjusted in such manner as to prevent horse from dragging calf. The roper en uses a tie rope ("piggin' string") to cross and tie any three the calf's feet, and signals the completed tie by raising both nds. If the tie rope comes loose or the calf gets to its feet

The traditional events are for men . . . but the barrel race is just for the girls

Girl barrel racer makes turn on cloverleaf ride at San Juan Bautista last July. Mission in background

Flank strap keeps belled Brahma bucking. Rider's one-handed grip keeps bull rope tight around bull before the tie is ruled fair by judges, the roper is disqualified.

Steer wrestling (or bulldogging). Each bulldogger has a partner ("hazer") to keep the steer headed in the right direction. The steer and hazer leave the chute together; the time begins when the barrier is released in front of the mounted "dogger." Riding at break-neck speed and leaning toward the steer's horns, the dogger dives from his horse, grasps the horns, digs heels in the ground to bring the steer to a stop, and twists it down to the ground. The steer is judged down only when it has flat on its side, all four legs and head in the same direction dogger must have his hand on the steer when flagged.

Team roping. This event and its alternate, team tying, involve two mounted ropers, a "header" and a "heeler."

In team roping, the two ropers catch a steer by head and feet and bring it to a stop without throwing it to the gr Each partner is allowed three throws but only one rope header must make his catch first. Time is taken when the s ing steer is roped at both head and heels (5-second pena only one heel) and both horses are facing the steer in line the ropes.

Here are the Western rodeos ... from April to October

The rodeo season gets started down in the sunny cactus country near the Mexican border in early January, moves across the winter-warm Southwest in February and March, follows the spring weather north through April, May, and June, reaches all the way up to western Canada by midsummer.

"Back east" promoters import the rodeo in late summer and early fall. Then the circuit swings west again for the big shows at Pendleton and San Francisco. The World Series of professional rodeo is the National Finals Rodeo at Oklahoma City in December.

Dates, places, and final results of all RCA-approved professional rodeos are listed in the twice-monthly trade publication Rodeo Sports News (Rodeo Information Commission, 2929 W. 19th Ave., Denver 80204; $4 a year).

A.I.A. Sunset Western Home Awards

Breaking the rules... and breaking through

Some of the most innovative designs in the biennial Western Home Awards have been vacation houses, cabins, weekend places. Here is a look back at several outstanding early award winners. Starting on page 90 is a look at three unusual new ones

ART HUPY

1957 Honor Award weekend house built by Seattle architect Paul Thiry for himself is early, handsome A-frame

Cabins and vacation houses make up only a small portion of the entries in the Western Home Awards, the house design program sponsored every two years by the American Institute of Architects and Sunset.

But again and again, cabins and weekend places win more than their share of awards. In the recent 1967-1968 round of the Western Home Awards, such "second homes" really stole the show. They won almost half of the awards that the jury granted for custom design.

The reason a small weekend place wins a design award may simply be that as a project, it offers both client and architect freedoms they don't have when they are struggling with the major investment and the complex requirements of a year-around family house.

The budget for a vacation house is usually much lower and the client's approach is usually more casual. He tends to be less worried, more willing to experiment, more willing to put up with omissions and minor inconvenience.

The result can be freshness, innovation, idea breakthroughs. The six houses pictured on these two pages are award winners going back through the whole history of the Western Home Awards. Originality was evident in every case.

The A-frame was one idea that caught on in the 1950's. With this triangular approach, the roof and walls of the cabin are one. The design does have its disadvantages but it is easy and economical to build, it is dramatic-looking, and the spaces indoors are interesting. The 1957 winner pictured here was a handsome early example of the A-frame idea. It won its top of the cabins on these two pages are quite small, and none s very expensive. The little beach house on poles, a 1965 ner, actually was built for $5,000, and this price included architect's fee.

of the six pictured here have been in Sunset in previous ars, three in articles published a year or more before they n their awards. Two were on Sunset's cover: the wine tank bin in February, 1962, the little house with the great glass ll in May, 1964.

d these unusual small weekend places have interested Sun- 's readers.

chitect Henrik Bull's 1959 award winner, the little square bin with the folded roof, has brought more reader letters to nset than any other house the magazine has ever reported. day, 10 years after we first published it, we are still getting tters month after month from readers asking for more infor- ation, or for copies of the original artiele. All available copies e long gone, but the cabin is pictured on pages 12 and 13 of e Sunset book Cabins and Vacation Houses (Lane Books, Menlo Park, Calif., 1967).

s design breakthrough was simple but dramatic: within it is a wo-story-high room facing out into a tapestry of trees. There a balcony bedroom above, and the staircase coming down om it doubles as extra seating.

he search for fresh answers continues, as three unusual vaca- on and weekend houses pictured on the next six pages dem- nstrate. All were award winners in the recent 1967-1968 ound of the Western Home Awards. Each won its award, not rimarily for its "looks," but for the fresh design thinking it xpresses.

SPECIAL AWARD

It's just one small room . . . hung on poles . . . but look around!

This little house (only 585 square feet) has the intimacy of a garden house, but with the airy feeling you might experience in a large tent or pavilion.

Cooking, eating, and sleeping facilities are all at hand, yet you're not overly conscious that the interior is a single room. Basically it's an open octagon supported by eight poles and contained by a simple pyramidal roof. Secondary spaces—the kitchen, dining, sleeping areas—become extensions of the formal octagon; the roof was just lengthened where necessary.

The owners, a young couple from San Francisco, don't presently feel they need a separate bedroom. However, another room can easily be added outside the dining area and reached through the double glass doors beside the bath-dressing room.

The architects were MLTW/Moore Turnbull, for Mr. and Mrs. Reverdy Johnson, The Sea Ranch, California.

AWARD OF MERIT

Upstairs sometimes is theater . . . downstairs is the bunkroom

Since it's surrounded by a thicket of conifers, you can't guess what's inside this house by looking at the outside. You're certainly not prepared for the kind of space you see in the color photograph at right. Within the three levels of house there's room for a crowd, and places to have privacy too.

One of the more whimsical features is a hideaway built into the hollow wall above the entry. To reach it you go up a wall-hung ladder and through a concealed door; there's an opening through which you can peer down into the living room. It's a place to escape, to read a book, to nap; it could also accommodate another sleeping bag when the rest of the house is full.

A hinged wall section in the master bedroom can be open to share the high-ceilinged living room space, or closed to make the room an adult retreat.

The architects were MLTW/Moore Turnbull, for Mrs. Manning Lawrence, The Sea Ranch, California.

Wind-protected patio is off bunkroom on lowest level. In background lead up to a deck outside dining-kitchen

Bunkroom sleeps seven (one bunk is a single), has radiantly heated concrete slab, accordion door for dividing into two rooms

Sometimes it's a theater

Stepped-up levels in corner bay make this a good amphitheater for entertainments. At other times people use it for lounging, ocean viewing, sunset admiring or storm watching

The lively California Design show gives you a look at tomorrow

It's in Pasadena through May 12 . . . in Sacramento starting June 28

You might expect design creativity to a superlative degree in a state that, if it were a nation, would rank sixth in the world in gross national product and first in standard of living. And you will not be disappointed in the exhibition called California Design X in Pasadena this month.

If you're not in Southern California during its run there, you'll have another opportunity: The show will be moved in its entirety to be the opening design exhibit at the new California Exposition in Sacramento from June 28 through September 17.

Tenth in the series of California Design shows, now held triennially, it opens at the Pasadena Art Museum (46 N. Los Robles Ave.) on March 31 and continues through May 12. Hours are 2 to 5 P.M. Sunday; 10 A.M. to 9 P.M. Tuesday and Friday; 10 A.M. to 5 P.M. Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday. (The museum is closed Monday.) Admission is $1 (50 cents for students).

On display will be 780 objects designed in the last three years, of which about half are for manufacture. The remainder are one-of-a-kind works of designer-craftsmen; juries in Oakland and Pasadena selected some 250 of these from about 3,000 submissions, and about 100 were entered by invitation.

The range goes far beyond that of most design and craft shows. It includes a whole new class of things made of paper, recreational vehicles such as a dune buggy and a sand sailer, some innovative street furniture, even such whimsy as a sophisticated pendulum that draws its own wave-motion pictures.

Each room has closet, its own entry to hall

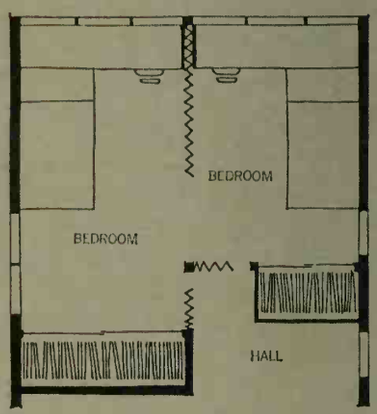
The two bedrooms become one playroom

In these convertible children's rooms, space opens up into a large playroom or partitions off into smaller private sleeping quarters.

A boy and a girl share the one at right. An accordion-folding door stacks into a boxlike structure between the two desks. These desks run the full width of each room and serve as headboards for the freestanding beds. Above the windows are bookshelves; at the opposite end of each room is a closet with a built-in chest of drawers.

The architect was Edward Sullam for Dr. and Mrs. Edward G. Maehara, Honolulu.



The two rooms can open into one or divide into three

Three small children live in the room at right. It's really two rooms that open into one or divide into three. The combined floor space makes one large play area; the three divided spaces give each child a private bedroom, a closet, built-in drawers, and a window.

Because the house is small and every bit of space counts, the architect-owner, Donald R. Goldman, of San Diego, covered most of the available wall space with a variety of storage—open shelves above the play counter, for example, and closed storage above the bed in the playroom. The wall beside each bed is covered with cork so each child has his own bulletin board, in addition to the large shared one above the play counter.

During the season when Easter and the coming of spring share festivities, breads take on special shapes and flavors in Italy. Two of the most handsome are colomba di Pasqua (pronounced pause-quaw), or dove of Easter, and buccellati (booch-chay-lah-tea)—shiny, smooth rings.

Both are remarkably easy to re-create in your own kitchen, and both share the same egg-butter rich dough; you just vary the flavors and shapes. Both breads freeze.

COLOMBA DI PASQUA
(Easter Dove)

- 1 package yeast, active dry or compressed
- ¼ cup warm water (lukewarm for compressed yeast)
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup (¼ lb.) soft butter
- 10 tablespoons (½ cup plus 2 tablespoons) sugar
- 2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 whole eggs
- 3 egg yolks
- 4½ cups unsifted regular all-purpose flour
- About 4 ounces (4 to 5 tablespoons or half an 8-oz. can) almond paste, cut in ½-inch cubes
- About 36 whole blanched almonds
- Beaten egg white and granulated sugar for decoration

Stir yeast into warm water and set aside to soften. Heat milk to scalding; cool.

In the large bowl of your mixer, cream butter, sugar, lemon peel, vanilla, and salt until mixture is fluffy. Beat in eggs and egg yolks, one at a time. Mix in milk and yeast; then at slow speed gradually beat in flour. Turn soft dough onto well floured board; knead vigorously until smooth and quite elastic; takes 10 to 15 minutes.

Put dough in a large buttered bowl; turn over once to grease top. Cover bowl and set in a warm place for about 1 hour and 30 minutes, or until dough is doubled.

To shape the dove, knead dough on lightly floured board to remove bubbles. Cut in half and shape each half into a smooth ball.

In the center of a greased 12 by 15-inch baking sheet, flatten one dough ball and roll out across narrow dimension of pan to make an oval about 11 inches long and 6 inches wide. On a floured board, roll other ball of dough out to make a softly outlined triangle about 14 inches tall and 6 inches across wide end. Lay triangle across oval as shown above. Twist narrow end to make head; pinch to form beak. Twist wide end to make tail; pull tail into fan shape and cut gashes to simulate feathers.

Stick almond paste chunks into wings and stud with almonds. Let rise in a warm place about 25 minutes, or until slightly puffed looking. Brush gently with beaten egg white and sprinkle wings generously with sugar. Bake in a 350° oven for about 40 minutes, until bird is richly browned; for lighter color you can cover bird with foil the last 15 minutes.

Serve warm or cool, cut wings from body and offer slices of both. If bread has been frozen, thaw, wrap in foil, and reheat in a 250° oven for 40 minutes. Makes 1 large loaf.

BUCCELLATI

Prepare dough for Colomba di Pasqua with these changes: Combine ⅓ cup seeded muscat raisins with 3 tablespoons Marsala or Port wine; set aside for at least 30 minutes. Add 2 tablespoons anise seed to milk before scalding. Omit lemon peel and vanilla and use instead 1 teaspoon anise extract. When you add liquid ingredients to the egg mixture, also add the wine drained from the raisins.

After you knead the dough, flatten with your hands until ¾ inch thick. Spread drained raisins over surface and roll jelly-roll-fashion, enclosing raisins and tucking ends under; let rise until doubled.

To shape buccellati, knead out air bubbles and divide dough into thirds; knead each to make a smooth ball. On a small greased baking sheet roll each into a round cake 7 inches in diameter. Poke a hole in the exact center of each dough cake.

Pull into rings as shown below; each opening should be 6 inches across. Omit almonds, paste, and egg white and sugar decoration. Let rings rise in a warm place for about 25 minutes, or until puffed looking. Brush with beaten whole egg. Bake in a 350° oven for 30 minutes, or until well browned.

Serve warm or cool; if bread was frozen, thaw, wrap in foil, and reheat in a 250° oven for 30 minutes. Makes 3 rings.

Everybody dips the cut, raw vegetables into the hot bath, then eats with his fingers

The ancient custom of eating from the same dish to signify the spirit of good fellowship is celebrated with greatest variety and finesse in the Alpine regions of northwest Italy and southwest Switzerland.

There you find such communal dishes as Swiss beef fondue and Italian fonduta. Most familiar, perhaps, is the skier's favorite of melted Swiss cheese fondue. But the most beautiful is the Italian spectacle of bagna cauda (bag-nyah caw-daw) or, as translated from the Piedmontese dialect, hot bath.

This pre-dinner dish is so straightforward it almost belies its goodness. It is just plain raw vegetables dipped, but not cooked, in a mutually shared bowl of bubbling butter and olive oil, made bold by garlic and anchovies.

The artistry, freshness, and ease of bagna cauda, served as pictured on Sunset's cover, suit it well to our casual Western entertaining. The quality and quantity of vegetables available here make it practical. And the adaptability of the ingredients lets you scale an appetizer course to fit a group of 8 to 30.

HOW TO SERVE BAGNA CAUDA

Prepare the vegetables according to the following directions. You want to keep that right-from-the-garden look so you do just enough cutting that it will be easy to break away portions to eat.

Arrange vegetables in a basket of appropriate size. Place alongside it the butter-oil sauce (recipe follows). And p sent a basket of thinly sliced Fren bread or sliced crusty rolls.

To eat, swirl a piece of vegetable throu the hot sauce. Some prefer to impale vegetable piece first on a skewer so it be completely immersed in the sau Hold a piece of bread like a napkin un the vegetable to catch drips as you it. Eventually, the bread soaks up enou drippings to become a tasty bit itself.

Keep in mind that people are often a to consume an astonishing quantity bagna cauda—it's easy to justify taki your fill of the fresh, crisp vegetables b cause very little of the rich sauce actua sticks to each morsel.

DARROW M. WATT

is to heat the anchovy-garlic butter sauce—guests do the rest. There are enough vegetables here for about 16 generous servings

BAGNA CAUDA VEGETABLES

You'll need about 1 to 2 cups vegetable pieces per person, but you'll have to estimate quantities while vegetables are still whole. Choose a colorful assortment. Sprinkle with water just before serving.

Artichokes. Break off small outer bracts; cut thorny tips from remaining bracts with scissors. Trim stem ends. Keep in acid water (1 tablespoon vinegar to 1 quart water) until ready to serve. To eat, bite off tender base of each bract.

Cabbage. Cut red or white cabbage in half. Cut vertical gashes in each half. Break off chunks to eat.

Carrots. Leave on an inch of stem; peel. Gash carrot not quite through in short sections; break apart to eat.

Cauliflower. Cut out core, keeping head whole. Break off flowerettes to eat.

Cherry tomatoes. Dip with stems.

Green beans. Snap off ends and remove strings. Leave whole to eat.

Green peppers. Cut pepper vertically down to the stem in 8 to 12 sections around the seed center. Break to eat.

Mushrooms. Trim stem ends. Eat small mushrooms whole. Cut large ones through cap only into 4 to 6 sections; break to eat.

Radishes. Cut off root ends and all but one or two leaves to hold for dipping.

Turnips. Peel and cut not quite through in thick slices. Break apart to eat.

Zucchini and yellow crookneck squash. Trim ends; cut not quite through in short sections. Break apart to eat.

BAGNA CAUDA SAUCE

Choose a heatproof container that will be only about half filled by the quantity of sauce you make. In it, combine ½ cup (¼ lb.) butter, ¼ cup olive oil, and 4 small cloves garlic, mashed. Drain 1 can (2 oz.) flat anchovy fillets well on paper towels and finely chop; add to sauce and stir over moderate heat until mixture bubbles.

To serve, set over candle or low alcohol flame. Mixture must not get hot enough to brown and burn. Makes 8 to 10 servings (or double recipe for 16 to 20 servings; triple it for 24 to 30 servings).

What can a gardener do between now and October? A great deal. Here is proof

A year ago, Sunset took six pages to sho how the baseball season, mid-April t mid-October, is also the season of summe garden triumphs. We called these garden "baseball gardens," and we invited read ers who'd like to grow one to send us report, after the World Series, of the results. Several dozen people (or families stuck with us from opening day throug the Series and sent in their reports.

This month we show and tell you wha some of these gardeners accomplished. A about the time Boston, Detroit, Minne sota, and Chicago were fighting it ou for the American League pennant las fall, we visited many of these garden The photographs we took illustrate thi article.

This had been a bare, junky corner. Lester Dickinson, Richmond, Calif., erected the shade house, planted grape vines (outside) April 3, tuberous begonias (inside) May 16

he man who grew
e beautiful begonias

n the shade house in picture at the top f this page, we see a well pleased man. Ie knows now that he can grow tuberous egonias as well as anybody: "Our first ry and we got raves from everyone!"

n April 2 Mr. Dickinson put together nd welded the metal framework for his hade house. The next day he put up the iberglass roof and wall. That same day, t a nursery sale, he bought the three grape vines. They went outside the shade ouse, against the sunny south wall. He ut up wire between the uprights on that

An old gym set

In five months, Mrs. Allison Child, Glendora, Calif., covered gym set with gourds, squash, morning glory side for the grapes to climb on. Someday these vines will supply the shade for the house; fiberglass will serve meanwhile.

And on the third day, he spaded the vegetable garden in front of the grape vines. He mixed in copious quantities of soil conditioner, sand, and manure. (From the unusual amount of first-year growth the grape vines made, we can assume that they got their toes into some of this treated soil.)

Then, for the rest of April it rained, snowed, hailed, and rained some more.

Mr. Dickinson made good use of four days off, May 12 to 15. He brought in 12 yards of soil to fill in low spots around the shade house and garden fence. He installed the shade house's edging boards and brought in and spread five loads of pea gravel for its floor.

On May 16 he planted 60 tuberous begonia seedlings. For these he excavated the soil and planted in leaf mold and sand. All summer he fed the begonias weekly with fish emulsion and watered them lightly about once a week. (In warmer, dryer climates you'd have to water more often.)

When we visited Mr. Dickinson's garden, his tuberous begonias looked every bit as good as those you see at the Santa Cruz commercial growers'. None of the plants needed staking.

To complete the tally, this energetic man also grew and harvested a huge vegetable garden (the match of any others on these pages), planted and tended rhododendrons and azaleas in his shade house, grew a fine border of zinnias, chrysanthemums, marigolds, and dahlias—while bringing in the wherewithal to support a family of six.

He's a San Francisco Giants fan, and he signed off his report on September 29: "The Giants and I are already looking forward to next year." But he's also a curious-minded man: When our baseball garden reviewing panel awarded him four tickets to any West Coast opening day game in 1968, Mr. Dickinson allowed that he'd like to take a look at those new Oakland A's. That's where he and his party will be (box seats between home plate and first base) on the night of April 17.

A trend: plants on old gym sets

We can report to the world that there is a late-1960's trend in Western North America toward growing gardens of vining plants on old gym sets. Several gardeners independently reported on it.

Mrs. Florence Kellogg Lyon of San Diego was one. She endorses tomatoes. "The tomatoes grew so profusely on it that they formed a better arbor than the scarlet runner beans and kudzu vines that were planted for that purpose."

Mrs. Allison Child of Glendora, California, grew the garden on the old gym set shown at bottom of page 105. Hers was an octagonal set with fire pole. She filled in five sides with wire and grew vines on those panels and on the fire pole. She tried gourds, moonflowers, morning glory, cypress vine, scarlet runner bean, sweet peas, banana squash, and pumpkin—all planted as seeds in June. Her most successful gym-set-coverers were gourds, banana squash, and morning glory.

Gardens grown by two determined boys

Robert Abe, of Carpinteria, California, who was then 10 years old, seems to be the dauntless kind who does not recognize or worry about long odds against him.

He reported: "We have a creek in the back of our home with lots of birds. Therefore, I made a border with pie plates (tin) dangling to keep the birds from eating the seeds. The area where I planted the seeds was never used before so the soil was hard. I dug deep and mixed fertilizer in the soil before I planted the seeds. All the seeds did not grow. Just some of them. But the plants that came out did very well. I really enjoyed watching the plants grow and taking care of them. I had fun all summer."

Robert did all his planting on May 8—the petunias as nursery plants and everything else from seed. Here are his first-bloom dates: 'Calypso' petunia, May 22; 'Blue Lace' petunia, May 28; nasturtium, June 28; gourd, July 10; cockscomb, July 16; marigold, August 2; pincushion flower, September 7; bells of Ireland, September 28.

A 12-year-old in Seattle, Eric Hanna, wrote a report that shows his two years of seniority over Robert and reflects the many interests of a bright, husky, resourceful boy. Below are a few excerpts. (The Angels are the Seattle Angels, the baseball team that Eric followed. Remember that this was a baseball garden.)

The diary's first entry: "This spring I finished building a tree house in a large old cherry tree. I placed my gardens so that I could view them from the tree house. But two robins built a nest in the floor joists so I can't go up to it yet . . .

"May 14—Good day for gardening but a bad day for the Angels. Planted six rows of Swiss chard seeds.

"May 19—Planted two rows of green onion sets and transplanted half of sunflowers along fence. Robins have left nest in cherry tree, so I can have it back.

"July 2—Spent morning pinching tomatoes and weeding, and afternoon in the tree house listening to Angel double-

"July 19—Ate first cherry tomatoes today to celebrate Angels' splitting a twin bill with Hawaii, pitching Burgmeier and Locke. Picked half of green onions and left half in ground to dry.

"August 1—Angels finally broke 11-game losing streak by defeating Tulsa 1-0 on Banks' ninth home run. Aphids eating chard again, but too windy to spray.

"August 3—Went salmon fishing on the Skagit—no luck. Angels also had poor luck in losing to Tulsa 6-2. Tomatoes all loaded with green fruit but needing lots of water. Fertilized again. Marigolds blooming their heads off.

"October 14—Pulled up tomatoes and hung them in garage to finish ripening. They finished season like Angels—good showing at start, but kind of puny at the end."

The experimental gardeners of the Pacific Northwest

We'd like you to meet the willing-to-try-almost-anything vegetable gardeners of western Oregon and Washington:

Mrs. Marie Slinger of Salem planted nasturtiums among her cucumbers to repel diabrotica. She planted tall marigolds among beans to repel aphids. Apparently both tricks worked. She grew potatoes in hay—planted the seed potato in a pocket of compost, covered it with 4 inches of hay, and later reached into the cover and pulled out smooth, pest-free potatoes whenever she wanted some.

Mr. Larry Goodhew of Port Ludlow, Washington, was one of two Puget Sound gardeners to grow and introduce us to soldier beans (see photograph on last page of this article). These tasty dry beans with the Rorschach inkblot ings are not sold, it seems, but are ficked over garden fences.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Hunt, Jr., o mano Island, Washington, tried things in their bountiful garden, s above. They grew their soldier beans, flowers, tomatoes, pole beans, and s runner beans in submerged gallon with no bottoms. "My plan," Mr. said, "was to try electroculture in as ways as possible." Electroculture is a oretical means of "harnessing atmosp electricity for plant growth" by u metal above plants and in soil. We admit that the Hunts' electroculture plants were big, husky, and productiv lank Gargano, with a weekend place in ista, California, who claimed that by eptember 1 his score in the tomato ague was "Insects, birds, and gophers 40 me 12." The Garganos got 12 tomatoes. Weekend places miss the seven-day solici- ude that keeps the beasties away.

Iajor F. Schollenberger, of Redlands, alifornia, who was the only baseball gar- ener to use dynamite. His pick struck ut on his huge, hard-packed, adobe slope; o he obtained a blasting permit, got ome dynamite sticks, caps, and a fuse, nd in two hours of blasting he had a gen- rous-sized shelf in the slope for benches, able, and parasol.

Elmer L. Millage, of La Crescenta, Cali- ornia, whose carrots were so tough the amily's rabbit wouldn't eat them.

The Kenneth G. Holmes family, of Tu- unga, California, who had fun trying to ring in truck-garden crops on decom- osed granite soil. They did come up with multiple-use combination: a dwarf peach ree (flowers and fruits) underplanted with New Zealand spinach (resembles ajuga, astes better than real spinach).

Louis B. Hill, of Berkeley, with one of the neatest, most abundant vegetable gar- dens of all. The weedless soil looked sculp- tured. The harvest was measured in quarts, half-gallons, and 20-pound lots.

Donald Bosque, of Novato, California, the scientific gardener who kept records of the germination and growth of six kinds of plants grown from seeds that he took from his own garden the year before.

Ron Derobertis, of Sacramento, who built a nice flagstone patio and grew Japanese cucumbers (white, sausage-shaped, 2 feet long). He trained them on a fence.

Lloyd L. Olson, Sr., of Happy Camp, Cali- fornia, who had to drive 80 slow, hot miles to get plants so he sowed, begged, bor- rowed, or discovered all the plants that made his attractive garden.

Mrs. Birdie Kuehl, of Yakima, Washing- ton, who skillfully planted 46 kinds of flowering plants in a 20 by 40-foot plot—shrubs, annuals, perennials, and bulbs.

Big plans for a summer-fall garden?

The gardens on these pages came to our attention through a contest announced in Sunset's "baseball garden" article last April. This year we plan another garden contest.

If you are going to build and plant a summer-fall garden this year, may we suggest that you consider entering our contest? (You can drop out at any time if your garden doesn't pan out.)

Last year all entrants who sent in a report were given a baseball plant (Euphorbia obesa) and a printed certificate. Those whose gardens were judged most impressive were awarded baseball tickets and cash prizes. This year we plan some similar awards.

To enter the contest, just send your name and address (and age if you're under 16) to Summer-Fall Gardens, Sunset Magazine, Menlo Park, Calif. 94025. We'll send you an entry number, instructions, and prize list.

In addition to the kinds of gardens and plants shown on these pages, we'd especially like to see these summer-fall garden ingredients: fuchsias (in suitable climates), gladiolus, succulents, container plants, moving water, more pools, more begonias, more strawberries, more structures, more loafing areas, more innovations.

After: Roof ridge raised slightly to accommodate heating ducts

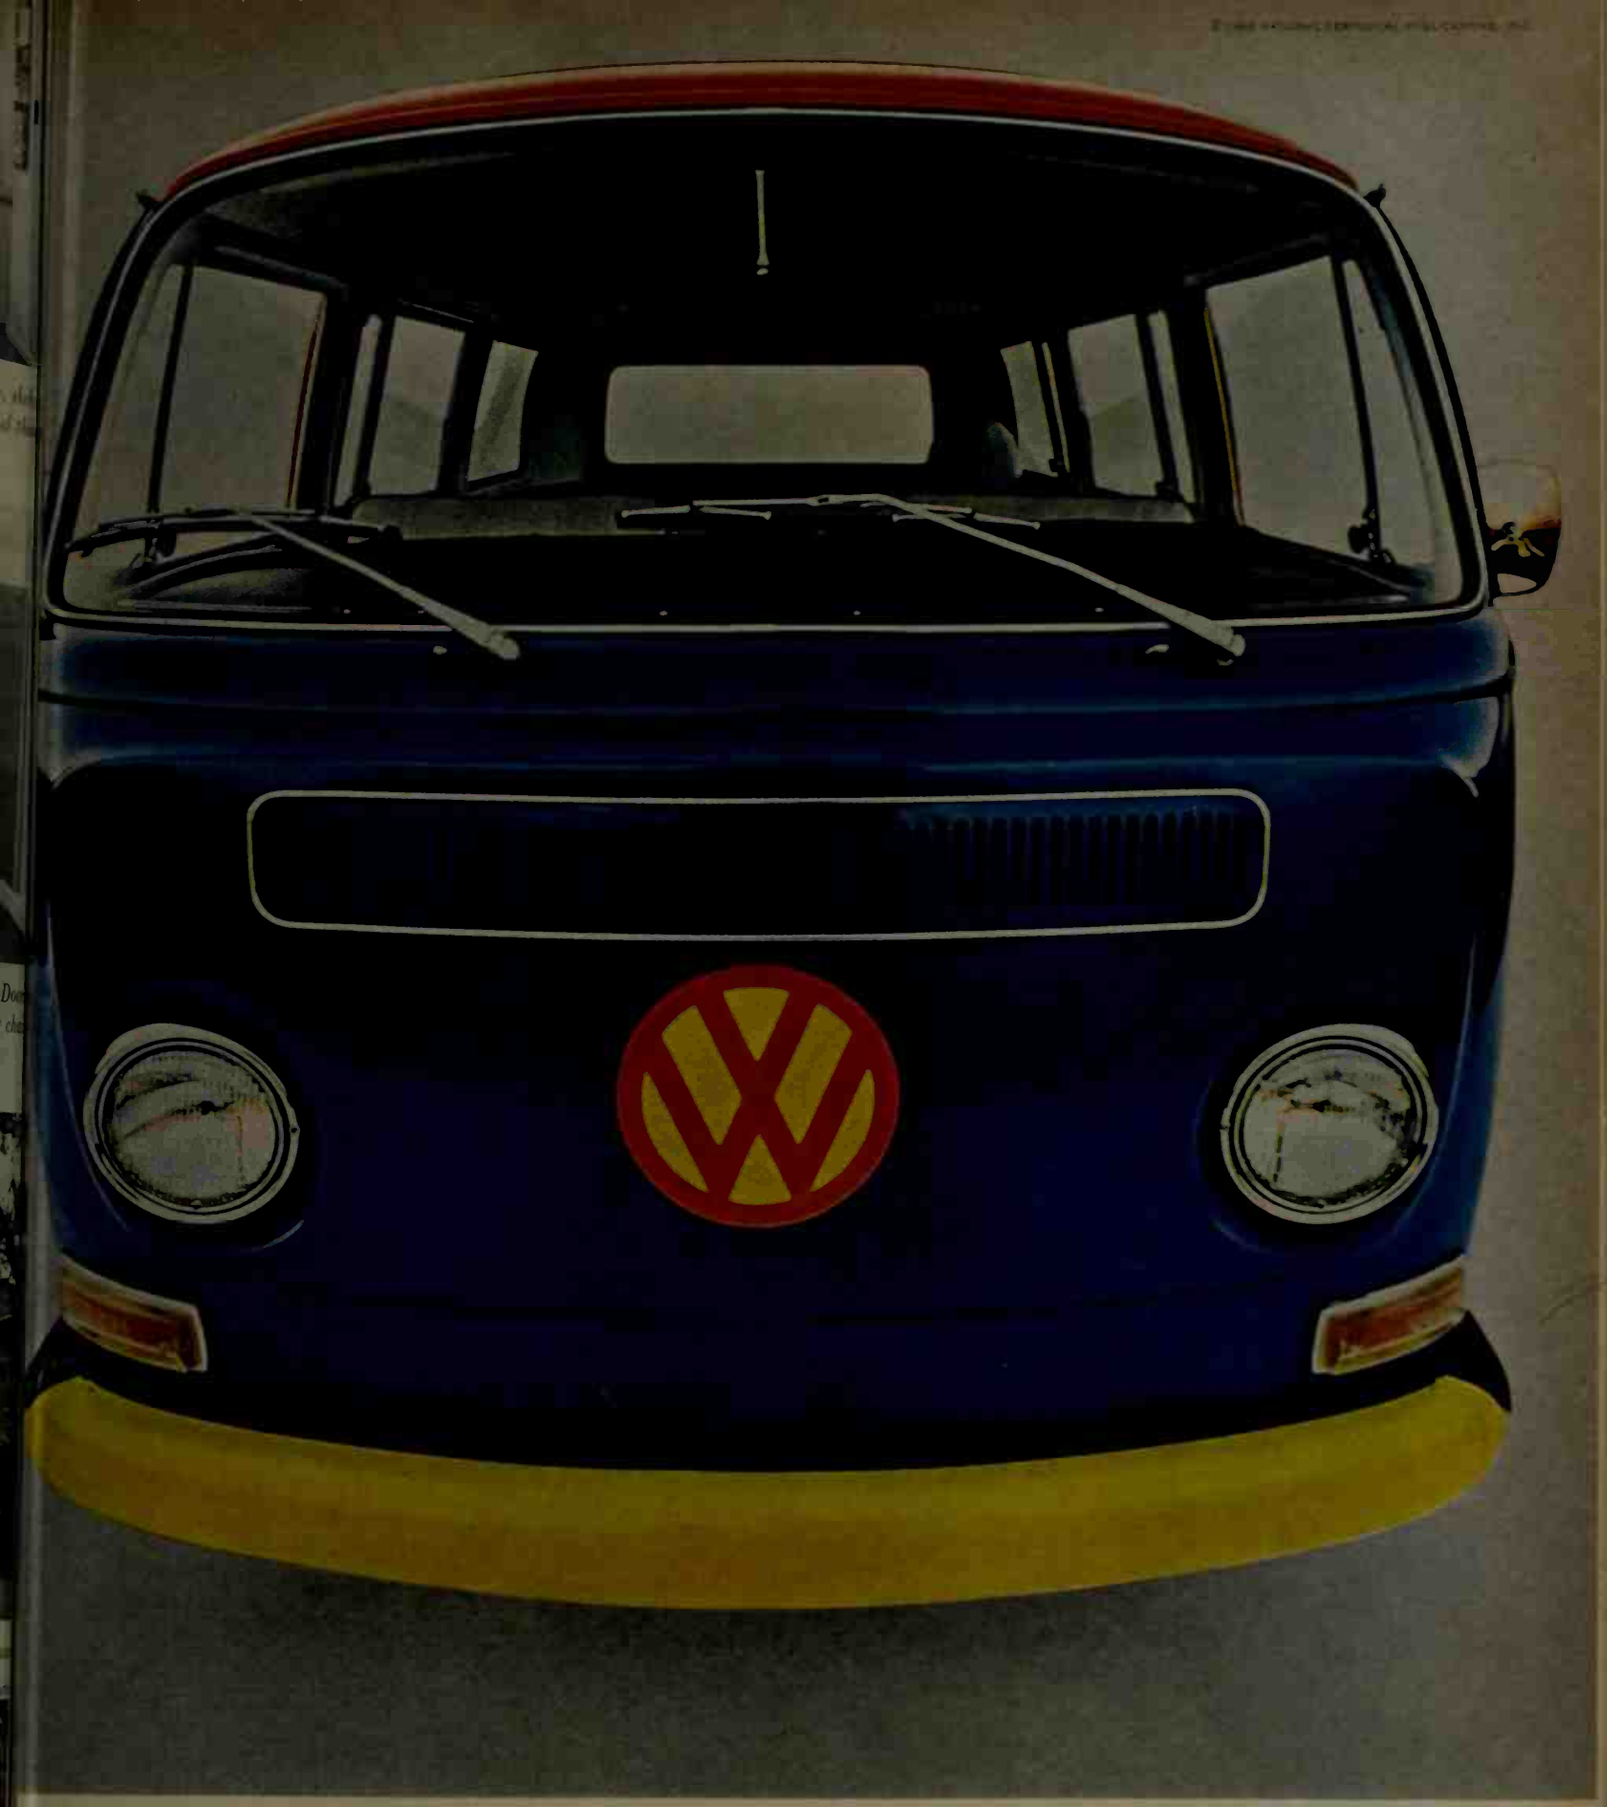
You'd never know that this upstairs addition wasn't part of the original house.

Like many another couple before them, the Bernard Arfins of San Carlos, California, looked around for a larger house to accommodate their growing family, then decided to build on to their present one because they liked it better than anything else they could find. Added above the lowest part of the original house, the addition provides one large room and a bath for their two young boys. Eventually, the optional separation provided by an accordion-folding partition can be made permanent; each end of the room has a large window, its own built-in cabinet and closet, and hallway access to the bath.

The original heating ducts were extended to supply heat; the exposed beams are the actual roof supports, painted blue-green against a light green plaster board ceiling.



Superwagon.

Cleverly disguised as a mild-mannered Volkswagen this station wagon costs very little to begin with. Around $2650.

It uses very little gas. Around 23 mpg.

It denies itself water and antifreeze.

It humbles itself into parking places made for small sedans.

It consumes pints of oil instead of quarts.

But, let a crisis arise:

And you've got a station wagon that's able to hold up to 9 people at a single sitting.

You've got a station wagon capable of carrying nearly twice as much as an average wagon.

Slide open its sliding side door, slide the seats out and you can slide a piano in.

Or a giant hutch.

Or a baby elephant.

The list of things it can carry is endless.

So if you've got an endless list of things to carry:

Look.

Theater lights in the bathroom . . . floating swimming pool alarm . . . new tub and shower in one . . . outdoor floor sprinkles on

Something a little different

Instead of mounting flush to the wall, these theater lights for a vanity or bathroom mirror consist of a freestanding brass bar supported at the center by a brass plaque. The 6-light unit shown costs $25 to $30. A 4-light unit is about $20. Architect was George L. Cody for the Erie Altrees, Palo Alto, California.

Stick-on bumper pads

There's always a spot somewhere in the house where a cupboard door bangs the wall, the lid of a record player invariably slams, or two other objects meet with a bang and you need some kind of bumper. For about 30 cents you can equip yourself at a hardware store with a dozen ½-inch-square rubber pads with adhesive backs. Just press them on wherever they're needed.

Most alarming

A swimming pool alarm is a worthwhile investment if you have small children or animals that might fall in when you're not there to watch them. Built-in alarms, however, are generally quite expensive and should be installed when the pool is being built.

A free-floating alarm now available for about $60 is triggered by water movement. The unit is circular, about 1½ feet in diameter, and floats at the end of a tether tied to a pool ladder. If an object weighing 18 pounds or more falls into the pool, the wave it creates rocks the unit and an air horn goes off, blowing continuously for 2½ minutes. You can change the sensitivity of the unit to a certain extent to prevent the alarm going off in a windstorm. Since the alarm depends on wave action, it will not be set off by an object that slides gently into the water.

The unit is battery-powered; one power pack should last the season. Replacements are available.

Sprinkle on a new floor outdoors

A seamless (liquid-application) floor covering is extremely durable and requires only sweeping and occasional light mopping to keep its good looks. The main drawback in the past has been that strong light would yellow most polyurethane binders, limiting the use of such covering primarily to indoors.

Now several acrylic-binder seamless products are available that are specifically approved for outdoor as well as indoor use. The process of installation is more or less the same for each of these products.

With one, you first clean your old floor thoroughly. Over that floor goes a white or black base coat. Then you roll on a clear liquid and sprinkle vinyl chips evenly over it until you have a solid layer. Once the liquid dries, you s up excess chips and roll on a second of liquid. When that is dry, you lightly to remove rough edges, then on a final coat of liquid for a glossy f For a more durable surface, you ca one or two more glaze coats. Ve surfaces, such as coving and stair r should be done first. You paint t then throw on chips or slide the from a dust pan.

You can walk on the floor as soon as stage is dry, so you don't need to f it all the same day. You do have t careful to keep it free of dirt until have finished completely.

The seamless flooring has a non-slip face, making it safe for steps or ar a swimming pool. If you damage it, easily repaired by a spot applicatio more acrylic and chips. Materials cost you about 60 cents a square There is a wide range of color selec

Three architects show ways to "warm up" a wall

Walls of masonry or concrete look more inviting when they aren't perfectly smooth and regular in texture and color. For one thing, the smoother the wall, the colder it seems, quite apart from actual temperature.

Therefore, architects often try hard to "warm up" the walls they design. Here are three successful examples.

Shadow patterns on face of concrete slump block make entry in Phoenix more dramatic. Architects: Calvin C. Straub & Denis P. Kutch

MORLEY BAER

Concrete takes a variety of textures. Here you see it sandblasted (drive, planters, and overhead), and ribbed (after it's set, ridges are roughened with a bushhammer). Architect: Mark Mills, for the Philip Farrars, Carmel, Calif.

The value hunters

They're bargain hunters. Turned smart.

When it comes to air conditioning they look at more than price.

They search for the good dealer as well as the deal.

They figure the savings in electric bills and service charges that can more than make up for possible differences in initial cost.

They see quality as a bonus made payable by years of extra service.

They're hard to satisfy, to fool, to fault.

For they understand value. And value is the main reason more people put their confidence in Carrier than in any other make.

MORE PEOPLE PUT THEIR CONFIDENCE IN CARRIER AIR CONDITIONING THAN IN ANY OTHER MAKE.

Continuous weather forecasts on radio

The Forecast Center of the U.S. Weather Bureau at San Francisco is now broadcasting detailed weather reports continuously, 24 hours a day, on a VHF (very high frequency) FM radio station that operates on 162.55 megacycles.

Designed primarly for mariners and yachtsmen, who have special need to keep watch on coastal weather, the taped reports detail and forecast the weather conditions from Point Arena to Point Conception. They also cover inland areas, including the Sierra Nevada, for the general public and (for example) give special forecasts for skiers on Thursdays and Fridays during the season.

A similar station is in operation in Los Angeles on the same frequency; and one is in the planning stage in Seattle.

As a result of this new reporting system, anyone interested in outdoor recreation can tune in at any time and immediately get a weather report. And the information is up-to-date, coming directly from the Forecast Center. By comparison, the weather forecasts in a newspaper are usually at least 12 hours old by the time you see them, and there often is a considerable time lag in weather reporting of radio and television stations, too.

The center's taped forecasts are fully updated every 6 hours; observational reports from some stations are updated every 3 hours; any sudden change in the weather, and issuance or cancellation of small-craft storm warnings, are reported immediately.

Because the weather radio station broadcasts on 162.55 megacycles, its range is limited and its transmissions are on the same broadcast band as police, fire, and mobile services, a band not included on the typical home or car radio. If you do not have a radio that will receive the station, you can purchase a portable transistor set (from $20 up) that will receive it. For industrial firms, schools and law enforcement agencies, there are sets costing $200 or more that turn on automatically by remote control from the Forecast Center to call attention to important weather information.

Transmitter for the San Francisco station is on Mount Pise, a few miles west of Redwood City. Although reception is considerably reduced in shadow areas shielded by hills and mountains (as with television reception), the site provides coverage over most of the coastal and intermediate valleys of the greater Bay Area and outward more than 40 miles over the Pacific.

This may be the least expensive pruner you can buy. Price: $14.95

You can buy a pruner for $6.95. Or $2.50. Or $1.79. But a Wilkinson Sword Pruner gives you things you can't put a price on.

For example, it's almost impossible to make a pruning mistake. It cuts clean, like a nurseryman's knife. Won't bruise tender shoots. Cuts close to buds, so branches won't die back.

Blades are rust resistant. They stay sharp for years. The nylon bearings never need oiling. Balance is perfect. An exclusive groove lets sap run off, so blades won't jam.

And this pruner is built so well, you may never again have to buy another.

Think about it.

At $14.95, the Wilkinson Sword Pruner is a steal.

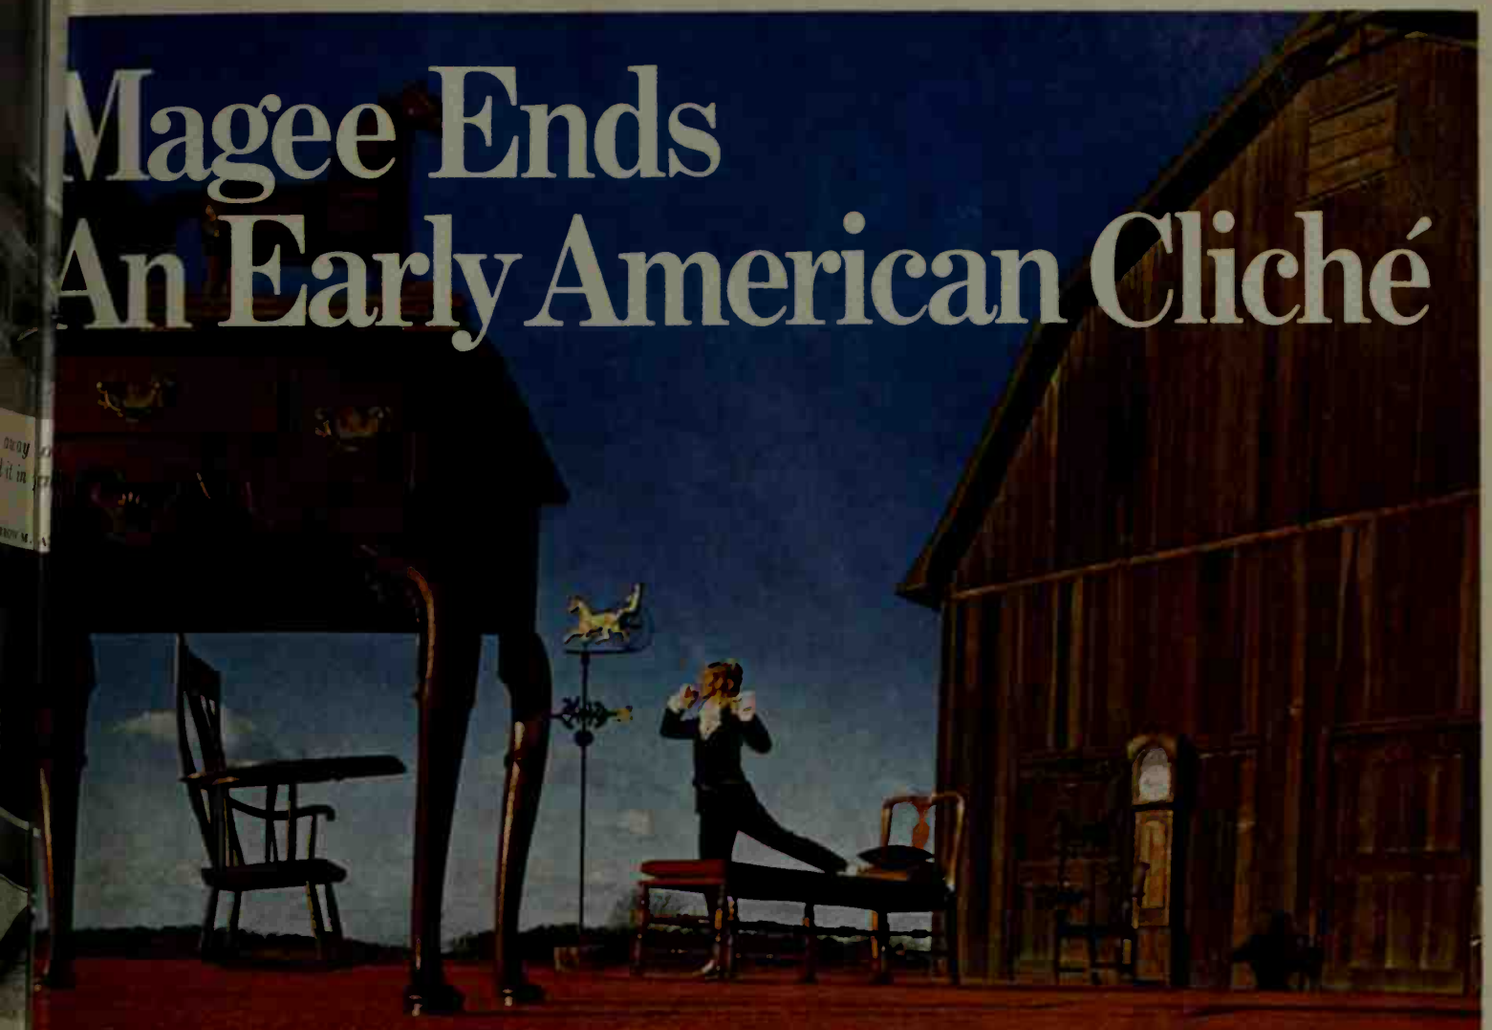
Deflecting heat into the room

The warm-air registers of forced-air fu naces in homes are often located in fro of large expanses of glass. This practice basically sound, because the flow of heate air warms those cold areas. But often th registers are placed too close to the walls Then, the warm air rustles your draperies tends to soil them, and, may even shrin part of the draperies above the register.

If you have this problem, you can usually eliminate it quite easily by just deflecting the warm air farther into the room. The top photograph shows one answer: a plastic hood, available at heating equipment companies for about $2.75, that has four magnets to hold it to the register.

If your register is directly under the draperies, and you need a lower hood, you may have to make one yourself. The one in the lower photograph above is simply a low plywood box open on one side; it is screwed to the metal register and covered with scraps of the floor's vinyl linoleum.

Magee Ends An Early American Cliché



You see it in almost every Early American room: the rag rug. Or the Williamsburg blue carpet. They're correct. But awfully routine these days.

Be a little adventurous. You wouldn't have Early American furniture if you had humdrum taste. Pick a color as fresh as pumpkin. The real pioneers used it—in fabrics and glassware.

Magee does, too. In The Flair of 1776 Group of carpets. Here are nubby tweeds and woolly shags that almost look homespun. Warm colors that give a fireside glow to your room.

Some Flair carpets are wool; some just look like wool. Some are expensive; some just look expensive. All are made with the care Magee is known for.

Where once a wrought-iron stair rail looked bare against a wall, now a shallo wood rack for magazines, pamphlets, art books provides band of warmth and col

Magazines go on the rail

This shallow wooden rack accomplishes two things: It holds a collection of magazines, pamphlets, and art portfolios, and it dresses up what used to be a somewhat barren part of the room.

The rack was attached to an existing wrought iron railing next to a stairwell. Its compartments are only 1⅞ inches deep, so even floppy magazines can be displayed vertically.

Top sections, right and left, are 12 inches high, for Sunset and similar-sized magazines. Sections below them are 14½ inches high, for larger magazines. The center panel contains an 8½-inch-high section for small pamphlets and books, and an 18-inch-high section for art and other tall publications.

You could adapt this idea to suit your own stair railing. In the installation here, the trick was to start with ½-inch plywood panels, one for each of three divisions of the railing. These rest on the bottom rail and are held from behind by screws fitted through holes drilled in the metal rail uprights.

All the lumber was 1 by 3's (actually ¾ by 2⅝ inch); some of it was ripsawed down to 1⅞-inch width to make the four inner verticals and the shelves (keep the leftover thin strips for cross members).

Nail a full-width vertical side piece to each outermost edge of the rack. Attach a pair of the narrower vertical pieces beside each inner railing post, with screw through the rear of the plywood. The nail shelves to these verticals and rein force each with two screws from behind.

Nail 1 by 3's to the top of the rack an in front of each shelf. Finally, add th thin cross members to keep magazine upright; space these a little less than hal way up the opening.

Louvered windows used in a big panel and in a long strip brighten this addition to the rear of a master bedroom. At about 7 by 18 feet, the new spaee more than doubled the size of a bathroom and created a dressing room for the Joel Colmans, of Pacific Palisades, California.

Conventional windows were not used because the addition—at the rear of the house—abuts a steep slope, and beeause the wall space was needed to provide space for mirrors and storage. The architect, Raymond Kappe, met the ehallenge of making the interior spaces light and airy—and livable—by using both natural and artificial light skillfully and by calling for extra amenities.

Two devices keep the new dressing roor from looking like a narrow and confinin hallway. A louvered window at one enc all the way from the floor to a closet height fascia, provides a private garde view and the illusion of great extra spac as well as light and ventilation. And panel of glass above the faseia make the ceiling seem to float above the room The apparent height of the eeiling is fur ther increased by indirect (tube) lighting above the elosets.

More than usual attention was paid t making the bathroom seem warm and pleasant. Note the amenities: carpet wallpaper and pictures, bookshelves, and —again—careful lighting.

Little gazebo . . . above the pool

This octagonal gazebo is only 11 feet in diameter, but in just half of it architect Morgan Stedman managed to house the mechanical equipment for the pool and provide two dressing rooms, while the other half forms a sun-protected outdoor room.

Before they put in their pool, Mr. and Mrs. Ross B. Yerby, Jr., of Hillsborough, California, had a 50-foot-deep back yard, sloping upwards from the rear of the house to the property line, with a minimal garden and a series of terraced walls.

A flat area was excavated close to the house to provide enough space for the pool, and new walls were constructed to create a small upper terrace for the pool equipment.

The architect chose an octagonal shape for the shelter because it's less bulky than a rectangle or square of comparable size.

The open-beamed roof is supported by eight 4½-inch-diameter pipes sunk into the exposed aggregate flooring of the terrace. The walls and doors are ¾-inch exterior plywood, painted white; the fanciful top-knot, a vent for the pool heater, is copper, treated to make it turn green, and topped with a copper float of the type used in a toilet tank.

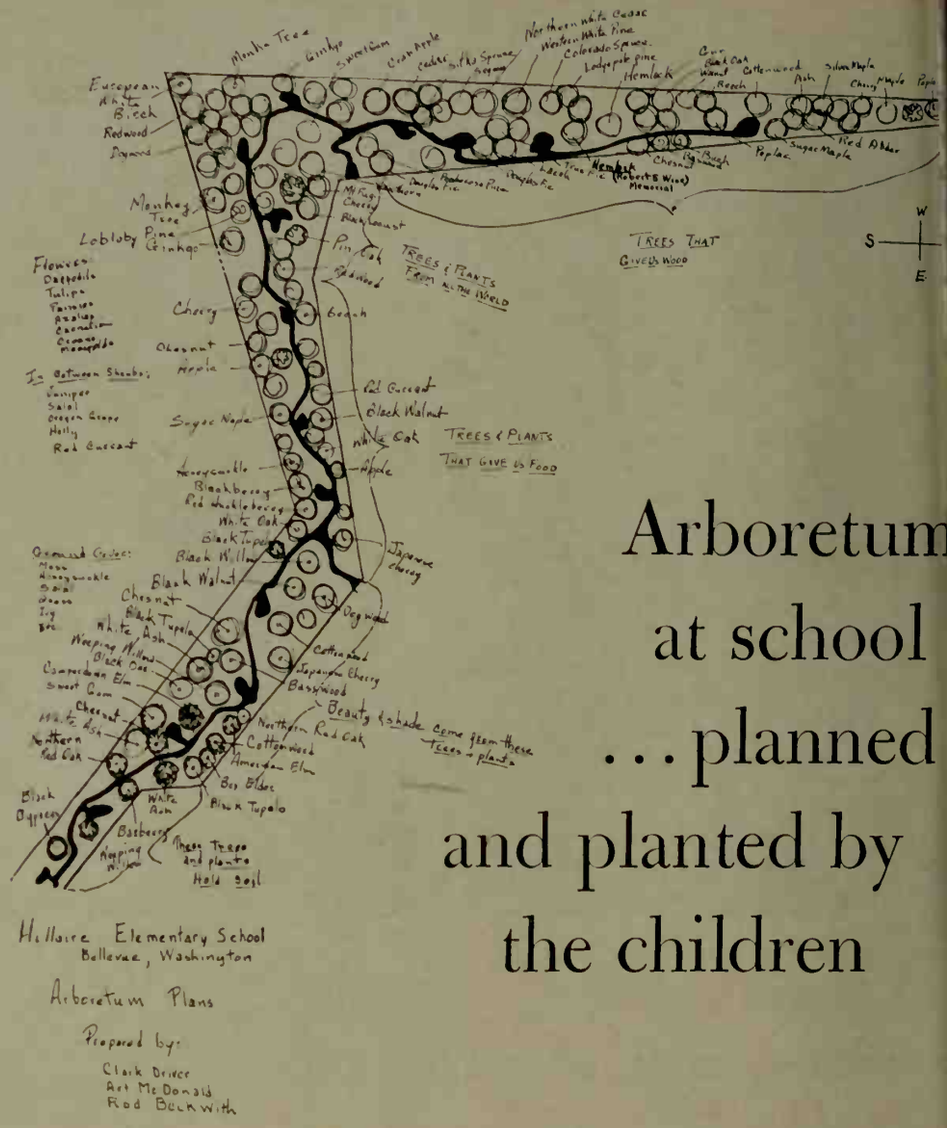
Arboretum at school ... planned and planted by the children



The landscape plan reproduced above is unusual for several reasons, not the least of which is that it was drawn by a committee of students from kindergarten through sixth grade. What it shows is an arboretum now being installed by the students of Hillaire Elementary School in Bellevue, Washington.

The project began in 1964 when the Hillaire Parent-Teacher Association decided that a fallow piece of land adjacent to the school grounds would serve well as an arboretum. A fund was established for the purpose, but all agreed that the arboretum would be of greatest value to the students if it was their own undertaking.

Under the guidance of Albert Wright, a fifth-grade teacher at Hillaire, the youngsters (some only a step beyond the sand pile) began to study the practical problems of soil engineering, horticulture, and landscape design.

Some of these subjects are introduced classroom; others are learned by doin For example, students raise trees an shrubs from seeds planted in a nurse bed constructed by parent volunteers.

Each classroom group elected two repre sentatives to a committee that dete mined the kinds of plants best suited t the arboretum, and how they should b arranged. Then they drew a plan.

The plant materials, in addition to thos raised from seeds by the students, com from several sources. Some classes hav saved money to buy trees and shrub Nurserymen, parents, and the PTA hav donated other plants.

The creation of any arboretum is a long slow process, and the Hillaire Junior Ar boretum will require many years to com plete. This is intended. Eventually every Hillaire student who has passed through the school over a considerable span o time will have helped plant at least one tree or shrub, and will have actively participated in this memorable project.

68: a vintage year for Wide-Tracking.

1959, when our band of engineering experts intro-ced Wide-Tracking, a good portion of the nation's brows lifted in skepticism. But here it is 1968. And de-Tracking makes ordinary cars seem even more so comparison.

This year, Pontiacs, like that long, luxurious Bonne- below, ride more quietly, more comfortably, more oothly than ever before. Our habit of introducing olutionary firsts continues with the world's first bumper that you have to kick to believe. (It's standard equipment on this year's Car of the Year, the GTO.) And our reputation for building great road machines is enhanced every time one of the five Pontiac Firebirds is sent into motion. Which is often.

So when you add it all up, there's really no doubt that '68 Pontiacs will be talked about for years to come. And lucky you. You can own one without paying classic car prices. Just visit your Pontiac dealer.

They wrapped a new engawa around the old house

The addition of an engawa contributed markedly to the Japanese look of this 30-year-old beach cottage in Kailua, Oahu. Functionally it also made good sense. It enabled the architect, Claudia W. Gauen, to eliminate the inconvenient and unattractive entry through the kitchen, and to improve both indoor-outdoor and room-to-room circulation.

Outside the dining room, the engawa widens to give Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Longmire a sitting area that overlooks a new Japanese garden and is shielded from ocean winds by the bedroom wing.

Although this sewing-hobby room might seem a bit luxurious, its designers, Dr. and Mrs. G. T. Its carefully-thought-out storage areas take everything from pins to wrapping paper—and the bed beneath the table accommodates an occasional guest.

For hanging up and putting away

Sometimes just the form and the placement of storage facilities tend to encourage children's neatness by subtly directing them to the right place to put their things away. Here are three examples in a house that architects Anderson and Bell, of Seattle, designed for a family with four little girls. Each child has her own room—small but private—and they share the bath.

The Sea Ranch

The beautiful second-home colony on the Sonoma Coast

There is a priceless dividend with your homesite at The Sea Ranch. Open space. Hundreds of acres of it. Great white beaches and quiet coves to explore. Over 45 miles of bridle trails to ride. Broad, green meadows to walk. Wooded hills to climb.

This open space will always be here to enjoy. For the master plan of The Sea Ranch reserves nearly half of this beautiful site on the Sonoma Coast for preservation in its natural state.

In fact, The Sea Ranch—with a private swimming pool, tennis court and saunas—gives you the pleasures of a large country estate, without the cost and maintenance problems.

You'll find relief here from the daily crush of people. The Sea Ranch is a private development, for the exclusive use of Sea Ranch residents and their guests. Access is guarded by a full-time security patrol.

Careful planning (including paved roads throughout and underground utilities in most units) sets this development apart. It also makes Sea Ranch building sites (priced upwards from $5,500) an excellent investment.

Find out more about this nationally-acclaimed Castle & Cooke second-home colony—just 2½ hours north of San Francisco. Send the coupon today for further information.

New handbook for home landscapers

The first Sunset Landscaping for Western Living appeared in 1956; for 12 years and through 12 printings this book guided Westerners who were planning new gardens or upgrading existing ones.

Now a second edition has been published (Lane Books, Menlo Park, Calif.; $2.95). Although it bears the same title, it is practically an altogether new book.

Some basic principles of landscape design carry over from the text of the one to the text of the other; but the application of these principles is shown in scores of brand-new photographs like the ones you see here, nearly all from recent issues of Sunset.

Publication date: March 20

The 160 pages are divided into nine chap ters, each dealing with some aspect of hom landscaping, from site inventory to choic of plant materials. There is a chapter fo dedicated gardeners who want to work a hobby plant collection into the landscapes another for those who want to keep mainte nance work to a minimum, a third for those who garden on hillsides.

There's much new material on decks, ter races, screens, lighting (including the new low-voltage lights), and garden heating. And everywhere are inspiring photographs of what other people have accomplished, on their own or with professional help.

For furniture with an oiled finish ost teak and rosewood furniture and a owing proportion of walnut furniture being shipped from the factory with a nd-rubbed oil finish. Some of the usual les about care and maintenance don't pply to this kind of furniture. Here are me points worth knowing if you have quired such furniture recently.

ollowing fairly common practice these ays, the flat surfaces of this furniture e usually veneer. (Where appearance or ear are important, as on table edges, olid wood is used, and of course, all rned pieces like chair legs and rungs ill be solid wood.) The veneer varies in nickness, but on most oil-finished pieces averages about 1/25 inch—or the thickess of a cardboard luggage tag. The veeer is applied with resin glues to furniure-core plywood, then finished with everal coats of one of the new oil-type nishes (successors to the old standby oiled linseed oil and gum turpentine finshes), rubbed in with fine steel wool.

ometimes these woods will be given a hin, flat, lacquer finish instead. It is imortant to know whether or not the piece as a lacquer finish before you begin any epair work. Since the difference between he lacquered finish and the hand-rubbed il finish is not always apparent to the ntrained eye, you may have to ask a lealer or furniture refinisher to tell you which you have on a particular piece.

Teak is the real workhorse of the three woods; if you've lived with a piece of teak furniture, you often tend to think of it as being indestructible. Walnut, long extolled as a fine cabinet wood, is also quite tough and durable. Both woods are relatively porous. Teak will rarely have a lacquer finish; walnut will in some cases. Rosewood is not quite in the same class. It is very hard and dense, but because it's more subject to expansion and contraction, it is most often given a flat lacquer finish. And the lacquer finish will scratch more easily than an oil finish.

DAY-TO-DAY CARE

The mistake people most often make with oil-finished furniture is to oil it too often with too heavy an oil.

Many furniture dealers and paint suppliers will recommend specific products for the care of oiled woods. These oil products, however, should be used sparingly—only once or twice a year. After application, remove all excess oil to prevent a sticky buildup.

One dealer recommends that you use a simply benches for people to sit or sprawl on at their leisure.

Although most garden benches are permanent, they do have one advantage over regular garden furniture. They're always in place and ready to use any time—no need to pull them out of storage for a few hours of use.

They also dress up the garden. This is a major consideration in areas of the West where winter gardens tend to look a bit empty and bleak.

One Northwest landscape architect told us he always designs benches for his gardens, making them strong design elements, and putting them where they can be seen from within the house. "Ev we can't use our gardens much in ter, there are days when we can sit time on a bench in the sun. Whe can't, a bench still makes it loo though we can."

Is she a truck driver?

The INTERNATIONAL® Travelette is the 6-passenger pickup just made for families. It goes the rough-and-tumble route of back country driving better than any other. We truck-framed it and truck-powered it just for that.

But there's a lot of highway out there, too. And we don't want you to feel you're wheeling a truck. So we made it easy and fun to drive.

Easy to steer. Easy to shift. Easy to brake. (Automatic transmissions, power steering and power brakes are available, too, of course.) And fun? When you're sailing along—wrapped in one of pleasant interiors, enjoying yo bucket seat, stereo, air conditioning you'll have to ask yourself: should y really call it a truck?

Fences can be whimsical

Spring is a good time to take a long, critical look at garden screens and fences. If they haven't been stained or painted in several years, they probably could stand freshening up. Some of the wood members may have come unnailed or warped so badly they need replacing. Or it just may be that you could improve the whole garden by redesigning existing structures. If posts and stringers are in good condition, you might change the kind of fencing material or alter its looks in some way.

The fences and screens you see on these two pages function in different ways: to give privacy, to divide space within the garden, to mark a property line. But they have one thing in common—they're decorative. Each has been carefully designed to take advantage of the play of light and shadows in the garden: Wood members

Will a vacation house almost pay for itself if you rent it out?

A vacation house is a temptation that many people put aside because the expense of buying and maintaining a second house seems too great.

Even if buying a second house does not seem too difficult, you may hesitate to spend a large amount to maintain it when you intend to use it only for short periods each year. Many of the owners we interviewed have found that renting out the vacation house paid back a substantial amount of the cost of owning it. A very few manage to pay the entire cost by renting, but this is rare. If you use the house yourself, you are unlikely to make it pay more than half its costs.

OFFERING A SECOND HOUSE FOR RENT

An important part of your return is not the rent itself but the saving on income tax. Because you rent, you will be able to subtract some of your costs of ownership and an amount for depreciation. It is wise to discuss what you do with a tax consultant, since deductions vary depending on how much you use the house for yourself, and there are several ways of figuring depreciation. The easiest way to figure deductions is to decide at the start exactly how much of each year you will use the house yourself and stick to your decision. The rest of the year, then, you offer the house through an agent or advertisement and claim your deductions accordingly.

WHERE WILL YOU BUY?

The first consideration when you buy with the intention of renting is geographical. Your house must be in an area that draws large numbers of people at some season of the year. Near a ski resort, your rental season will be governed by snowfall, and you can check with resort operators to find out how many weeks in a typical year offer good skiing. Near a lake or ocean beach, your house will be in demand during an 8 or 10-week summer season. In a few areas, such as Lake Tahoe or Lake Arrowhead, you can hope for both winter and summer rentals.

Chambers of commerce can tell you the seasons of heavy tourist traffic, and real estate agents and other house owners can suggest when their own properties rent well. If you decide on an area, it is wise to rent a house there yourself during the best rental seasons and check on the number of houses occupied.

JUDGING POSSIBLE RETURNS?

Simply asking what a house of size rents for is not enough on base an estimate. Size and place important, but real estate age owners who rent assure us that th ing considerations are equally im

You must spend so making the house attractive and able. You should also check th tenance carefully. Full wastebask other leftovers of departed rent turn prospects away.

How will you offer the house fo You have some choice in the w offer the house. You can hire a rea agent, work through a develop agent, run a classified advertisem city papers, or even conduct a dire campaign.

Agents will charge a fee of up to cent for their services, but you the few responsibilities. You need only them in advance when you wou the house for yourself.

A classified advertisement will cost what less, but you will have to be able at the telephone and keep re tion books. One owner launched his campaign the first year by writi every physician in the Sacrament phone directory, describing his hous giving rates. He got some returns fewer than he had hoped for. Ma the successful renters we talked to by offering the house to friends, they invited first as guests to acq them with the house. Those who interested in renting often invited own friends, who became renters in second letter listed activities in the vicinity, broken down by age groups. Thus young children and adolescents who were new to the area were directed to things that interested them without having to search for them. And adults spent less time looking for what they wanted.

Will your renters return next year? After the first season, you will have much more success if some of your clients return in following years. A number of the owners we talked to counted heavily on repeat rentals, and only slightly less heavily on recommendations from renters to friends.

An excellent plan, suggested to us by the owner of a beach house, is to make up a form letter and mail it to the best of your former clients a few weeks before the rental season. You need only say that the house is still available and that you would be happy to have them take it again. The reminder is often enough to bring in reservations.

How will you maintain the house? If it is close to your main residence, you can clean it yourself between rentals. More likely you will have to hire someone to do the job for you. You should check this work and ask for reports on the condition of the house after the tenants leave. Poor tenants should not be offered the house a second time. Major cleaning, painting, and decorating can be done in off seasons, by you or under your surveillance.

HOW TO FIGURE WHAT RETURN YOU NEED

First you must decide how much you are willing to spend for the pleasure ing the house. If you decide that put $1,500 into it for your own p and the amount you must pay out it is $3,000 a year, then you mu $1,500 in rents and tax benefits.

The form below will help you whether you can earn what yo but your results are only as good figures, and those figures will cha each year you hold the house.

TRIAL AND ERROR

A report on the first two years in Sunset's new test kitchens the November 1966 issue of Sunset we ported on our new test kitchens where r home economics editors test recipes, vise menus, and experiment with new uipment and techniques. Many of the eas incorporated into these kitchens ere experimental. Now, after almost two ars of experience, we bring you an up-date report on how they are working.

oor coverings. In two work centers we stalled cushioned vinyl; in two others we used nylon carpeting. We have been happy with both surfaces. The cushioned vinyl is comfortable underfoot and shows no indentations from high heels; the nylon carpet rates high for looks and comfort as well. Our maintenance staff finds them both easy to care for: The vinyl is washed each evening with lukewarm water, waxed and buffed about once every 3 months. The carpet responds well to spot removal and is easy to shampoo. Liquid spills are sponged up immediately; dry ingredients are vacuumed up when they occur.

Counter surfaces. Laminated maple was used in two work areas—on a 33-inch-high, all-purpose peninsula and on a sink counter. The whole staff likes its looks, feel, and usefulness for every kind of job. The sink counter shows remarkably little water damage, perhaps because we've been careful not to let wet things sit on it; water spots that do occur are removed by a light application of mineral oil. A self-rimmed sink (one with a slight lip around the outside edges) would be advantageous to drain any splashes back into the bowl.

Our counters, raw wood when installed, were seasoned with several applications of paraffin oil (available at paint stores) mixed with an equal amount of special thinner (Standard Oil 250) to increase the penetration of the oil. For day-to-day care, we recommend either warmed paraffin oil or warmed mineral oil. (We have known home owners who have used salad oil; it should be applied lightly, for it can turn rancid and sticky.)

Laminated plastic is approved for general cooking purposes; it's smooth and easy to clean—even metal marks from pans are easy to remove. Our food editors feel strongly, however, that it should have an inserted section of wood for cutting, chopping, and baking purposes; and one of tile for hot plates or hot pans.

The marble counter is handsome, smooth, and cool to the touch. One editor finds herself concerned about dropping breakable utensils on it. For a kitchen plan in which price is a factor, she would recommend having only a small marble section for special jobs (such as candy making), or eliminating the marble altogether—using instead a combination of wood and plastic laminate to handle food preparation. A surface of small (3-inch-square) tiles, set on a bed of mastic with no grout between them, is working out remarkably well. Any darkening between tiles seems to enhance them. They rate high for appearance and feel, and can withstand the heat of dishes and pans fresh from the oven or range. The editor who uses this work center washes the tiles with water and detergent, and uses scouring powder to remove grease behind the range. Because the tiles form an uneven surface, she recommends that they be used for only part of a counter area and that the rest be of smooth-surfaced material for such tasks as pastry rolling.

Breakage of dishes has been a very minor factor with all these work surfaces; it's been less troublesome, of course, with relatively soft wood than with hard tiles.

Cabinets. These are walnut, treated with a Danish rubbing oil. Wax on top of the oil proved unsatisfactory; water spots turned the wax white. It has been removed, the cabinets are now oiled as needed, and the wood is gaining a rich finish.

Lighting. Our experiment with small incandescent light bulbs (from an automotive parts shop) to illuminate the countertops has proved a little troublesome. Because the lights are mounted in a recess underneath the upper cabinets, burned-out bulbs aren't immediately noticed. Tube lights might be easier to install, easier to maintain.

Appliance storage. Appliance storage at counter level has proved ideal. Appliances should be measured; if you plan to buy new ones, it would be wise to get their dimensions and plan the space accordingly. The fold-back doors offer a couple of advantages over the sliding doors: free

You bet you didn't.

They're thinking about how great their furniture would look with all that real woodgrain as a background.

Now's the time to nudge your real estate agent.

Beautiful.

You don't think Weldwood can do that?

All right. Slosh on some paint or paper instead.

Cabot's DECKING STAINS

Porches, sun decks, and patios are increasingly prominent in modern home design. Wood decking, popular now as never before, brings with it a need for a decking finish both durable and decorative. Cabot's Decking Stains, newly developed for this specific purpose, stand up beautifully to the particular problems of heavy foot traffic and severe weathering. The stained surface resists cracking and peeling, mellows with age, will not rub off or track off. Available in eight pleasing colors plus black.

Greek-Californians celebrate Easter with a picnic in the park

Many Greek families celebrate Easter with a picnic barbecue. Out-of-doors, they can see and savor the green leaves and new blossoms of spring, and delight in traditional outdoor merriment: cracking red eggs, dancing in a meadow, partaking in the grand feast.

The object is to crack a friend's hard-cooked egg while leaving yours intact

You might borrow the foods they eat and adapt the customs for your own Easter family dinner or for an April outing. The dishes we suggest here are uniquely Greek yet delicately seasoned to appeal to all tastes and ages.

With many make-ahead dishes included, the whole barbecue dinner is easy to pack and carry to the picnic site. In fact, much of the menu can be prepared in advance, leaving only a few details to complete on the busy picnic day.

You'll have to visit a delicatessen or Greek market to buy several ingredients that make the picnic authentic: a goat cheese called feta, a thin pastry named fila, Greek style olives, and a doughnut-shaped bread called kouloura. But in most cases we list substitutions to use if you can't find the Greek specialties.

While bounteous by most standards, the menu is still more streamlined than that set forth on a typical Greek holiday table and suits the need for portability on this occasion. Recipes are scaled for a family group of 12 to 14.

Athenian Green Salad
Barbecued Butterflied Lamb Rice Pilaf
Greens Pie Bread Ring
Red Hard-Cooked Eggs
Greek Pastries Oranges
Retsina or Zinfandel Turkish Coffee

For last-minute ease, bake and freeze the pastries in advance, and prepare the vegetables a day ahead. Marinate the lamb overnight. Buy the Greek bread kouloura, or substitute a sweet French bread. Dye hard-cooked eggs a brilliant red, allowing at least one per person. Cook the pilaf just before you leave, and pack in an insulated bag. Plan to mix the salad and brew the coffee on the spot. Offer a resinated red wine if you like it, otherwise a California Zinfandel or other light dry red table wine.

Athenian Green Salad. You can readily complete this handsome salad at the picnic site if you tear the greens and mix the dressing at home.

Wash and dry 1 head each iceberg lettuce, butter lettuce, and romaine, and tear into bite-sized pieces. Place in a plastic bag and chill. To serve, pile greens into a large salad bowl and pour salad dressing (recipe follows) over; mix thoroughly. Peel and slice 1 avocado and arrange on top. Core 2 tomatoes, cut in wedges, and arrange on salad. Crumble ¼ pound feta cheese over the top and scatter on top of all 2 dozen Greek style olives or ripe pitted olives, and 1 can (2 oz.) drained anchovy fillets. Makes 12 servings.

Salad Dressing. Pour into a jar ¾ cup olive oil, ¼ cup red wine vinegar, ½ teaspoon each salt and garlic salt, and freshly ground pepper; cover and shake well. Chill. Makes 1 cup.

Barbecued Butterflied Lamb. A boned lamb leg cooks readily and slices easily for a crowd. Squeeze lemons over the meat at serving time for extra zest.

Have your meatman bone and butterfly 2 legs of lamb. Lay meat out flat and insert 6 slivered cloves of garlic into both sides of meat. Place each piece of meat in a large shallow pan. Mix together ½ cup each lemon juice and olive oil, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, and 1 tablespoon dried oregano; divide over the meat. Turn meat to coat both sides with marinade and chill overnight.

Barbecue meat over medium low coals, allowing about 20 minutes to brown one side; turn to brown other side, cooking about 20 minutes more for medium rare meat. Place on a large carving board and reshape into two roasts. Cut 3 lemons in half, zigzag fashion, sprinkle them with oregano, and place around roasts. Makes 12 to 14 servings, with some left over.

Rice Pilaf. Bring 7½ cups water to a boil in a large pan. Add 1 tablespoon each salt and salad oil and 3 cups long grain rice; cover and simmer 25 minutes, or until barely tender; remove from heat. Mix in 1 cup golden raisins with a fork. Heat 1 cup butter until it bubbles and starts to brown; pour over rice and stir with fork. Cover 10 minutes. Serves 12 to 14.

Greens Pie (Spanakopita). These pastry squares, full of assorted greens and feta cheese, are excellent warm or chilled. You need tissue-thin sheets of dough, called fila, available in 1-pound packages from Greek markets and many delicatessens.

Wash and finely chop 1 bunch each Swiss chard, spinach, chicory (curly endive), parsley, and green onions; pat dry with paper towels. Mix in ¼ cup olive oil; 1 teaspoon salt; ½ teaspoon pepper; 4 beaten eggs; and ¾ pound feta cheese, crumbled.

You need 10 sheets fila (about 12 by 16 inches in size). Lay out fila and cover with plastic film to keep from drying out. Melt ½ cup butter. With a pastry brush, lightly butter 5 sheets fila, one at a time, and layer one on top of the other in a buttered 9 by 13-inch baking pan. Place the greens mixture in the pan, and smooth the top. Sprinkle lightly with cinnamon. Fold any overhanging fila back over the greens. Arrange 5 more buttered sheets of fila, cut to fit the top of the pan, one at a time on top.

Cut squares through the top layers of fila only, making three lengthwise and five crosswise cuts. Bake in a 400° oven for 1 hour, or until greens are tender. Cover top of pan with foil if crust browns ahead of time. Finish cutting into squares and remove to a rack so bottom layers of fila stay crisp. Serve hot or cold. Makes 24 squares.

THREE FESTIVE PASTRIES

Each of these three Greek pastries has a special shape and richness all its own.

This traditional Greek Easter cooky with a toasted sesame seed topping resembles shortbread.

Easter Shortbread (Koulourakia)

- ½ cup each butter and sugar
- 3 egg yolks
- ¼ cup half-and-half (light cream)
- 2¼ cups regular all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Sesame seed

Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in two of the egg yolks, one at a time. Mix in 3 tablespoons of the half-and-half. Sift flour, measure, then sift again with baking powder and salt. Add dry ingredients to the creamed mixture and stir until well blended. Chill dough thoroughly.

To shape cookies pinch off ¾-inch balls of dough and roll each with lightly floured hands into an 8-inch long strand. Form each into a pretzel shape and place on a greased baking sheet.

Beat the remaining egg yolk with remaining 1 tablespoon half-and-half and brush on tops of the prepared cookies. Sprinkle lightly with sesame seed. Bake in a 350° oven for 20 to 25 minutes, or until nicely browned. Makes about 30 cookies.

These sugary cookies are rich with almonds. To prepare nuts, grind almonds finely in blender; toast in a 350° oven about 7 minutes, or until light brown.

NEWS AND IDEAS

Vacation home possibility: portable washer, portable dryer

Both a recently introduced portable washer and a new portable clothes dryer will operate on any grounded 120-volt outlet. Each handles about half a standard load or 6 pounds of clothes.

The washer stores in a space 31½ inches high, 29¼ inches wide, 16½ inches deep, and rolls on casters to the water supply. It has a washing compartment on a 4-minute timer and a separate spin-dry compartment.

The small dryer (28¼ inches high, 24 inches wide, 16¼ inches deep) can be hung on a wall or stored under a counter or in a closet. Its timer allows up to 115 minutes on one low temperature setting; most loads dry in about an hour. Because the unit needs no installation beyond plugging it into an adequately wired outlet, it is ideal for places where power as well as space is limited. Since it expels only about as much moisture as a normal shower bath, it can be vented to the room. Or, in a permanent installation, its exhaust duct can be vented to the outside.

If you could visit the itchenAid dishwasher factory, we could stop advertising.

The way we make KitchenAid dishwashers is one reason people buy KitchenAid dishwashers.

If you'd visit our plant, you'd see what we mean.

Take the parts. We choose each one as carefully as you'd choose the ingredients for your best recipe.

Every part of every KitchenAid dishwasher is checked and inspected. From the wheels on our portable models to the push buttons on our built-ins.

If it's a working part, we make sure it works.

We test the timer. We test the motor. We test the water pump.

In fact, we test everything that can be tested.

Before a KitchenAid dishwasher leaves the assembly line, it's put through its paces. Every cycle—washing and drying—is checked on every single dishwasher.

Then there's the KitchenAid torture test. We pick dishwashers off the assembly line—at random—and run them continuously, night and day. So that we'll have a good idea how the dishwasher will work years later.

Why do we go to all this trouble? It's simple. We don't want you to have any trouble after you buy one.

And for many people, this is one of the very best reasons for buying a KitchenAid.

Since you probably can't visit our factory, why not visit your KitchenAid dealer? (Check the Yellow Pages.) He'll give you more reasons why a KitchenAid dishwasher is such a good buy. Or write KitchenAid Dishwashers, Dept. 8DG-4, The Hobart Manufacturing Co., Troy, Ohio 45373.

APRIL MENUS

Oven roast dinner and salad luncheon for guests ...quick dinner and Easter brunch for the family

April's most festive occasion this year is Easter, and all that goes with it. This is also a month when spring weather comes on strong, and it's a time when many people first think seriously of breaking the year's stride with a big or little vacation trip.

For family meals we suggest an Easter buffet brunch following the egg hunt, and a quick fish dinner when outdoor activities keep the cook involved until late in the day.

For guest meals we include an easy salad luncheon appropriate for a "bon voyage" party, and a special oven roast dinner.

Family Easter brunch

This buffet-style breakfast suits a range of ages and a flexible number of diners. The menu is particularly easy on the cook on Easter morning. Since none of the food is hot (except the beverages), the meal can be set up well ahead of time, to await the family or guests after the traditional egg hunt.

At table, ignite and spoon on remaining ¼ cup of Calvados, flaming. Makes 6 servings (5 from a broiler-fryer).

Although flaming brandy is important in creating the sauce for the second dish, this step occurs midway in its preparation. If you'd like an audience for this, invite your guests to look on. Or prepare this quick-cooking dish on a buffet or serving cart in the dining room.

It's important to have all the elements of this dish ready to use before you begin cooking. First prepare the Béarnaise sauce; it should be warm, or reheated if made ahead. Peel and cut up the vegetables to be sautéed; the onions must be parboiled before you brown them with the mushrooms. While you're working on the chicken, have the onions and mushrooms cooking over low heat, either on the range or in a chafing dish. The tomatoes and cucumbers should be ready to stir in at the last minute.

Transfer the cooked chicken breasts to a board or extra plate while you flame the pan juices and prepare the sauce; then return the chicken to the pan to serve.

CHICKEN BREASTS MÈRE CATHERINE

Have 6 whole chicken breasts split, boned, and skinned. Sprinkle chicken lightly with salt; brown lightly on both sides over medium-high heat in 3 tablespoons butter in an electric frying pan or other large frying pan. Cover and cook slowly for about 3 minutes longer, just until chicken is cooked through. Remove chicken from pan.

Add ⅓ cup brandy to warm pan; ignite it and let it burn, tipping pan gently from side to side, until flames are gone. Stir in ¼ cup dry red wine and cook quickly to reduce liquid slightly, stirring occasionally. Turn off heat and blend in Béarnaise sauce (recipe follows) until smooth. Return chicken to pan, turning to coat with sauce. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. Serve immediately with sautéed vegetables (recipe follows). Makes 6 servings.

Béarnaise Sauce. Place in blender container 1 egg, 1 teaspoon each tarragon vinegar and Dijon-style mustard, and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Blend for a few seconds, then with motor running, slowly pour in ½ cup warm, melted butter, blending until thickened. Keep warm in top of double boiler over hot water until ready to use; or make ahead and reheat slowly in double boiler over barely simmering water, stirring occasionally, until smooth. Makes about ¾ cup.

Sautéed Vegetables. Cook 12 small white onions, peeled, in a small amount of boiling salted water until just tender, 8 to 10 minutes; drain well. Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a frying pan; sauté onions with ½ pound mushrooms, quartered, until both are lightly browned, stirring occasionally. Just before serving, stir in 1 cup halved cherry tomatoes, and ½ cup unpeeled cucumber slices.

You make the flaming sauce, then put the chicken back in before serving

It's good hot or cold . . . at home or on a picnic

This handsome ground ham loaf, baked in a decorative crust, is particularly adaptable to springtime entertaining, for you can serve it hot or cold at a party buffet or at a picnic. Most of the preparation can be completed well in advance.

For an at-home menu, you might introduce the meal with cups of a creamy soup, serve a marinated vegetable salad with the ham pie, and conclude with a fancy make-ahead dessert.

HAM LOAF IN SOUR CREAM CRUST

2 pounds (about 4 cups lightly packed) lean ground cooked ham
2 tablespoons minced onion
½ cup shredded Swiss cheese
1 egg, beaten
1 can (3 or 4 oz.) chopped mushrooms
Sour cream crust dough (directions follow)
Milk
Commercial sour cream

Combine the ground ham, minced onion, Swiss cheese, beaten egg, and mushrooms with their liquid and stir to blend well; cover and keep cool until ready to use.

Cut the sour cream crust dough in half and roll out one section on a floured board to make a rectangle 6 by 14 inches; trim edges even and save scraps. Place the dough rectangle on an ungreased baking sheet; roll out the other half of the dough on the floured board to make a second 6 by 14-inch rectangle. Trim edges and save scraps.

Distribute the ham mixture down the center of the dough on the baking sheet, and, with your hands, firmly press the meat into a loaf about 3 inches in diameter, leaving a 1½-inch margin of dough on all sides.

Fold dough up against sides of the meat and brush the outside edge lightly with milk. Fit the second piece of dough over the loaf, and press sides securely against the sides of the bottom section of dough to seal. Prick the loaf in several places with a fork. At this point you ca the loaf tightly and refrigerate as overnight.

Brush the dough covering with mi reserved dough scraps out togeth floured board, cut into decorative and arrange them on the loaf. Ba in a moderately hot oven (375°) to 35 minutes or until the cr golden brown.

An introduction to Chinese steam cooking

The Chinese have a cookery technique as easy and reliable as Western-style casserole cooking; but instead of using the oven for heat, they let steam do the cooking.

In steam cooking, the flavors of the foods mingle more completely than in other methods; very little if any fat is used; and you serve right from the cooking dish.

The basic procedure is to make an attractive arrangement of the seasoned (prepared well ahead, if you like) heatproof dish (such as pottery or m Cover the dish well with waxed pap prevent condensation from dripping the food during cooking. How I gave up floor scrubbing foreve

When my carpet dealer first suggested carpeting the kitchen, I was horrified. Visions of grease stains, muddy boots, spilt milk, and mildew danced before my eyes. But I must admit I was intrigued. Carpeting in the kitchen would be a luxury. I could envision myself peeling potatoes and washing dishes—while squiggling my toes in softness.

I discover "LesCare": So I listened while he told me about the new carpet by Cabin Crafts, "LesCare". He explained to me how it really would take "less care" than my floor. Milk, for instance, could be sponged up easily. LesCare's water-resistant Acrilan® fiber and its special backing would prevent mildew. (Which is why a lot of people install LesCare by the pool.)

I say goodbye to scrubbing floors: But when he told me I could give up scrubbing floors, that did it! I'd been scrubbing twice a week, cleaning up after three kids and a dog. And waxing twice a month. With LesCare I could throw in the towel.

My bright idea: I could select from 10 different colors to have a richer looking kitchen. And I figured I'd save about 5 hours cleaning time and a can of wax a month. Not to mention the savings on dish breakage by small children.

Living with LesCare: Now I'm convinced. Even though kitchen carpeting still seems like such a luxury, I've discovered it's economical in the long run. And I'm looking forward to the day our family room, entry, bathroom, and backyard patio can all be carpeted with LesCare. I never was one for scrubbing floors.

Put LesCare into your life: Everywhere. LesCare makes informal rooms cozier. Brings a touch of indoors to outside patios, porches, boat decks, poolsides, terraces or walkways. Fits right in to bathrooms, entries, mud rooms. And when it comes to color, let your imagination run the gamut. From deep, rich Autumn Gold to gay Carnation Red to sparkling Sea Blue Green. Ten beautiful colors in all.

So Easy to Care For: Made of rugged, yet beautiful dense pile, LesCare can take thousands of footsteps without losing its texture. The pile is lower and tighter for greater crush resistance and longer wear—more than 149,00 per square yard. The backing gr surface to provide an extra cush comfort. Pakistani menu features spicy meat patties with hot and cold accompaniments

Easy dinner in Pakistani style

This uncomplicated Pakistani dinner lets you enjoy the spicy flavors of Pakistani cuisine in some familiar foods. You need no lengthy preparations or unusual ingredients for this meal, based on lamb or beef patties and planned for six persons.

As is typical of Pakistani meals, the meat is the spiciest dish. The vegetable and rice, a little more subtle, have some of the same spicy seasonings. The yogurt sauce plays an important role in the menu, cooling and smoothing the other flavors.

Actually we've tempered the amount of hot spices in all the recipes to appeal to most Western tastes. You could easily adjust them upward if you are especially fond of spicy foods, increasing the hot chiles and fresh ginger in the meat dish and adding one or more hot chiles to the rice dish. For a milder flavor, remove the seeds from the hot chiles in the lamb recipe or decrease the chiles in the beef.

Pakistani Lamb (or Beef) Patties
Rice with Peas
Yogurt and Eggplant Sauce
Hot Buttered Tortillas
Raw Vegetable Relishes
Fresh Fruit or Ice Cream

Some parts of this meal may be done well ahead of serving. You can make the yogurt sauce and let its flavors blend and chill. And you can prepare and chill the vegetable relishes—we suggest carrot sticks, green onions, sliced cucumbers, or tomatoes. Enhance the carrots in the Pakistani way with a sprinkling of lime or lemon juice before you chill them.

Flour tortillas are quite similar to the Pakistani bread. Lightly butter about a dozen of them, stack, wrap in foil, and heat on a lower shelf of the oven while you broil the meat.

If you wish to use this menu for a company dinner, you can partially prepare the rice, stopping where it is noted in the recipe. Have the meat patties ready to broil—or barbecue, if you wish.

For those good Lenten dishes

There is a satisfying go-togetherness about Oroweat English muffins and the cheese, egg, and fish dishes in the Lenten menus.

As an accompaniment, the Oroweat muffin has just the right blend of crispness and chewiness and just the right lively flavor tang of sourdough.

As the supporting ingredient, the muffin has the substance and flavor needed to glorify the simplest of dishes — as simple as these:

- Cover toasted muffins liberally with a piping hot blend of canned mushroom soup, a beaten egg, a little sherry, and flaked tuna.
- Oroweat muffins give French toast a new personality. To make eggnog French toast, add a little sugar, a dash of van and some fresh nutmeg to your batter
- To give toasted cheese a lift, lay anchovy fillets on each muffin half, with crumbly aged cheddar. Toast oven until cheese melts.

liquid and pulp); add to onions. Stir in the coriander and chiles; taste to determine how much of the chile you want. The sauce should be fairly mild.

Add the chicken broth and simmer rapidly, uncovered, until reduced to 2½ cups; stir occasionally. You can cover sauce and chill several days.

Arrange the meat (cut thinly or thickly, as you like) in a wide frying pan and pour the sauce over all. Cover and warm gently over low heat; when the mixture begins to bubble slightly, simmer 5 to 10 minutes. Add salt to taste. Arrange meat with sauce on a platter. Serve with sour cream, and garnish with lettuce leaves and pickled chiles. Serves 4 to 6.

Lightly toasted sesame seeds, pumpkin seeds, and spices give surprisingly heavy body to this light brown colored sauce. The flavor is decidedly peanutlike.

Pipian comes from the pre-Columbian cultures and is sometimes described as Indian fricassee. We do not cook the meat in the sauce, however, since pipian behaves rather curiously. The seeds, whirled smooth with broth, make a thin liquid that, when heated, thickens considerably and becomes grainy. Mexican cooks partially control this with a high proportion of fat. For Western tastes, we recommend whirling the heated sauce to smoothness once again, then warming it very gently to spoon over the hot chicken.

PIPIAN (Sesame Seed Sauce)

3 tablespoons sesame seed
½ cup plain or salted pumpkin seed (shelled)
1 small clove garlic
2 tablespoons salad oil
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
¾ teaspoon chile powder
¾ cup chicken broth, canned or freshly made
Salt
1½ tablespoons lime juice
4 whole, boned, cooked chicken breasts, or 4 whole, cooked chicken legs
Shredded lettuce
Sliced green onions and lime wedges

In a saucepan, combine the sesame seed, pumpkin seed, garlic, and salad oil. Stir over moderate heat until sesame seed turns a pale golden brown. Remove at once from heat and stir in cinnamon, cloves, and chile powder. In a blender grind mixture to a smooth paste, adding broth a little at a time. (Or mash seeds to a fine paste with a mortar and pestle, blending in broth.) Salt to taste.

Stirring, heat sauce over moderate heat until it begins to bubble and thickens. Whirl smooth in blender (or beat vigorously with a balloon wire whip). You can cover sauce and chill several days.

To serve, very gently heat the pipian with the lime juice, stirring constantly, just until hot to touch. Spoon over the hot chicken. Surround with lettuce and garnish with onion and lime wedges. Squeeze on lime to taste. Serves 4.

A fondant icing is one of the most beautiful finishes you can give a cake. Incredibly thin ($\frac{1}{32}$ to $\frac{1}{8}$ inch thick), non-sticky, with a satiny gloss and the smoothest surface and taste you can achieve with any icing, it makes a refreshing and polished contrast to thick gooey frostings.

Fondant is sugar and water cooked to a certain viscosity (sugar-water concentration). You have to have a candy thermometer and follow directions exactly to make it properly. You cool the cooked syrup, then work it to a puttylike white mass that keeps, ready to use, for as long as a year in your refrigerator.

To apply fondant, you first warm it, then flavor, color, and thin it, then pour it on instead of spreading. Once the fondant is ready to pour, just a few seconds work produces spectacular, professional-looking results.

If you like chocolate, you will be particularly pleased with chocolate fondant. It is the easiest to use because the dark color covers well, the chocolate flavor is exceptionally good, and this icing stays shiny longest because of the cocoa fat.

General Electric invented the self-cleaning oven. Now we introduce a range with an oven that cleans itself, the oven racks, the reflector trays and the other oven.

You still have to wipe off the top. Sorry.

GE has just abolished the dirtiest job in the kitchen. With the new Americana™ you can cook the biggest, messiest meal and still not have to worry about cleaning the range. You just pop the dirty pieces into the P-7™ oven—the oven racks, the reflector trays and now the removable interior panels of the top oven. The Americana cleans them all electrically.

And the Americana bakes, roasts, broils and barbecues as automatically as it cleans. At your fingertips are pushbutton controls, a rotisserie, an automatic meat thermometer, a timer, an easy-to-clean, non-stick, coated griddle and everything else you could ask for in a range.

The Americana is the best thing to happen to the kitchen since electricity.

You'll rarely need service on a GE Range. But it's nice to know we're nearby.

rains: bulgur, cornmeal, rolled oats, cracked wheat. Loaf is oatmeal bread

If you'd like to try a whole grain bread in or coarsely ground flours and count for the distinctive quali- ne of the best tasting, best look- s.

ade nine different kinds to show iety of these flours. One bread as another when you use the hnique we've developed espe- working with such relatively coarse, heavy flours as whole and cracked wheat, bulgur, rolled and steel-cut oats, rye flour, and cornmeal.

You begin with a basic batter made from all-purpose flour. Extensive beating with your electric mixer—even a sturdy hand electric beater will do the job—gives this batter the elastic structure necessary to hold the special flours you blend in later.

The dough requires very little kneading before it's ready to shape into loaves.

Most of the special flours in these distinctive breads can be found in supermarkets in the West. You might have to shop in a health food store to find the steel-cut oats.

To make attractively rounded loaves, we baked these breads in medium-sized, 4½ by 8½-inch loaf pans. You can also bake them in the more standard 5 by 9-inch pans, but the resulting loaves will be somewhat flatter.

This basic recipe for whole grain bread contains a fairly high proportion of yeast, so the dough may rise faster than you expect. Rising times given in the recipe are approximate, depending in part on the warmth of the place where you put the dough to rise (we suggest good spots in your kitchen at the end of this article).

WHOLE GRAIN BREAD

2 packages yeast (active dry or compressed)
1½ cups warm water (lukewarm for compressed yeast)
1 cup undiluted evaporated milk
Honey or sugar (measurements follow)
2½ teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons salad oil, or shortening, melted and cooled
3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
Whole grain flours or cereals, and additional all-purpose flour (see below)
2 tablespoons beaten egg

In the large bowl of an electric mixer, sprinkle yeast over ½ cup of the warm water; let stand until yeast is softened. Blend in remaining 1 cup warm water, evaporated milk, honey or sugar as recipe specifies, salt, and oil.

Gradually stir in the 3 cups all-purpose flour; beat for 4 minutes at high speed (beat for only 3 minutes if you have a heavy-duty mixer). Cover bowl with waxed paper or a damp towel and let stand in a warm place for 20 minutes.

With a heavy mixing spoon, stir in whole grain flours specified in recipe until well blended. Then add about the amount of additional all-purpose flour specified in individual recipe; use just as much as you can mix in well with a spoon, making a stiff dough. Cover and let dough rise in a warm place until doubled, 1 to 1½ hours.

Stir down dough and turn out onto a well floured board. Knead for about 5 minutes until dough is smooth, elastic, and no longer sticky, gradually kneading in ½ to ¾ cup more all-purpose flour. Divide dough in half.

To shape each loaf, form one portion of dough into a smooth ball. Use the heel of your hand to flatten the round of dough into a 5 by 9-inch rectangle. Starting from one of the narrow ends, roll dough loosely, jelly-roll fashion. Place, seam side down, in a greased 4½ by 8½ or a 5 by 9-inch loaf pan. Cover and let rise in a warm place until almost doubled in bulk, 30 to 45 minutes. Brush with the beaten egg.

Bake the loaves in a 350° oven (if you are using glass pans, reduce baking temperature to 325°) for 45 to 50 minutes, until loaves are well browned and a wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean (if breads become too brown before they test done, cover lightly with foil). Makes 2 loaves.

Oatmeal Bread. Use ¼ cup honey for sweetening. Add ½ cup each wheat germ and an uncooked hot wheat cereal (farina, or a fine-textured whole wheat cereal), 1 cup regular rolled oats, and about 2¼ cups additional unsifted all-purpose flour.—L. W., Grand Ronde, Ore.

Honey-Wheat Crackle Bread. Use ½ cup honey for sweetening. Add ¾ cup each whole wheat flour, rye flour, and cracked wheat; ½ cup wheat germ; and approximately 1½ cups additional unsifted all-purpose flour.

Graham Bread. Use 2 tablespoons honey for sweetening. Add 2 cups graham flour and about 1½ cups additional unsifted all-purpose flour.

Honey-Corn Bread. Use ½ cup honey for sweetening. Add 2 cups cornmeal, ½ cup wheat germ, and about 2 cups additional unsifted all-purpose flour.

Cracked Wheat (Bulgur) Bread. Use ¼ cup honey for sweetening. Pour 1 cup boiling water over 1 cup quick-cooking cracked wheat; let stand 15 minutes. Add to batter with ½ cup wheat germ and about 4 cups additional unsifted all-purpose flour.—W. B., San Francisco.

Steel-Cut Oatmeal Bread. Use 2 tablespoons honey for sweetening. Add 2 cups whole wheat flour, 1 cup steel-cut oats, and about 1 cup additional unsifted all-purpose flour.

Buckwheat Bread. Use ½ cup honey for sweetening. Add 1 cup buckwheat flour and about 3 cups additional unsifted all-purpose flour.

Corn-Rye Bread. Use 3 tablespoons sugar for sweetening. Add ⅓ cup cornmeal, 2 cups rye flour, 1 tablespoon caraway seed, and about 1 cup additional unsifted all-purpose flour.

Before baking, sprinkle the egg-brushed surfaces of the loaves evenly with 3 tablespoons cornmeal.

If you want to make round loaves, as shown in the photograph on p is important to knead the dough very elastic and no longer sticky the amount of flour you knea dough to about 1 cup. Depend hard you bear down while kne may have to lengthen kneadi as much as 10 minutes.

The Chefs this month do their cooking under the influence of the Mediterranean

We accuse all candidates for Chefs of the West this month of being guilty as charged: cooking under the influence of the Mediterranean. As evidence we cite their ingredient lists: capers, olives, anchovies, eggplant, shallots (all native to the Mediterranean region, or practically so); and tomatoes, chiles, caviar, shrimp, various herbs, garlic (all used very freely in the kitchens of sunny southern Europe).

We should administer a breath test?

Alfred Hanes, of La Mirada, California, shows his bias for the Mediterranean with a pasta dish like those one encounters in northern Italy. Mostaccioli, the particular form of pasta he uses, is a macaroni of about little-finger size with ends cut at an angle.

If you are more used to the tomato paste school of Italian cookery, this dish may seem rather pale and immaculate. In this case you might relieve its chasteness by mixing the parsley into the dish just before serving instead of using it solely as garnish.

sauce that Theodore Prichard proposes.

DELICIOUS FISH SAUCE

- 1 can (about 5 oz.) small shrimp
- 1½ tablespoons chopped anchovy fillets
- 1 pint (2 cups) mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon chopped dill pickle
- 2 tablespoons capers
- 3 dashes Worcestershire
- 2 drops liquid hot pepper seasoning
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- ⅛ teaspoon white pepper
- ½ teaspoon crushed whole tarragon
- ¼ teaspoon onion powder

Rinse and drain shrimp and blend with anchovy and a small amount of mayonnaise in blender. Add all remaining ingredients and the rest of the mayonnaise; whirl until blended. Refrigerate and save until needed; will keep well for several days. Makes slightly more than 1 pint sauce. Serve with poached salmon or other fish of your choice.

stretch a leg of lamb into 3 meals

Yes! Today's delicious New Lamb is also a thrifty meal stretcher for your family. U.S. Department of Agriculture studies* prove lamb to be as economical as other comparable cuts of meat and poultry because of lighter bone and more lean meat. For each pound you buy you get more taste-tempting edible meat on your fork.

You can stretch a leg of lamb into three different meals. Start with tender steaks off the sirloin end. Then, a festive roast. What's left is great for sandwiches. Or diced into a nifty lamb salad.

ious aids are a sheet of thin ply- l a heavy hammer. The plywood is useful for piling soil and blending in soil additives. By spreading the weight of excavated soil it spares lawn or garden from compaction and eliminates considerable raking up after planting is done. The heavy hammer makes driving stakes easier, and saves stakes, too. Repeated blows from a light hammer are far more likely to damage the top of the stake than are relatively few blows from a broadheaded, heavy hammer.

Purely a luxury, but a desirable one if you plan to do a lot of planting, is your own can cutter. If you have your own, you're able to buy can-grown nursery plants uncut, then cut cans and plant at your leisure. At approximately $10 it's not cheap, but a can cutter lasts practically forever, and having it will give you greater choice in when you buy and when you plant.

Enjoy spring all summer

Most summer bedding plants are sturdy in growth, showy in bloom, and tolerant of summer high temperatures. But most of them lack the crispness, plumpness, and dewiness of such spring flowers as bulbs, pansies, or primroses. You might with justice refer to these qualities as being equally the virtues of a salad.

Bedding begonias have the salad virtues, and they are tough and heat-resistant as well; they bring the crisp spring look to summer (and fall) gardens. Plants are often sold as wax begonias or even as fibrous begonias (although there are other begonias that equally well deserve the latter name). Leaves are plump and glossy, rich green, bronzy, or reddish, often with deeper red veins.

Flowers of most common bedding kinds are single and come in white, pink, or red. Some cutting-grown double-flowering kinds are available, but these are usually grown as pot plants. Bloom lasts all summer and through the fall; in mildest areas plants may bloom nearly the year around.

Bedding begonias are perennials but usually freeze out in cold winters in interior climates. Near the coast they often live over, but most people replant them each year. Near the coast they will thrive in full sun; inland they grow best in partial shade, but will take full sun if given ample water.

Set out plants now for a long bloom season you may find that flat-grown plants at the nurseries are already in bloom. Set them out 8 to 12 inches apart in rich, well drained soil. More than most other plants, bedding begonias require large amounts of organic material in the soil. Since nurseries grow them in mixes largely composed of leaf mold or peat moss, plants should not be set into hard soil that will keep them from spreading out their roots.

White, pink, red bedding begonias fill a corner, get much water, little other care

Care and feeding of soil organisms

Healthy topsoil is teeming with soil organisms (mostly bacteria and molds) that reduce organic material to forms in which it will be useful plant food. To do a good job, these organisms need food (organic matter, nitrogen fertilizer, or both), moisture, and oxygen.

One excellent way to encourage greater activity among these organisms is to add large amounts of organic material to the soil. Doing so furnishes food for the organisms and, by improving air and water penetration, increases moisture and oxygen available to them.

The key word is large. Sunset recommends adding 30 to 50 per cent by volume of organic amendment when readying soil for a new lawn. This means adding 3 to 6 inches of sawdust or other organic material and tilling it in to a 6-inch depth. (If you use raw sawdust or ground bark, you'll need additional nitrogen fertilizer to feed the bacteria that break down the wood.)

You can't increase the soil bacteria count significantly by using small quantities of additives—compost, compost extracts, earthworm casts, herbal preparations, or other quasi-magical ingredients that are supposed to activate bacteria, release nutrients from mineral soil, and improve soil structure.

Keep chrysanthemums from flopping

Here's a good way to keep tall chrysanthemums from flopping over, as they certainly will do if not supported. In spring, while plants are small, spread a wide-mesh wire screen over the area, suspended 15 inches above ground level. Fasten each corner of the screen to strong stakes.

Let the chrysanthemums grow up through the wire. You'll have to tuck back stems that grow out beyond the edge of the wire. By midsummer plants will be big enough and leafy enough to hide almost all the wire. If stems grow too tall, attach another tier of wire above the first.

You can use this scheme on other tall, gangly plants—carnations, gladiolus. Mr. and Mrs. Dee Sheneman, who garden in Concord, California, devised this scheme.

Spring leaf-raking

There's no cause for alarm when you notice broad-leafed evergreens dropping leaves in spring. It's a natural thing for them to do while they are starting new growth. An evergreen leaf is not immortal; it lives for a year or more, but eventually it ripens and falls. On azaleas, camellias, and rhododendrons, older leaves may turn yellow and red, then brown before falling.

If leaves from the oldest portions of the plant turn color and fall, don't worry; but if new growth turns yellow, with veins of leaves remaining green, plants most likely are suffering from iron deficiency, which should be remedied.

Some plants just naturally shed very heavily in the spring, most notably camphor trees. Take advantage of this signal that new growth has begun and start feeding the plants.

When is a fern not a fern?

The answer to this riddle is "When it's an air fern." The so-called air fern, air plant, or sea moss, far from being either fern or moss, is animal in origin, even though it is plantlike in appearance.

Air ferns are easy to find in stores. Information about them is a little less easy to come by. Several that we bought and then checked with the Department of Invertebrate Zoology at the California Academy of Sciences were identified as Sertularia argentea, hydroid animals native to the mouth of the Thames River in England. Similar hydroids are found on our own coasts.

The "fronds" you see are skeletons of whole communities of tiny animals resembling corals (to which they are distantly related). Commercial operators dredge up and clean the skeletons, dye them green, treat them to keep them soft,

If you are the kind who plants, either with kindness air fern is for you. It needs air, no water, no feeding, a control. It won't grow, of co won't "die," either, since it's dead. All you have to do is material and arrange it in a

APRIL CHECK LIST: Here are the important jobs

☐ Bulbs and bulblike plants. See page 183 of the March Sunset for after-bloom care of spring-blooming bulbs. Many bulbs and bulblike plants are available for planting now. Among them are agapanthus, fancy-leafed caladiums, pink and yellow callas, cannas, dahlias, gladiolus, tigridia, and tuberose.

☐ Feeding plants. Give azaleas, camellias, and rhododendrons their first feeding with acid plant food as soon as bloom is over. Most plants need feeding this month if they haven't been fed previously in March.

☐ Food garden. Set out eggplants, peppers, and tomatoes in all except mountain and intermountain areas. In these, wait until danger of frost is over. Plant beans, corn, and other warm-weather crops unless soil is still cold and wet. Spray apples and pears to control codling moth and mites; first spray should come just before flower buds open, second spray when three-quarters of the petals have fallen.

Thin stone fruits when they reach the size of your last thumb joint. First remove runty, malformed, and double fruits; then take out any that are crowding each other. Mulch strawberries to conserve moisture and keep berries clean.

☐ Lawns. If you didn't plant your new grass lawn in October, do it now. April is probably the second best month for planting grass—probably the best for dichondra. Mow established lawns frequently during periods of fast growth; if grass gets too long, lower parts of the blades are likely to t from lack of sun. Then mowi the unattractive yellow growth best summer annuals are the ers (Callistephus), known to eners simply as asters. Larger- inds are splendid cut-flower and effective for massing in o aster 'Dwarf Blue'. Plants less oot tall; flowers are violet-blue

Two dwarf varieties are especially useful for low beds, edging, or container growing. 'Snow White' has pure white flowers 2½ inches across. 'Dwarf Blue,' new this year, has violet-blue flowers. Plants are a little less than a foot tall and have a spread of 1½ feet. When bloom reaches its peak (in midsummer), plants are solid mounds of violet-blue or white.

Sow seed now or set out plants in a sunny place. Soil should be rich and well drained. Keep plants growing actively and never permit them to suffer from under-feeding or drought. Cut fading flowers to encourage prolonged bloom, and spray or dust to ward off leafhoppers, which carry yellows, a virus disease.

Asters do best if planted in fresh soil each year; soil that has grown asters recently may have wilt fungus present. If you grow asters in pots and use a prepared soil mix, soil-borne disease will be no problem.

Check balled and burlapped plantings

When weather warms up, balled and burlapped trees and shrubs planted in late fall or winter should begin to show signs of growth. If they do not, look to the root ball; it might be shedding water. If, for instance, the ball has a high clay content, it may cake and shed water into the surrounding easily permeable soil.

To inspect, remove soil carefully from the base of the trunk with fingers or a trowel. If you come to dry burlap or to dry, hard soil, you'll have uncovered the source of the problem.

Cut away burlap from the top of the root mass or perforate it in several places with an ice pick or screwdriver. Poke a few holes in the dry soil mass around the roots. Give the root ball a long, slow soaking from an uncapped hose slowly trickling water onto the soil ball at the base of the trunk. Once soil is thoroughly moist and roots are actively growing, the problem clears itself up. Burlap quickly rots and roots move into porous prepared soil mix in the planting hole.

And check new rhododendron and azalea plantings

It's possible to do almost everything right and still make one small, serious misstep. Peat moss is an excellent medium for growing azaleas and rhododendrons. Many container-grown plants come in what is practically pure peat moss. This material holds moisture very well; but it is also extremely hard to dampen when it's dry. Throw a handful of dry peat moss into a bucket of water, and you'll get the idea.

If a plant growing in dry peat moss is set out in the garden, the dry peat moss may shed water just as the burlap or the clay mentioned at left will do. The plant may wilt quickly, especially if weather turns warm, and no amount of drenching helps. To prevent the situation, see that plants are well watered before putting them in the ground. A dry plant will be light for its bulk, and the peat moss will be light brown; adequately watered plants are heavy, the peat moss very dark brown.

To correct the situation, soak the root mass with the merest trickle from a hose set where the trunk of the plant enters the soil. Once the root mass is damp, a mulch will help keep it so. If you plant in peat moss, knead it with water until it is thoroughly damp before putting it in the planting hole.

☐ Propagating. It's a good time of year to make softwood cuttings of azalea, carnation, chrysanthemum, fuchsia, geranium and pelargonium, ice plant, rosemary, and sedum.

☐ Pruning and grooming. Carefully cut back frost-damaged portions of tender plants. Beginning near tips of growth, make short cuts until you come to green, live wood. Tender shrubs apparently killed to the ground shouldn't be pulled and discarded yet. Shorten tops, but leave a few stubs behind; dormant buds may yet appear.

Not all sprouts that appear from the base of a plant are welcome; those that arise from below a bud or graft should be removed. These suckers are often quite different in appearance from top growth of the plant. On dwarf citrus, for instance, the leaves will be divided into three leaflets. On many deciduous fruit and flowering trees, foliage from suckers from the root or understock will have very little resemblance to that of the top growth.

☐ Roses. Unless late rains have kept soil very wet, build irrigation basins around roses, and apply a thick mulch. Spray to control aphids, or use one of the new systemic insecticides.

☐ Weed control. To control weeds around plantings of shallow-rooted azaleas, camellias, and rhododendrons, hand pulling is most effective and least damaging to roots. If shrubs are in soil as soft and well mulched as it should be, pulling won't be much effort.

Control broad-leafed weeds in grass lawns with sprays containing 2,4-D; 2,4,5-T; silvex; dicamba; or some mixture of these.

After weather warms, sow seeds of everlastings in place in full sun in moist, loose, well-drained soil. Thin seedlings when large enough to handle. Water enough to keep ground evenly moist.

On a clear, dry day, as soon as flowers are fully open, you can harvest your everlastings, but wait until after the dew has dried. Cut them with long stems, and strip off all leaves and foliage immediately. To dry, place several stems of flowers in a tall container (without water, of course) or tie into loose bundles and suspend the bunches, flower heads down, from an overhead line. They will dry best in a cool, shady place with a good circulation of air. When flowers and stems are completely dry, store them in boxes, one kind or color to a box.

The fringe tree is a great bouquet

Snow white flowers of Chines form compact clusters (about of eastern kind) at tips of Fluffy clusters of pure white flowers that look like shaggy fringe almost completely cover the branches of fringe trees (Chionanthus) in spring. Two species are grown in the West: the Chinese fringe tree, C. retusus, and the fringe tree that is native to the eastern and southern parts of the United States, C. virginicus.

Under favorable conditions, C. retusus may grow to about 10 feet in 3 years; C. virginicus is generally quite a bit slower. They normally start to bloom at an early age, so you can enjoy their flowers.

Because fringe trees are wide branching, they need plenty of room to spread. If you want to train them to a tree form, stake the trunk at planting time and prune regularly to remove low side branches. They make good multiple-trunked trees too. When left untrained, they develop into tall, rather rangy shrubs.

The Chinese fringe tree shown in the photograph at the right is probably the oldest and largest in California. It was saved through the efforts of several of Southern California's leading horticulturists and a property owner who appreciated its historical value.

Its blossoms, shown at upper right, have four narrow, ¾-inch-long petals that give the full clusters a fringed effect. In warm areas such as Southern California, where spring comes early, bloom begins in late March or early April and continues into May. In California's Central Valley, May and June are the usual flowering months.

The attractive, deep green, leathery leaves measure up to 4 inches long and are quite broad; they turn a deep yellow in fall.

The American native, C. virginicus, usually grows slowly to 10 feet tall but may reach 30 feet under the most favorable conditions. The fragrant flowers open about the same time as the Chinese fringe tree, and look even more like fringe because the individual petals are both narrower and longer (up to an inch or more). The leaves are up to twice as large as those of Chinese fringe tree, and when they turn deep yellow in fall are often quite showy.

Both leaf out later in the spring than most deciduous trees. Male plants produce somewhat larger, showier flower clusters than the female. In addition to flowers, though, female plants bear clusters of ¾-inch, decorative, dark blue berrylike fruits in August. (Nurseries don't normally designate whether plant or female.)

Famous old Chinese fringe tree at Chino, California, in full bloom late in April; stands 30 feet tall, nearly 50 feet wide

Since neither fringe tree has b widely in the West, there's n deal of information available climate adaptability.

Based upon observations, hov Chinese fringe tree stands hot mers—though not desert condit ter than the American native, ar suitable for Southern California tral Valley climates. It's hardy cept the very coldest mountain C. virginicus grows best in coole of northern California, around Area, and south to the Monter sula. However, it doesn't do v exposed to prevailing coastal w cold-hardy anywhere in the We Both fringe trees grow equally w sun or partial shade. Chinese frin more tolerant of poor soil, ever soils, than C. virginicus, but bot in sandy loam soil with an amp of water.

re interested in seeing classic gardens, you might visit one of c gardens listed in the guide on of the book. By far the largest are in California, Hawaii, and the Pacific Northwest. These gardens, often designed and installed by highly trained Japanese landscape architects, are intended to serve as a cultural display of a national tradition, but portions of them can serve as models to copy in private gardens.

Most of the book is devoted to special, often small and easily executed features in Japanese gardens that we can adapt to our own gardens using locally available plants and building materials. Among these features are the use of different kinds of stone in paths, in walls, along streams, near pools, or simply as settings for plants. There also are suggestions for use of sand, gravel, and pebbles.

Other chapters deal with ways to use water in pools, streams, and waterfalls (there's also a section on how to create the illusion of water with dry materials); paths and walks; fences, gates, walls, and hedges; garden structures such as arbors, engawa, and tea houses; suitable plants; and accessories such as water basins, wells, lanterns, pagodas, and bonsai.

In several of these chapters there is considerable practical how-to-do-it detail. For example, you can learn how to handle stone without incurring back injury; how to plant or transplant, prune, and care for trees properly; how to make a wet garden; how to divide, plant, and restrain bamboo; and how to grow your own moss.

The book closes with five quite different landscape plans, with accompanying photographs, showing how significant features of Japanese gardens have been adapted to Western gardens with local plants and building materials.

ur welcome a cascade of yellow dodendrons

LYN DAVIS

Three yellow-flowered rhododendrons grow in entry garden: 'Unique' in front of wall, taller-growing 'Damaris' and 'Mrs. Betty Robertson' in back. Bloom in April, May ance garden in Seattle welcomes April and May with a fanfare dendron blooms. Flower trusses s of yellow, ranging from pale to butter, reflect the color preference of the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Wilcox. The yellow flowers look especially handsome against the background provided by the gray stone wall that surrounds the garden.

Glimpses of plantings inside the wall invite visitors to examine unusual ground covers, tiny bulbs, perennials, and broad-leafed evergreen shrubs at close hand. The garden's appeal, not only in spring but at all seasons, is the result of close collaboration between the owners and landscape designer Ken Kelley.

The garden's color climax comes in spring when the yellow-flowered rhododendrons 'Unique,' 'Moonstone,' 'Mrs. Betty Robertson,' and 'Damaris' dominate the landscape. A pair of pink-flowering dogwood trees (Cornus florida 'Rubra') lend height and line to the plantings; their flowers echo the touch of apricot in the 'Unique' rhododendron's close-set flower trusses. Starry blue wood anemone (A. nemorosa) makes an effective underplanting, as do clumps of Auricula primroses.

In summer, the garden is basically cool and green. Tree fuchsias in tubs flank the front door and annual portulaca reseeds itself to add a fringe of bright-colored flowers to the borders.

Winter beauty depends mainly on the interplay of the different colors of the evergreen leaves. A Sasanqua camellia variety with large single white flowers begins to bloom in November, and the dogwoods contribute a pattern of bare branches to the landscape.

By earliest spring, Crocus chrysanthus 'Blue Pearl,' low-growing winter aconite with yellow, ball-shaped blooms, and white snowdrops begin to show. Magenta-pink Cyclamen coum, only a few inches tall, repeats the paler pink of the 'Rosamundi' rhododendrons, which are among the earliest to bloom. A little later the tall Himalayan pieris (P. formosa) adds a touch of vibrant scarlet as its new leaves begin to unfold.

The fact that the garden needs very little care contributes greatly to the pleasure it affords. The owners remove faded flowers promptly and nip back ground covers whenever they start to grow across paving. Otherwise, the main task is the thinning and shaping of evergreens in early summer.

Grilled gate leads from pool to yard that includes playhouse

Playhouse sits back in retaining wall. brush in wall cracks. Myoporum screen

They're sliding through a cajeput tree

These youngsters are playing in a Laguna Beach garden that's good looking as well as good fun.

The slide-through-a-cajeput-tree is typical of the way landscape architect Frederick M. Lang worked play apparatus into a sophisticated garden design. The tree hides much of the slide's metal frame and thus helps preserve the natural effect of the pool, its sea-sculptured rocks for sitting and diving, and the stone wall behind the pool. This particular cajeput (Melaleuca quinquenervia, usually sold as M. leucadendra) was specially selected for its low branching pattern and Y shape.

The playhouse matches the owner's house in design and material. (Architect Richard H. Dodd designed both structures.) It's tucked back in a curve of the retaining wall that edges part of the play area. A lantern hung from a bamboo pole lights the area at night.

In the play area, children can ri on paving that circles a big, g curving lawn.

The lawn was tough enough to gym set just a few months aft planted. (The set gets moved w mowing—weekly in summer—so mark the lawn.)

The grass is Tifgreen hybrid Bern the mild Southern California cli stays green all year.

Out of range!

Some activities have built-in dangers. Now you can keep little taggers safely out of range and still let them have the fun of watching . . . with Keystone Non-Climb Fence that never blots out the action!

Besides, there's something about the striking 2 x 4 inch vertical pattern that complements the view, rather than hiding it. Non-Climb enhances the beauty of your surroundings almost like a picture frame.

And the Galvannealed® copper bearing steel wire is always fresh without painting or messy maintenance. Galvannealing fights rust, resists corrosion so it lasts longer, too. You'll be surprised at the modest cost of Non-Climb.

Set up your safety range now. See your Keystone dealer for lawn or garden fence or call one of the Keystone offices listed below.

You can braid several young corkscrew willows

The graceful curves and twists in the branches of the corkscrew willow (Salix matsudana 'Tortuosa') take readily to braiding. The trunk of the tree at lower right was braided about eight years ago from five young trees that were grown from cuttings.

You can train a tree in a similar way by using four to seven young trees, as shown at lower left. Don't use more than seven or the tree will become too dense.

Aside from the picturesque, gnarled appearance that these trees develop with this training, there are other definite advantages. You can shape your own tree: Since each of the original trunks one of the main scaffold branch new, braided tree, you can decid you start just how many main you want and how high these should be. INTRIGUING GARDENS

THIS NEW Sunset BOOK IS FILLED WITH UNIQUE, FASCINATING IDEAS FOR ORIENTAL GARDENS

Now, an all-new book from Sunset shows how you can create an entirely new Japanese garden to suit your tastes; or how you can modify an existing garden—or add a partial Oriental garden. This easy-to-use book is filled with how-to information and descriptive photos and drawings to help remove the "mystery" of combining the three basic elements of a Japanese garden—a variety of rocks, pebbles, gravel; suitable trees, shrubs, flowers; creation of new dimensions of sound and sight with water. Basic gardening principles and fundamentals of proportion and design are explained in this book in terms of the United States gardener.

Various types of family Japanese gardens are treated—the tea, hill, flat, passage, sand, small-space, indoor, and rooftops gardens. Pathways, fences and gates, and structures—such as pagodas, tea houses, engawa, wells, lanterns—add interest to Japanese gardens and are discussed in several helpful chapters. Actual plans are shown to help start you on your way to Oriental garden beauty. All for only $2.95.

UP-TO-DATE LANDSCAPING IDEAS IN A REVISED Sunset FAVORITE

This thoroughly revised Sunset guide provides practical ideas for effective landscape planning for the home gardener—complete with suggested plants, shrubs, trees; diagrams; photographs; drawings; garden plans. Plants especially suited to Western atmosphere are discussed. $2.95.

White impatiens variety is ground cover under 'Akebono' cherry at Sunset

Busy Lizzie is beautiful all summer . . . then she gets impatient

Maybe this month you'd like to plant some beds, pots, tubs, and hanging baskets with a plant that will do the following things:

—Carry red, lavender, purple, orange, or white flowers the size of half dollars every day from shortly after planting until frost.

—Grow and bloom continually in sun, half-sun, or shade. (All that's needed is good soil, regular watering and feeding.)

—Stay completely free of pests of all kinds: no damage by insects, mites, mollusks, or common fungus diseases. (For this alone, many a gardener would give a flowering plant the deed to his place.)

—Supply you regularly by late summer with entertaining, seemingly live seed capsules that can make girls and women squeal and giggle.

—Continue the same performance through winter if you dig up in late fall, plant in pots, and take indoors.

The plant we refer to is the "busy Lizzie" kind of impatiens, tropical Africa's gift to summer gardens. Botanically it's now known as Impatiens walleriana, but nurseries usually sell it either as I. holstii (Holstii mix or hybrids) or I. sultanii (Sultanii mix or hybrids). Fortunately they are both under one botanical name now, since the differences are so slight they are hard to tell apart.

Most nurseries, however, seem to make two distinctions. They sell them on the basis of how high they grow and what color their flowers are. There a

Hummocky or billowy . . . it grows as you like it

Clump of mondo grass grows at base of Indian laurel fig in terra cotta container

Whether you plant a little or a lot of mondo grass (Ophiopogon japonicus), you'll get something that's graceful, always rich dark green, and easy to grow.

That's just one clump of mondo grass in the container shown above. It's the right size now, but it will spread and fill the container if not controlled by uprooting stems that start to crowd the tree.

A whole area devoted to mondo grass should fulfill the wish of any gardener who'd like to forget about his mower and see his lawn grow deep and lush like a meadow. For a solid ground cover like the one below, space the plants 6 to 8 inches apart; spacing them farther apart will give a look that's more hummocky and not so billowy.

Mondo grass succeeds under almost any condition. It gets along fine in the sunniest or the shadiest spots (dark, hard-to-plant atriums present no problems at all). But the best appearance comes in part shade. It stands wet places as well as drought conditions, but does best where the soil stays on the moist side. It will grow in most soils but spreads fastest in light ones. It's hardy to about 10°.

The plants spread by underground stolon-like stems that form a thick mat. If the mat becomes too thick and the plants are crowded, dig up the plants, divide them, and replant the strongest divisions. Each spring cut off any brown leaves.

Although March was the peak month for daffodils, you may still cat beginning in most of the Midwest and East.

Weather permitting, our flowering crabapples and Japanese flowe

You'll see azaleas and rhododendrons. Look for a mass planting 'Daphne Salmon' azaleas in the bench-enclosed bed under a large tree; in the same bed a pink-flowering dogwood should be in bloom.

If you notice the smell of ripe bananas as you walk out into the gar

Sunset's garden is a laboratory in which our garden editors try out hu men. Here we can evaluate plant performance at first hand.

We also use our garden to try out gardening techniques, tools, chemica soil mixes, fertilizers. In this way many of the garden articles you re

WINDOW ON THE WEST: Rodeo

The saddle bronc rider at left has just lost his stirrup, his seat, and probably his chance at prize money at Salinas last July. Rodeo is the West's own spectator sport. Today, though the professional circuit stretches clear across the nation to New York City, rodeo calls up place names like Tucson, Pendleton, Ellensburg; and where but in the West would you find a 12,000-seat arena called the Cow Palace? The sport thrives not only because it is colorful and exciting, but because its roots are deep in Western life. Ranching is still a major industry here; the skills displayed at rodeos are used in the everyday chores of working cowhands. For a report on rodeos in the West this year, turn back to page 80.

For quiet waters and swift rivers

Watertight hatches are part of this dory's adaptation to really rough water

The frustrating thing about dories built for swift Western rivers is that nobody is sure which end is which. In most rowboats, the oarsman faces the stern and travels backwards; but in a dory hanging along through white water, the high prow is in front of you and you face the way you're going, letting the current propel you and using the oars mainly to maintain heading.

It's all the more confusing if your dory is a double-ender, pointed at both ends. Anyway, as we see it, the near end of the dory pictured at right is the stern. Senior editor Martin Litton, shown finishing his own decked-over dory, later subjected it to the supreme test: navigation of the Colorado River, with its awesome rapids, through the 280-mile length of the Grand Canyon.

We're not advising that you, too, take a plywood dory to the Grand Canyon; the National Park Service wouldn't let you launch it if you did—unless you could pass the rather demanding safety tests required for a boating permit there.

But beginning on page 86 we do tell you about these light, strong, stable, cheap, remarkably versatile boats and how you can have one of your own.

A PIECE OF PAPER CAN SUPPORT A 4½ lb. BRICK

To explain the next bit of gas-saving we've set up a little demonstration. (above)

Without those pleats, the same paper would never even support another piece of paper. That, in principle, is the kind of extra wrinkle we design into the steel structure of the Renault 10. It allows us to increase strength and rigidity without increasing sheer dead weight. And by not increasing dead weight, again, we don't increase gas consumption.

Now, with your permission, a little documentation on how little scrimping there is on car. Included in the $1,795* price: Seats that have been compared with the seats in a Rolls-Royce. And which convert into twin beds. 11 cubic feet of trunk. Top speed, 85. Self-adjusting 4-wheel disc brakes. 4-wheel independent suspension. 4 doors. 4-speed synchromesh transmission.

If there's any scrimping on the Renault 10 at all, it's on the gas tank. It only holds ten gallons. (About 350 miles worth.)

ON OUR 70TH ANNIVERSARY...

Why are so many millions attracted to the West? And why do so few natives move away?

After 70 years of reporting the West, we have a hunch we know the answers

This is the 841st consecutive monthly issue of Sunset since the first one came out in May, 1898.

Over the last 70 years we've watched Western America grow, we've watched it change, and we've reported the changes. Since the present ownership took over 40 years ago Sunset has located, identified, and reported the conditions and attributes that have made the American West the most attractive place on earth—attractive in the dictionary sense of attracting, attracting people.

"They demonstrated their adventurous nature . . ."

Our astonishing population growth rate was already established at the turn of the century. Population has been climbing steeply through all of Sunset's 70 years. Today there are 29 million people living in the eight states of California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Hawaii. They make up around 14 per cent of the nation's population, earn about 16 per cent of the nation's income, occupy about 20 per cent of the nation's land. And their numbers continue to increase about twice as fast as the rest of the country.

Here are some aspects of the American West that we have identified as attractive of new immigrant population.

The big one is the mild-winter, mild-summer climate that exists up and down the Pacific Coast. In California it resembles the Mediterranean climate but is cooler in summer, more comfortable. In the Northwest it resembles that of the southern coast of England. Neither of these gentle Pacific coastal climates resembles the climate in any other part of the United States.

Two other Western climates are also particularly attractive to people. One is the winter-balmy, low-desert climate of Arizona and California (more attractive today with a new amenity, the air-conditioned summer). The other is the all-year balminess of Hawaii.

May 1898: Vol. 1 No. 1 had 16 pages, lead article on Yosemite National Park

May 1968: Vol. 140 No. 5 has 276 pages, lead on Los Angeles as a city region

Next on the list, after climate, is the geography of the West. Every big city in the West, with no exceptions, is within easy driving distance of wilderness. We in the West take it for granted, but this fact of Western life actually is true of no other urbanized region in the world. Most big citi West are also on salt water or close to salt water. (I Lake City has its own inland sea!) You can see n from every major Western city. In several of them Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, Honolulu), mountains inside the city limits.

Next comes the innovative society that has evolve West. No one knows exactly why there is so much ac of innovation in the West, but there is—whether in ture, in food packaging, or in automobiles. (For exa ported cars and the new domestic sports cars both s twice as fast in the West as they do elsewhere in Am

Some people think this interest in innovation is relat kind of people who have come West. They demonstra adventuresome nature when they pulled up stakes a here (or if they didn't, their parents did). They were try something new.

"You can see mountains from your patio . . ."

Not last, but last for this brief list, among the people-attracting attributes of the West, are simply the many side benefits of the mild climate. An important one to a cook is fresh-food abundance at low prices over a long, long season—mel available in December, strawberries in the markets in M fresh produce peak that lasts not two mo eight months.

Another attraction is simply what we call living—it's the way we use the out-of-doors even a small house live spaciously. Another around gardening, a rewarding hobby-disco millions with plants from North Europe t Africa, from Asia to Australia, all doing nic and all great fun to grow.

We don't make any of the statements abo ally, even though they may sound casual. T based on Sunset's 70 years of observing and ing what life in the Western states is like— people to deal with problems in Western liv to make the most of the grand opportunities.

do remain. If you grew up in Los Angeles, your school class probably visited the ice-age fossils from the tar pits of Rancho La Brea (now Hancock Park). This splendid collection still stands—stark bony evidence of life around Los Angeles when Wilshire was grassier than it is now. And you most probably stopped to peer at the Egyptian mummy, the museum's most popular exhibit.

The classes still come, more than ever now, and the museum is still enlivened by young voices. The youngsters learn about Southern California life in the Indian, Spanish, Mexican, and American periods; and about the rich plant and animal life that remains, frequently in competition with modern artifacts such as engines and computers, which are also on display.

Now they can learn about farther places too: Polynesia, Africa, pre-Columbian America, all subjects of halls opened recently.

New creatures have also appeared. In the central rotunda, Antrodemus attacks Camptosaurus in a bony ballet. More dinosaurs are on their way. The Cenozoic Hall of Fossil Mammals opened March 20—before completion—so that you can watch the scientists assembling the fossil bones.

To get to the museum, take the Exposition Boulevard exit from the Harbor Freeway to Exposition Park. The museum is open every day except Monday from 10 A.M. to 5 P.M.

Nowhere else does so much water fall so far

Despite some of the tawdriness around it, Niagara Falls is still the grandest thing of its kind. Nowhere else does so much water fall so far.

Niagara is something everyone should try to see once; you can "do" it in one long day. If you're driving east—especially if you pick up a car in Detroit—it is on the shortcut along the north (Canadian) side of Lake Erie between Detroit and Buffalo.

The honkytonk atmosphere, especially in the city of Niagara Falls, Ontario, is depressing. The careful artificial landscaping along the brink of the gorge helps a little, but it can't altogether outweigh the proliferation of tourist-trap exhibits, curio shops, and hot asphalt.

To recapture some of the awe felt by the

From the people who brought you no radiator.

No carburetor.

Inside the left rear fender of every 1968 Volkswagen Fastback and Squareback, there's a small metal box full of transistors, wires and stuff like that.

This box is an electronic computer.

What it computes is exactly how much gas the four fuel injectors ought to shoot into the manifold.

What the whole business does is replace the carburetor.

So you can forget whatever carburetor problems you've had in the past—dirt, flooding, jamming, you name it—because there's no more carburetor. What you get instead is quick, sure starts and efficient engine operation under all conditions.

That's because electronic fuel injection is a whole new way to make car engines run.

The closest thing to it is a $325 optional extra on a car that costs almost twice as much. But electronic fuel injection is standard equipment on Fastbacks at $2,279,* and on Squarebacks at $2,449.*

All of which should make you feel the same way about the carburetor as you do about putting antifreeze and water into the radiator.

You can learn to live without it.

Traveling with small children can be a pleasure . . . if you know how

The problems of traveling by car with toddlers are mostly obvious. They are the reasons some parents don't bother: restlessness, car sickness, interruption of toilet training, safety considerations.

Yet of course many Western families do travel with children by automobile. In response to a query that appeared in the April 1967 issue of Sunset, dozens of readers wrote to tell us what they have learned that makes automobile travel with toddlers easier, safer, and more fun. The most experienced travelers were the first to admit that driving long distances with preschoolers requires patience, understanding, and occasionally heroic feats—such as "singing nursery rhymes from Portland to Spokane."

Our letters indicate that the best young travelers are those who do a lot of it—those who started young and travel often. Perhaps the dean of these young wanderers is Shawn Moore of Los Osos, California. He went along on his first long drive when less than a month old (weight, 5½ pounds). Today, at age 2, he has traveled through 31 states.

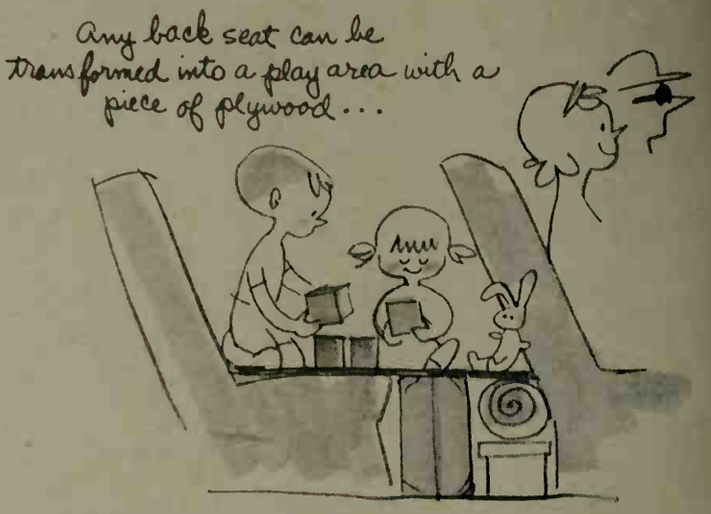
The following ideas from Sunset readers represent various points of view and contain many good suggestions. Some may work for you and your family.

SOME SPACE TO WIGGLE?

Snugly fastened seat belts provide the safest way for children to ride in a car (see page 59). Writes Mrs. O. F. Forsyth of Los Altos, California, "Start them young and they know they are expected to stay in seat belts like adults every time they ride in a car." Mrs. George Duncan, Jr., of Oakland says, "Our boys went directly from car seat to seat belts—they don't know what freedom is."

But many parents report that their youngsters never became reconciled to the confinement of a seat belt, even though it's well worth a try. Most children seem to demand, and perhaps physiologically require, some space to wiggle in, play in, explore—especially one and two-year-olds.

Many parents who wrote us have worked out ways to provide a large, flat surface in the back seat or on the station wagon bed. In certain compact cars, a standard-size crib mattress fits almost perfectly between the seats when the space below is bolstered with luggage.



Any back seat area can be transformed with a piece of plywood cut to fit. The board can be padded with blankets, pillows, or a built-in foam-rubber cushion covered with vinyl (easy to clean) or cloth (more comfortable). Some parents remove the back seat to make a lower, safer play area (with a view for standees only).

Owners of station wagons have lots of space to work with. It can be divided into compartments, or entirely padded for a large play area. Such large, flat areas are comfortable for naps, and mothers become adroit at changing diapers on them.

Extra pillows, blankets, sleeping bags, even laundry placed around the sides protect against bumps.

Attitudes toward infants' car seats vary. Mrs. Louis Falcon, of El Cerrito, California, writes, "Car seats for baby a nitely unsafe in my book. They onl as a launching pad."

There have been many recent in ments in such equipment, howeve

SAFETY INFORMATION:
T.E.V. Princess Patricia, registered in Canada, meets international safety standards for new ships developed in 1960, and meets the 1966 fire safety requirements.

her family travels: "Lunch stop is always followed by nap time. A ritual is made of picking up toys and straightening the area . . . and the little ones are tucked in." A lullaby or short story sets the mood for sleep time. The Nichols family follows this same routine after dinner.

In many areas of the West, vacation driving is hot-weather driving. In Southwest and intermountain desert country, in California's inland valleys, and at times in eastern Oregon and Washington, summer driving can be almost all that parents can bear; and of course it's even worse for small children.

In the absence of an automobile air conditioning system, hot weather driving means supplying plenty of cool drinks. Mrs. Gerald Slavin, an experienced desert traveler from Albuquerque, writes, "We never go long distances without a plastic glass (with lid) for each passenger. Each has his own color. We fill these at point of departure with water, and refill at each stop."

Many families swear by the portable icebox. They get a vending-machine sack of ice in the morning and keep soft drinks, milk, juices, and water chilled.

TO FILL THE TIME

Toys are the most obvious solution for diverting restless children, but the inventiveness of parents can be a great help.

A popular plan is to take along a generous supply of inexpensive toys and surprises to be pulled from the hat at critical periods of restlessness. It's important, also, to have some old favorites at hand, especially the beloved bunny, teddy bear, or blanket.

Here are some variations on the theme:

"We went to a variety store to shop for small items at the toy and candy counters, letting the child select," says Mrs. Robert Williamson, of Anaheim, California. "At home we wrapped each one individually—enough to fill a big shopping bag. On the trip, every half hour the youngster got to select a package to open. We used a timer with a bell. Never a dull moment."

Mrs. C. A. Johnson of Empire, California, writes, "When friends or grandchildren go on car trips lasting a day or more, I give them a Surprise Package. On the outside is a tag telling when or where they are to open it . . . Inside the big package are smaller ones marked with time, mileage, or place, so they will be opened at times spaced far enough apart to provide new interest."

Thomson L. King of Calimesa, California, adds: "The donor must have both imagination and safety awareness. Do's might include puzzles, dolls, small books, simple games. Don'ts should include noisy toys (such as whistles), sharp objects, items that might be swallowed."

Mrs. Beverly Lienhard of South Gate, California, has this suggestion for night drivers: "At night in the back seat y a very small light that allowed th dren to see their books or toys. Th wasn't bright enough to distra driver, or the drivers of other ca was enough to keep the children a and they could hardly wait to l

Mrs. Earl Pollock of Riverside a "My husband got darned tired of n key singing . . . He remarked that I know every Western song written that they all have 97 verses."

Mrs. Pollock also "bought a ball of and tied small toys to the end of s lengths. Original Crush-Proof Pack

Back in 1950 we came up with a great idea for a suitcase.

Shipping cases. For mortar shells.

A combination of materials strong enough to carry (and, obviously, protect) many pounds of high explosives.

We added fiber glass reinforcement. (All over, not just on the corners.) Non-spring locks that wouldn't spring open on impact. And a strong stainless steel frame.

And there we had the American Tourister, the world's first molded suitcase.

The rest is history.

In 1954, a 3800 lb. car overturned, pinning an American Tourister for 10 hours. There were two small broken places on one side, and nothing in the bag got hurt.

In 1961, an American Tourister fell from a car going 70 mph, hit the concrete highway, and skidded 100 feet. There were only a few minor surface scratches.

In 1964, an American Tourister blew off a car going 60 mph and another car ran over it. Some of the outer covering got scuffed.

Maybe awful things like this won't happen to your American Tourister.

Maybe getting thrown into the baggage hold of a plane is all that will happen.

But for a lot of other suitcases, that's more than enough. American Tourister

The train makes a run every 20 mi when the museum is open: 10:30 A.M 5:30 P.M. every day from about the l ning of May through the end of Sep ber or early October.

The outdoor museum has an indoor seum too, a large building that h early-day logging photographs and memorabilia from the days when log was even more hectic and adventu than it is today.

Other exhibits include logging dior and the cross section of a Douglas fir mated to have been over 1,300 years making it the oldest known tree of species in Canada.

The museum park is a fine place for a nic, with tables located in open mea and tree groves.

Everybody wants to turn the crank. classic is a well preserved 1918 Max

Beat the traffic. Come by water.

Say you're shoving off from New York City. Enter the St. Lawrence River from the Lake Champlain-Richelieu River system. Journey westward, past Montréal, and then up the Ottawa River to Canada's beautiful capital. Boaters crossing at Niagara might choose Ontario's 240-mile long Trent waterway. It winds them leisurely up ugh the heart of the province's vacationland to Honey Harbour on Georgian where they'll have about 30,000 islands to play around with. Cruising is a derfully unhurried, air-conditioned way to take in the highlights of central ada, or any part of Canada for that matter. We preside over a third of world's fresh water and much of it is very conveniently nged for the boating enthusiast. Saskatchewan's Prince ert National Park, for example, boasts a remarkable system... hundreds of lakes, some as big as 20 miles ...strung together like pearls and perfect for ting. Every Canadian province is liberally laced cruiseways, and of course British Columbia's Pacific st and the Atlantic provinces' coast routes are naturals. Row your boat across border, tow your boat across the border, but come prepared for water. Bring ething, anything that floats. You and your water wings, for instance.

The bird-watching is very good

On a day last May we saw the following bird species during an excursion through Oregon's remote Malheur Wildlife Refuge: redwing blackbird, yellowhead, Brewer's blackbird, robin, meadowlark, killdeer, magpie, raven, cliff swallow, goldfinch, pheasant, loggerhead shrike, turkey vulture, golden eagle, great horned owl, marsh hawk, mallard, cinnamon teal, blue-winged teal, pintail, coot, baldpate, Wilson's phalarope, black tern, Canada goose, trumpeter swan, and sandhill crane.

We saw some mammals too: cottontails, muskrats, squirrels, and mule deer.

The National wildlife refuge, approximately 32 miles south of Burns in Oregon's magnificently isolated southeastern region, is maintained principally for the protection of migratory waterfowl — but obviously there is more than waterfowl to be seen here.

The best way to begin a tour is to stop by the refuge headquarters 6 miles east of the Narrows (see map). Here you can get a map of the area, a list of local birds, and information on current road conditions both in the refuge and elsewhere in Harney County. At the office is a museum where specimens of most birds that visit or live on the refuge are skillfully mounted and displayed. You can also climb a fire tower for an orienting view of the refuge.

The 181,000-acre refuge is a big piece of real estate, but it is dwarfed in size by the country that surrounds it. This is cattle country. It's big and desolate and beautiful. But if so much rural countryside is too much for you, you ca for Frenchglen, a tiny town on the ern tip of the refuge. A new look at Los Angeles ...as a lively city region

A new book presents the story of this extraordinary place... the early days, the astonishing geography... and L.A. today, the amenities and the action

This month a new book fills a gap that has long needed filling. Until now, no pictorial record has summarized the West's largest and most phenomenal city. The new book that sets forth such an inventory is titled quite simply: Los Angeles.

The subject is the megalopolis of which the City of Los Angeles is the dominant element. A rich Los Angeles literature does, of course, already exist. But as Lawrence Clark Powell points out in his reading list in this book, the vitality of this city-region has always excited writers to take sides, often with extreme reactions pro or con.

The new Sunset book Los Angeles does not take sides, either with the boosters or the debunkers—or with those incredulous visitors from east of the Rockies who put down the place simply as "a phenomenon."

The actuality, as seen from here on the West Coast, is lively enough. Although Los Angeles makes no attempt to describe or to settle the staggering environmental and social problems

It does this by setting things in perspective. And the numbered by immigrant residents and visitors.

One of the surprises of Los Angeles is its revelation of history of this place. The remaining visible traces of it

Place bags on a baking pan and bake in a 325° oven for about 2 hours, or until meat is tender (open one bag to see if done). To keep paper from breaking, transfer bags to dinner plates with a spatula. Serve 1 bag to a person. Serves 6.

A biscuit crust encircles the casserole lid during the final minutes this stuffed roasting chicken is in the oven. For a surprise effect, carry casserole to the table with the crisp bread still sealing the top. Then lift the lid to reveal the beautifully browned bird surrounded by mushrooms, artichoke hearts, and golden onions.

The cooking pot is important here. Select an oven-proof casserole or Dutch oven that is large enough to hold a 5-pound chicken with the lid on tight.

CHICKEN SEALED IN A POT

1 package (6 oz.) long grain and wild rice mix
½ cup golden raisins
About a 5-pound roasting chicken or a 3 to 4-pound broiler-fryer
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ teaspoon each salt and garlic salt
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
8 small boiling onions
¼ pound fresh mushrooms
1 package (8 oz.) frozen artichoke hearts, thawed
⅓ cup dry white wine
2 cups biscuit mix

Cook long grain and wild rice mix in boiling water as directed on the package; remove from heat and stir in raisins. Finely chop the liver from the chicken and sauté in 1 teaspoon of the butter; mix browned liver into rice mixture.

Wash and pat chicken dry; rub with salt, garlic salt, and lemon peel. Spoon rice stuffing inside the body cavity of the chicken and skewer opening shut with a metal or wooden skewer. Tie legs together and rub chicken with 1 tablespoon of the butter. Peel onions and cut a small cross in root end of each. Melt remaining butter in large oven-proof casserole or Dutch oven, and roll onions and mushrooms in it; push to side. Place chicken in casserole and if any stuffing remains, spoon it in.

Roast uncovered in a 425° oven for 25 minutes to brown chicken; reduce temperature to 350° and roast 35 minutes longer. Add thawed artichoke hearts to casserole and pour over wine. Cover and roast 30 minutes longer (or 15 minutes for broiler-fryer). Remove from oven and let sit while preparing biscuit ring.

Prepare biscuit mix according to package directions for plain biscuits. Roll on a lightly floured board into a long rope the length of the circumference of the lid (you can measure it with a tape measure if you don't trust your eye). Lay dough around the edge of the lid, avoiding touching the hot casserole, and pinch ends of dough together. Press the surface of the dough lightly with fingers, making fluted edges. (If your casserole lid opens on the sides instead of the top, it may be necessary to secure dough in place with foil. Fold a long length of foil in half, making a 6-inch-wide strip, and place around biscuit ring; double-fold the ends to secure them.) Continue baking 30 minutes longer.

To serve, place casserole on the table alongside a carving board. Lift bread ring onto the board and place roast chicken in the center. Serves 6 to 8.

the miraculous boat—the boat that looks so top-heavy yet never capsizes, no matter how much she may heel over with the weight of her straining crew, the lopsided burden of her seines, the pressure of the tempest, or the rolling of the sea.

Inevitably, the dory—or at least the dory idea — came West. Skiffs and canoes, easily swamped and slow to respond to oars or paddles, are no match for steep, swift Western streams. Oregon rivermen adapted the seagoing dory's "formula" to small, light craft for the purpose of drift-fishing the white water of the Rogue and McKenzie rivers. Ultimately the boat was to prove its worth in the rapids of the Grand Canyon. And in many ways, pressed with their performance in Oregon, we decided to try two slightly oversize, decked-over McKenzie dories on the 312-mile run through the Grand Canyon. Fleet and responsive as no other Grand Canyon craft had ever been, they came through with flying colors, surprising seasoned rivermen and—with their singular capacity for precise maneuvering—making a sporting proposition out of the thundering rapids that formerly had been overcome mainly by brawn, luck, or the use of heavy "cataract" boats, excesses of horsepower, or great river-blanketing rafts made of huge inflated bridge pontoons lashed together, side by side.

Great for fishing and wilderness camping, dories nevertheless are not suitable for some things you might require of a boat. Although they are planing, in a sense, whenever they are moving on the water, they will not get up and plane safely at high speeds no matter how much power you apply; they are too narrow in the stern for that. So you won't be using a dory to tow water-skiers.

OWNING A DORY

Most dories are made of Douglas fir marine plywood, spruce or cedar for ribs, and—where hardwood is needed—red oak and Philippine mahogany. If you are reasonably good at carpentry, you can inspect a dory, take measurements, and build a boat of your own. That is the only way we know to construct a dory from scratch, for no plans are available.

Much easier and surer of success is the assembly of a dory from a kit. There is now a manufacturer offering a set of preformed parts (see next column).

Buying a dory is mainly a matter of selecting the size you want and then getting in touch with a builder; most dories are sold by the people who make them.

For white-water use, a 12-footer is on the small side; a boat 14 to 15 feet long is "normal," and anything over 16 feet is considered oversize.

Here is a list of the dory-makers we have located, with some indication of the kinds of boats they build. You can have a dory shipped to you by freight, or you can tow it home on a trailer furnished by the builder or purchased beforehand ($175 and up); usually a little carpentry is required to adapt a factory-made boat trailer to the flat bottom of a dory, but a few bolts and some scraps of plywood will do the trick. Oars, which should be 8½ or 9 feet long, cost about $11 a pair.

Here is how standard-size plywood sheet is cut to make both sides of McKenzie dory. Heavier sheet is used for bottom

Boat Specialties, Inc., 1025 Shady Lane N. E., Salem, Ore. This company makes plywood boats in several styles and sizes. The "Rogue River Model" is what we would call a McKenzie dory or drift boat; the "McKenzie River Model" has ordinary rowboat lines and is rowed with the oarsman facing the stern. The dories come in 12, 14, and 16-foot lengths, with weights of 120, 140, and 160 pounds. Without paint and a few options, they are priced at $165, $195, and $225. Ready to go, with paint and accessories (some are superfluous), a 14-footer comes to $345. Write for a brochure, or call (503) 581-2755.

Kaarhus Craft Shop, 1366 Moss St., Eugene, Ore.; telephone (503) 345-4441. This is the only manufacturer offering a choice between assembled boats and kits of precut parts that you can assemble yourself. Kits for 12 and 14-foot dories cost $165; assembled boats, unpainted, are $265. A 16-foot boat kit costs $185; the complete boat is $300.

Willard Lucas, 850 Snell Ave., Eugene, Ore.; telephone (503) 343-3127. Mr. Lucas builds classic McKenzie dories, similar to the one shown being built on these pages. A 15-foot boat, without paint but with hardwood strips to protect the bottom, sells for $300.

Pacific City Boat Works, Pacific City, Ore., makes large power boats, square-sterned but otherwise resembling dories. They are primarily for use in the ocean.

Plant Boat Builders, 440 Potrero Ave., San Francisco; telephone (415) MA 6-2070. We include this company because its product, though not a dory by our definition, is called the Hunky-Dory. Described by its builder as a dory-skiff, this is a graceful skiff that can be rowed or sailed. It is not a rough-water boat.

Bob Pritchett, 4522 Upper River Rd., Grants Pass, Ore.; telephone (503) 476-3838. Mr. Pritchett is a fishing guide who builds his own 16-foot dories, uses them for a few seasons, and then sells them complete for $300 to $350.

Rogue River Boat Shop, 764 S. E. Seventh St., Grants Pass, Ore.; telephone (503) 476-2941. Dories in two lengths—15 and 16½ feet—sell for $395 to $495, completely finished and unique in that they are fiberglassed inside and out.

W. D. Schack Co., 3502 S. Greenville St., Santa Ana, Calif.; telephone (714) 549-2277. This builder's dories are not of plywood but of molded fiberglass, at $310 for the complete 15-foot "New England" model and $650 for the 20-foot "Lifeguard."

Keith Steele, Leaburg, Oregon; telephone (503) 896-3508. Products include 15-foot double-enders and "utility" dories (with outboard motor transom, as shown at right), for $290 to $340 (depending on optional equipment) unpainted, or $380 painted and ready for the water. If you expect to encounter high waves and want to keep them out, you can order sides 2 to 4 inches higher than standard.

Glen Waaldridge, 913 S. W. "H" St., Grants Pass, Ore. The pioneer of Rogue River white-water running is presently turning out few plywood dories but is tooling up for a revolutionary 16-foot dory of aluminum. The price has not been set. Write him for details.

Steam railroading hasn't yet disappeared from the West. True, the big diesels have crowded steamers off the major lines, but the little "puffer-bellies" have found sanctuary on the short-haul excursion tracks where the chief attraction is not just a train ride but a ride behind a steam locomotive.

You can hear the high, hoarse whistle of these surviving steamers in some of our amusement parks and city zoos, and here and there you'll find steam train excursions as a roadside attraction. Some of these trains are made up of historic old engines and coaches resurrected from railroad graveyards. Others are lovingly constructed, scaled-down replicas of famous trains that rolled across the early West.

On these two pages we show you all the Western railroads prepared to give you a ride behind steam this year.

For your information as a train watcher: Steam locomotives are classified according to wheel arrangement. A 2-wheel truck forward, 8 driving wheels, and 2 trailing wheels identify a 2-8-2 or Mikado-type locomotive like the California Western's "Super Skunk." If one of the standard wheel components is missing, a zero is used: The Portland Zoo's 4-4-0, for example, has no trailing wheels.

The letter T at the end of a classification, as in the Roaring Camp & Big Trees' 0-4-2 T, identifies engine as a "tank locomotive" that carries its water supply fitted around the boiler.

Geared steam locomotives are not classified according to wheel arrangement. A Shay locomotive features an off-center boiler with cylinders (usually four) mounted on one side. The vertical cylinders turn an exposed shaft that drives the wheels. The Heisler's cylinders (usually two) are mounted in a V at the front of the boiler. Geared engines were used most frequently on logging railroads.

The best petunias? Growers give

It's hard to imagine a really colorful summer garden without a bold swath of petunias. Whether you plant masses of them in borders or feature them in raised patio beds or containers, they almost invariably turn out to be the most spectacular flowers in the garden.

In most parts of the West you can plant petunias now. In California, except the coldest sections, the planting season started in late March and early April and extends into midsummer. Southern Californians can plant again in fall for winter and spring bloom. Planting time in the intermountain region and in the Northwest begins in May and continues until late June. In intermediate and low desert areas, fall and early winter months are the best for petunia planting.

The popularity of petunias has increased steadily since the introduction of the superior, hand-pollinated (F_1) hybrids some 25 years ago; today they're the favorite summer annuals. The F_1 hybrids, which account for about 90 per cent of the petunia plants and seeds sold each year, have these distinct advantages over most of the older, open-pollinated strains and varieties: improved flower types in a much wider range of colors and shades, increased flower production, greater vigor, more uniform plant size, and greater disease resistance.

The F_1 hybrid varieties fall into two classes, the Grandifloras and the Multifloras. Each class includes both single and double-flowered forms. Examples of all of these are pictured above.

The most obvious difference between Grandifloras and Multifloras is flower size. Grandifloras have larger flowers up to 5 inches across; flowers of the Multifloras are seldom more than 2½ inches across. In addition to being much larger, the flowers of the Grandifloras have petal segments either beautifully ruffled or delicately frilled.

Most popular are the single Grandifloras. They make a very creditable sh whether in small groups or mass pla in the Southwest desert regions—the only poisonous snake is the Pacific rattler shown above. In the desert country there are many other species of rattlesnakes, all with characteristic wide heads, thin necks, and fatter bodies. Both rattlesnakes and harmless snakes are extremely useful, for they eat quantities of pests.

The big, powerful gopher snakes (Pituophis) like dry fields, where they catch mice and other small rodents. They often sun themselves on dusty roadsides.

Garter snakes (Thamnophis) like ponds and streams, where they catch fish and frogs. They smell terrible when you catch them, but the odor goes away. They're nervous and may bite.

King snakes (Lampropeltis)—very docile and beautifully marked—like dry country but often hunt mice in barns. They also eat lizards and snakes, including rattlers. The one in the picture, and the two snakes discussed below, were photographed at Steinhart Aquarium, California Academy of Sciences, San Francisco.

The rubber boa (Charina bottae) is a timid little forest dweller. You can find him under bark and leaves where he hunts for lizards and small mice.

The Pacific rattler (Crotalus viridis oreganus) likes the woods. His markings successfully copy fallen leaves and the shadows of branches. Although docile and hard to irritate, he is deadly if you bother him, and can deliver his bite a foot or two away without coiling first.

gardens of Japan are a rich and seemingly endless source of s for Western gardeners.

March, 1958, Sunset published 14 pages of landscape ideas Japan. Most of the details were photographed in Japanese ly gardens, many of which were planned by their owners. now, a little over 10 years later, we offer this six-page illustrated by the same photographer, Tatsuo Ishimoto, sted on this second assignment by his wife, Kiyoko.

ing their six-week visit to Japan in May and June, 1967, Ishimotos photographed gardens in Tokyo and Kyoto on main island of Honshu, and also in cities on the islands of ishu, Hokkaido, and Shikoku. They spent most of their

THE GARDEN AS MIRROR TO THE MAN

We hear so much about the symbolism, tradition, and to nature expressed in Japanese gardens that we ar overlook certain other aspects that reveal a good de Japanese gardens and gardeners.

In addition to his sensitive feeling for nature, the gardener is practical and frugal—in the simple, comm way he supports a tree branch with peeled post and uses natural, home-grown materials such as bamboo fo screen or vine support, or for retaining a small islan play to a sense of humor and whimsy—best illustrated, perhaps, by the zigzag bridge. (No doubt the Japanese will tell you that its purpose is quite serious: to make you walk slowly and stop now and then to look at the beauty around you.)

IDEAS WE CAN BORROW

Some of the most appealing ideas in Japanese gardens are clearly not for us because of the amount of maintenance they require. A classic example is the sand garden, which must be kept clean and freshly raked at all times, and should be fairly large to be effective. Still, the sand garden has taught us a great deal about the value of uncluttered space, and many Western gardeners have successfully adapted this idea with gravel, crushed granite, and similar materials.

Unquestionably, the way Japanese gardeners use and train plants has had a strong and very beneficial influence on Western gardens. Perhaps you could borrow or adapt some of the more important principles they follow to bring Oriental simplicity, unity, and feeling of repose to your own garden:

Use evergreen plants for the basic structure.

Limit planting to two or three kinds of plants, or even to a single plant, carefully placed, perhaps against a rock.

Choose plants for their beauty of structure or foliage as much as for their flowers.

Do not plant annuals in your main garden.

Keep plants groomed and pruned to scale at all times.

For a look at how Japanese features have been adapted to Western gardens, see Sunset's recently published Ideas for Japanese Gardens (Lane Books, Menlo Park, Calif., 1968; $2.95).

Step by step they've been remodeling. Now they are four-fifths done

In this remodel there was no attempt to retain any of the character of the existing house, a stucco bungalow built in the 1920's. In fact, every effort was made to alter its appearance and to make it blend more naturally with its woodland setting. Another goal was to create a better indoor-outdoor relationship: the small high-sill windows had only limited views into the woods and kept out the light and warmth of the low winter sun.

The master plan for the remodeling, drawn up in 1963, divided it into five phases. Four have already been completed.

The first phase (completed in 1963) called for landscaping and repaving of the back garden and terrace. The second (in 1964) was the updating of the kitchen—new equipment, countertops, sink. The third phase (in 1965) required the greatest amount of alteration. It involved adding an entry hall, extending the living room on two sides (see plan), and replacing the bedroom bay. The extensions gained only 170 square feet of space, but it was highly usable space. Also since 1965 the owners have completed a new entry walk, bench, and retaining walls.

A new carport is to be added this year. And the final phase—adding on two bedrooms and converting an existing bedroom to a second bath—will follow next year. (By that time the children will appreciate separate bedrooms.)

The architect and owner is Barry G. Smith, of Hayes and Smith, San Francisco. The house is in Mill Valley, California.

Here's help in the shower . . . a new kind of siding . . . a new sliding wall . . . and how to keep batteries charged

The soap's in easy reach

In a combined bathtub and shower, the soap dish is often down around your calves, and putting the soap back when your eyes are full of lather can be a trial.

The special unit in the photograph above solves the problem and then some. You can attach it to any kind of wall. It holds the soap, a bottle of shampoo, and a wash cloth, and it serves as a grab bar, all at just the right height for showering. The unit costs about $8 and is easy to install yourself.

Mineral-surfaced plywood siding

Plywood siding with an aggregate finish, now available, requires no upkeep once installed. It is initially more expensive than conventional wooden sidings, but costs less than the masonry or stone that it resembles in appearance and durability.

The aggregate surface of the plywood is bound with epoxy and applied in a two-step process. There is a range of colors both of the epoxy base and aggregates, and a choice of aggregate size. The appearance, once installed, is rather formal, and the material lends itself to a house with straight, simple lines. Wooden accents set off the mineral surface well; for this reason the material is often installed with battens covering the joints.

Cost to a builder is about 70 cents a square foot; installation is somewhat more difficult than installation of ordinary wooden siding.

Standing up to a shower

With a bathtub-shower combination, it's safest to have a non-slip surface on the bottom of the tub. For a tub that's already installed, you have a choice of stick-on strips or suction mats.

If you're putting in a new tub, you might look at those with a non-slip pattern in the enamel of the tub bottom. At least two major manufacturers produce tubs with bottoms covered by slightly roughened circles or squares. The speci face is included in the normal price tubs. The roughness is not enou bother you when you take a tub bat is enough to keep you firmly on yo through a shower.

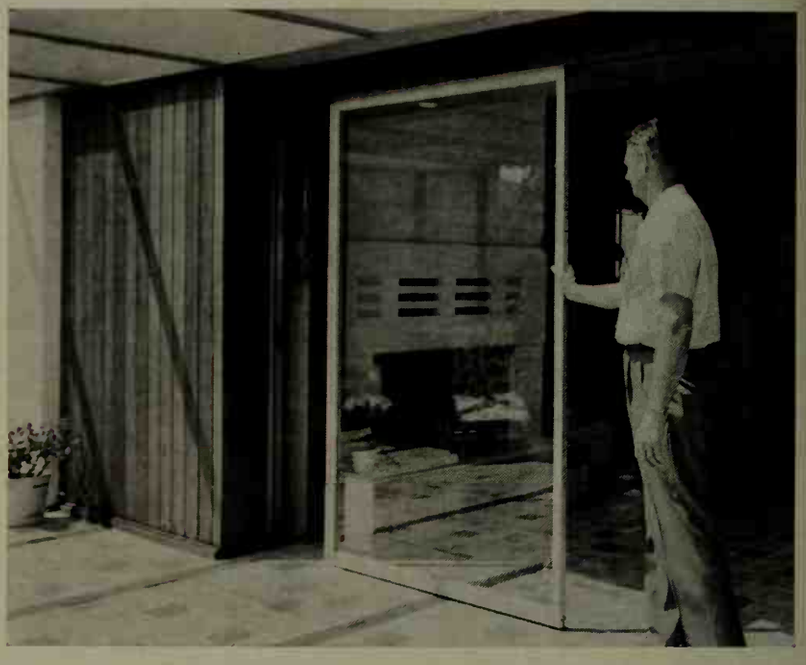
The D-size flashlight batteries are $3.95 a pair, C-size about $3.15, pe about $3.50. The charger is about $



A sliding wall of glass that stacks up on itself

If you've ever thought that you'd like to push back a whole wall that separates you from a summer garden or a delightful view, you'll be interested in the new multiple-panel sliding doors now available on special order.

With these doors, you can open up any width of wall from 12 to 48 feet. Individual panels of the doors slide, one beside the other, into a storage hangar at the end of the line; it is only a little deeper than the width of a single panel and only a little wider than the combined thickness of all the panels. When all the panels are extended, the last door out operates regular sliding door so that you can and out without opening the whole t

The doors can be installed with an ele motor for automatic opening and clo There are both floor track and suspe models. With the suspended doors, i vidual panels move to their position inch off the floor, then drop down. T you can have an unbroken floor sur from your room to terrace or deck.

Cost runs about $200 to $600 for h ware, plus about $70 per panel; ins lation is extra.

ace was relocated, now has exterior . The space gained is in the bathroom

Two things definitely needed to be replaced in this house: the tub in this bathroom, and the furnace, located in a room alongside the bath.

Moreover, the 17-year-old bathroom was showing its age; and it was ineffieient in that it was used mainly by two young daughters who often wanted it at the same time. Since the furnace room alongside had considerable unused floor space, the owner decided to undertake a complete remodeling of the bathroom while replaeing the tub and furnace.

Designer Tom Sanford relocated the furnace (this cost little extra since the old unit was being replaced). He gave it a convenient aeeess door on the exterior of the house, and moved the wall separating it from the bathroom.

With the floor space thus gained, and by moving the toilet next to the new bathtub, he was able to transform the drab room into a handsome, two-compartment bathroom with two access doors to the hallway and a sliding pocket door between compartments. There are two lavatories for the girls, ample storage cabinets underneath the counter, and a large linen closet on the wall alongside.

Cost of the remodeling, including all new bathroom fixtures and the new furnace, was approximately $2,700. A bid on simply replacing the furnace and the bathtub was $1,000.

A BEAUTIFUL NEW Sunset BOOK

Los Angeles is one of the most interesting cities in the world. Not only is it the largest geographically, and second in population in the U.S., but the outstanding vitality and imagination of its citizens have created a dynamic, vital, and important new "city on the move"... a city that has made itself worthy of the pride of every Westerner.

Now here is a pictorial appreciation of all of the things that make this city great — a lavish, photo-filled volume bringing you the many varied characteristics that make this a fast-moving, fascinating area.

The first true portrait of Los Angeles

In a breathtaking collection of more than 400 beautifully reproduced pictures as well as information-filled captions and text, this large volume brings you, for the first time, full knowledge and appreciation of the vast, spectacular Los Angeles area.

The story of Los Angeles The first section tells the story of the city's past — from its first days to the present — with a wealth of old prints, maps, drawings, and photos. This narrative reveals a surprising, rich heritage that will add greatly to your understanding of Los Angeles and America's West.

The city today The second part — the major one — is a pictorial presentation of the greatness of modern Los Angeles. Here are hundreds of photographs that show this area's developments in the fields of culture, recreation, business, industry, everyday living, entertainment, travel, and urban development. It presents an encompassing view of the city from every standpoint, through the eyes of expert photographers whose work has been reproduced in large scale.

The facts A large appendix offers a world of factual information. A two-page map is keyed to a directory listing the historical features, museums, parks, gardens, sports arenas, places of entertainment, colleges, and other area attractions. A big glossary explains the regional Spanish names, and a history chronology presents a concise listing of past events which have helped shape today's city — both written by W. W. Robinson, prominent Southwest historian. A useful Los Angeles reading list has been compiled by Lawrence Clark Powell, well-known West Coast book authority.

Closed, closet hides sewing clutter from family-dining room

This small sewing closet takes up very little space, yet offers several advantages of a full-scale room. It's actually just some shelf space and two thick doors.

When Dr. and Mrs. John S. Dunn of Santa Rosa, California, remodeled their house, Mrs. Dunn wanted a sewing area in the main part of the house that would be small enough that she could close it up quickly.

Architects Duncombe-Roland-Miller designed the space you see here, facing it into a remodeled family room - dining room. They got maximum utility from the 10½-inch-thick doors: One accommodates fold-down work table and a storage bin for current work, and the other provides open storage by means of a perforated hardboard liner. At the rear are shelves for the sewing machine, supplies and equipment, materials, and patterns. When the doors (on piano hinges) are fully open, the closet becomes part of the family room-dining room, and can take advantage of the windows and the warmth and cheer of the family room fireplace.

JACK LONDON SLEPT HERE.

So can you. Oakland's waterfront was Jack London's home back in 1905. The bar he haunted is still standing, still serving. But we've made a few additions on Jack London Square and throughout the city. We've added new hotels, motels, and even boatels. New restaurants and new places to enjoy a night on the town.

But Oakland has more than a waterfront to entertain you. We have 17,000 acres of hilltop parks where you can rent a horse, a bicycle, or even walk — through groves of virgin redwoods. You can fish for trout within the city's limits (we'll provide the poles). You can see major league baseball, major league football, major league basketball, hockey and soccer. Our world-famous symphony has an eight month season, and sailing on Lake Merritt is always in season.

Whenever you come to Oakland, better plan to stay the night. For all the details, mail the coupon.

Whimsical pincushions in the guises of (left to right) a mouse, a lion, and an ow

Gift pincushions . . . in burlap

Made of burlap and decorated with yarn and felt, these simple pincushions would make good stocking stuffers, package tie-ons, or small gifts.

In addition to the burlap, you'll need bits of felt and yarn, and cotton or shredded foam for stuffing.

The basic shape of each pincushion is a chopped-off triangle. Cut out burlap pieces 6 inches wide at the base, 3 inches wide at the top, and with 7-inch sides. Then, for each one, cut a backing of felt 5 inches across the bottom and 2 inches across the top, with 6-inch sides. Machine stitch each burlap piece around all four sides, ½ inch in from edge. With a straight pin, unravel the edges up to the stitching line.

Then create the faces with bits of felt and yarn, using simple embroidery stitches. Anne Dougal, of Del Mar, California, who designed the ones shown, used a couching stitch for most detailing. The mouse ha French knot eyes, felt ears, and cheek of bright rounds of felt appliquéd in plac with yarn in a simple overstitch fro edge of circle to center. The lion ha similar eyes and cheeks, a felt forehead and a yarn ruff (use a tassel stitch or Swedish rug stitch, or make yarn knot by hand using a double thread). The ow has felt eyes and a felt beak; yarn wa used in a featherstitch for the wings.

When you've completed the face, sew o the felt backing by hand (to avoid stitch ing through the features) but leave th bottom edge open. Then stuff the pincush ion with cotton or foam and close th opening. To complete the mouse or lion attach a 5-inch tail of braided yarn o braided burlap strands.

To hang the pincushions, make a loop a the top with a burlap thread. Add colored pins for decoration.

The Bolex 155 Macrozoom can make cranberries look like apples.

You can get within one inch of a cranberry, or anything else you're shooting, and still be able to focus. With any other regular or Super 8 camera, the very closest you can get is about four feet. Any closer and you'll be out of focus.

The extraordinary Bolex Macrozoom 8.5 to 30mm f/1.9 lens has the widest focusing range ever built into a zoom lens. That's what led us to invent the Multitrix, an incredibly versatile titling device.

Because of the unique focusing range, the Multitrix makes it possible to shoot your own movie titles, as well as incorporating slides and post cards into your footage. And with the Multitrix you can do professional looking superimpositions while you're shooting, as well as special trick photographic effects, using the focusing mechanism to make dissolves.

We're not knocking other Super 8 cameras for shooting cranberries that just look like cranberries. But the Bolex 155, with Multitrix (no extra charge), can make your home movies unique! Swim ladder made of anodized alum is removable for storage, costs abou

This boat dock is factory-made. Built with wood decking and extruded styrene foam flotation, it was delivered and installed complete with non-skid ramp, concrete shore pad, galvanized cleats, butyl bumper strip, and ⅜-inch galvanized supporting cables for $650. A swim ladder and installation of two dock lights brought the total cost of the 20-foot-long dock to about $750.

Owners are the Roy Mitchells, of Foster City, California.

You can order other prefabricated docks to fit your needs. Lengths range from 15 to 100 feet; shapes include the standard rectangular dock shown above, finger docks, seawall docks, and swimming floats with attached anchor. You have your choice of three wood types, varying in price: unpainted Douglas fir, stained Douglas fir, and Port Orford and Alaska cedars. The same wood specified for the dock is used in the ramp. The ramp is hinged to both dock and the shore pad so that the dock can rise and fall with changes in the water level.

If you want to economize more, buy a prefabricated dock and install it yourself; or, if you want to build the dock yourself, buy the materials from the manufacturer and he will then supply free plans.

Most silent projectors come with a built-in sound track.

The Bolex 18-5 is a silent projector that's really silent. No mmmmmmmm, zzzzzzzzzz, or iiiiiiiii. So you won't get laryngitis from trying to shout over it. The 18-5 projector sounds something like a cricket from a mile off.

That means you can tell your wife it's Tacoma and not Grand Rapids you're looking at, in a calm livingroom voice.

It means a guest can ask for a glass of water without sounding mad.

But it also means you can't ignore the pleas for an intermission or a halt by pretending that you didn't hear.

The Bolex 18-5 Super 8 silent projector is the most silent silent projector you can buy. If it weren't for the pictures you might not even notice it was on.

Just like the big house

This dollhouse was copied from an old family home built in 1915 at the corner of Beretania and Alexander streets in Honolulu. The house no longer stands; it was torn down early last year. But it survives, for the great-grandchildren and their friends, in this smaller form. Over the 50 years that the dollhouse has been passed around in the family to daughters of appropriate age, it has been added onto and remodeled to a closer and closer replica of the original house.

The dollhouse is built in three sections—roof, main body, and platform. The sides are hinged and open wide to place furniture and for play. French doors open to the porches in front and there are s windows in back. The house is 3 by 4 feet high; the platform is 14 inches The porches extend out 10 inches.

Although you may not have an old f home to copy, there are probably fine, old houses right in your own that could be scaled down to doll proportions. If the best have already razed, they were undoubtedly p graphed at one time and pictures a file with historical societies or your historian. Naturally you'll have to some liberties with the construction i you're a master craftsman and wa exact replica.

The Sony 700-U TV:
A little more screen, a little less money.

There's a lot to be said for any Sony but today we'd like to say something about our 700-U model.

For one, its screen measured diagonally is 2 inches bigger than the Sony 500-U, but it costs $20.00 less.*

A remarkable little value.

Also, the Sony 700-U weighs less than either the Sony 900-U or the Sony 500-U; all the more reason to own one.

However, to be perfectly honest it won't fit in the same small spaces as the Sony 500-U.

(The Sony 500-U is only 5⅝" high.)

And you can't show the Sony 700-U to a whole roomful like you can with our 900-U model.

All three sets, of course, come with the sunglass picture screen for outdoor viewing.

And all three operate on either house current or rechargeable battery.

Which size Sony is right for you?

We make the sets. You make the decisions.

Pool water is circulated through five-jet fountain of ceramic daisies on metal form

The Kleins' lively garden walls

To enliven some large expanses of masonry wall in the Alfred Klein garden, Los Angeles, landscape architects Jocelyn Domela Associates designed a special fountain and a display of metal figures. Both become even more striking at night because of the way they are set out from the wall and are lighted to cast strong shadows.

Mounted on a metal panel attached to the wall, the fountain consists of daisies by ceramist Raul Coronel. The five larger flowers contain the fountain nozzles. Water falls to a small pool, which contains a light to illuminate the fountain from below, and a recirculating pump.

On another wall, metal silhouettes (from Argentina) are set out 4 inches from the wall and are side-lit.

Closing off an open kitchen

A problem in this open-plan California home was that the kitchen had a wide, open doorway that led directly into the dining room. No form of closure was provided to screen the view of normal mealtime clutter in the kitchen when family and guests sat down at the dining table.

There was no room for hinged doors, so Mrs. Frank E. Taylor designed this simple, low-cost sliding door. It is unobtrusive either open or closed, and is left open most of the time.

Mrs. Taylor, a designer of jewelry, likes to work with wood and woodworking tools; and she did this remodeling entirely herself.

She first extended the short, freestanding cabinet wall at the end of the bookcase shown with ¾-inch plywood panels, so it would be in line with a short floor-to-ceiling partition wall at the rear of the kitchen. Then she trimmed the top of the addition and spanned the space ac the top of the doorway with 2 by 6 wood, matching the top of the book On the dining-room side, ½ by 2- redwood trim serves as a valance b to hide the sliding-door hardware — steel sliding-door track and nylon-whe brackets commonly used for closet d The track is screwed to the undersid the 2 by 6 redwood trim.

The door itself is simply a piece of inch plywood, 45 inches wide, 77 in high. Because it hangs free outside enlarged freestanding bookcase cabine can warp slightly (as sometimes happ without causing any problems.

Door and paneling are painted. The usual handle on the door is a short len of ¾-inch copper water pipe, smoot and polished; one end is flattened bent slightly and secured to the d with brass screws.

How do you get yourself a cabin?

Sunset readers share and tell . . . where they looked, what they found you get yourself a cabin?

October 1966 issue of Sunset, we readers who have already taken p to tell us how they did it, along y advice they might offer to others inking about it. This article is n their reports—on a cabin, vaca- ome, weekend place, or whatever ll their retreat-away-from-home.

of our correspondents spoke with about their experiences. One said s tempted to begin her letter, "Dear ," because "we have found at the ention of a vacation home or home u open a door to a wealth of friend- and personal interest."

ority indicated that love of the out- was partly responsible.

roup sees a cabin as a way to enjoy tdoor life without sacrificing com- of home. The other strongly prefers ay-from-it-all camping, but will ac- cabin to regain some of the privacy hard to find in many camping situ- these days. ("Our older ones do re for 'busy' campgrounds, as we always encouraged them to hike us in the wilderness, and they have to prefer this way of life.") family found even more compelling s for avoiding the camping crowds. family of eight runs from 4 years to e had tried camping but found that k too much equipment for our sta- wagon to carry. Also at overcrowded grounds we were told to come sday to be able to get a spot. My nd works Fridays and Saturdays."

ement. Other reasons for cabin hunt- ncluded an urge to plan ahead for ment ("We began looking in 1939, ng for a place to retire"), and just act that friends were doing it. ("My ly loves the woods, but we did not a weekend retreat in mind at all; it to us through a discovery some ds had made. When we drove to see what they had found, we fell in love with the area and arranged for leasing.")

Fond childhood memories influenced a few: "My husband grew up in Chicago and remembers going to the same rental cabin at the same Michigan lake year after year. I was raised in South Pasadena and I didn't much care if we went to Catalina, Newport, or Balboa, just so I could swim all day and dance all night."

Only one family specifically mentioned health. "Our daughters had been having respiratory problems each spring. Whenever they would catch a cold, the cough would last until summer, unless we spent several days inland with them."

Winter sports. Some, especially in California, thought of a cabin especially in terms of ski weekends. "Our interest centered on skiing in the Tahoe area."

And some reported that their yen for a cabin developed gradually. "About 15 years ago we began to go to various places on vacations and weekend trips. We did not really look at these with an eye to buying a cabin. After covering California pretty well in five years' time, we began to note that every time we went on a spur-of-the-moment trip we headed for the desert area of Palm Springs, Yucca Valley, and Twentynine Palms."

Frequently there was a combination of reasons. "We had thought about buying a cabin in the mountains for many years, but decided not to spend the money—until finally the smog and fast pace of suburban living got to us. Then we decided in earnest to buy a retreat that we could enjoy and also that would be an investment."

YOUR REQUIREMENTS

A most important factor was distance from home. A cabin within one hour's drive from home had major appeal (and appeared most attainable to those in the Northwest). But many were willing to settle for "a reasonable drive," with the upper limit interpreted usually as about 3 hours. But one reader with a cabin near Klamath Falls, Oregon, wrote:

"True, we can't spend every weekend there, but we leave our home in the San Fernando Valley at 6 A.M. and we are always at our cabin by 8 P.M. It is 742 miles. When we get there it is so relaxing."

Neighborliness vs. isolation. Some people frankly sought cabin subdivisions. "We decided to really look into the new developments (with beach rights) that are cropping up all over the Northwest." Others were just as firm about wanting to avoid them. "We established the following rather rigid requirements: (1) The property should not be part of a 'development.' (2) It must be semi-isolated and as primitive as possible. (3) There should be no regulations against latrines or tents. (4) It must be salt-water beach property. (5) It must cost less than $5,000."

One gave another reason for wanting isolation. "Our last requirement was that our vacation home not be easily accessible to constant 'drop-in', uninvited weekend guests — we remembered how they presented endless problems for our parents."

Some set pretty stiff requirements, and in many cases reported that a combination of optimism and persistence paid off. "In typical dreamer fashion we envisioned a rustic log cabin isolated from all civilization among tall pine trees with a fishing stream running by, all this within 2 hours' drive of Los Angeles at a total purchase price of not more than $4,000." (They found almost this for $3,000.)

One single woman had an unusual incentive for acquiring a cabin. She specialized in doing contract work on temporary assignment, and was moving a whole household of furnishings several times a year. "A friend of mine suggested that I make my permanent home in a resort area and my temporary home a room somewhere near my temporary jobs. It figured. So I moved 7,000 feet up into the San Bernardino National Forest and began to look for a mountain cabin."

Many tried to balance up desires, needs, and financial resources pretty carefully. Perhaps you can find some parallels with your own situation in one of these:

Beach development. "We wanted a large lot; privacy; no community clubhouse, swimming pool, or posh appointments; lights and water available, should we need them; the security of a few permanent residents to look after our things."

Country place. "Either a lot, a cabin, or a small older house with about an acre of land for privacy, away from the main highways and congested areas yet close enough to be able to reach civilization in a reasonable length of time, under $10,000 if possible, and close enough to Oakland for year-round weekend use."

Pine trees. "We drew concentric circles on a map 1, 2, and 3 hours' drive from Phoenix. Our prime requisite was a fairly short drive into cool country, which meant pine trees to us. We needed water and electricity (paramount for easier building). We wanted private, not lease, land."

Mountain cabin. "I had the following requirements in mind: (1) within 3 hours' drive of home in Los Angeles; (2) adequate room for a growing family (three pre-schoolers and another one on the way); (3) suitable for year-round use, including accessibility during periods of heavy snow; (4) near a lake or stream; (5) less than $8,500; (6) deeded property (not a Forest Service lease); (7) reasonably close to stores, doctors, etc."

THE SEARCH

When you have made up your mind to look, and have the requirements in mind, where do you begin looking? It doesn't make much difference, provided that you switch your tactics when they don't seem to be paying off.

"Our first step was to purchase the Sunset book Cabins and Vacation Houses . . . we followed its advice and developed a list of requirements . . . We set out for Big Bear, Lake Arrowhead, and surrounding locations . . . During this time my husband mentioned at his office that we were looking for mountain property." (This mention produced a winning lead.)

The newspapers. Newspaper advertisements, of course, offer a convenient starting point. "The classified sections of the local newspaper for Waterfront, Vacation, Island, Farm & Ranch were our main leads. They gave a good education in price ranges, realtors, areas of 'land booms' (we avoided these areas)." Other papers besides daily papers many contain leads, too. A couple in Portland found property through an ad in a labor paper. A family in Seattle did so "through the vacation property listing in the small weekly sales paper that's left at the door."

Real estate firms. Sooner or later in their search, most people consult real estate agents. One man let several in the area know his requirements, then spent six straight weekends looking at what they showed him. "Although I considered this a tremendous waste of time, it was useful in two respects. By seeing a large number of properties I obtained a good idea as to the going prices. I was able to see cabins that ranged from a shell to completely finished, and thus got some idea of the work required to shape up a cabin."

In dealing with real estate agents, if you'd rather not play the whole field you can be more selective. "I decided I would like a beach cabin in Laguna. Undecided as to whether I would rent or buy, one weekend I went down to see a very highly recommended realtor." Another searcher said, "I shopped for a realtor as for the cabin and found some more than willing to give helpfu on location, weather, etc."

One of our correspondents said sh for property for about three yea she came across two firms that sp in country property and have a wide network of offices. "I wrote and they sent me a form card tha me exactly what I wanted in wha how much I had to spend, and intended to do with it (retiremen ness, etc.). After that is was si matter of sitting back and read folders—with photographs—an looking in person."

All-season research. Even with t and most expert of help, you sel all the answers you want witho sonal investigation of some kind. C Jose family did their preliminary with unusual thoroughness. "Abo years ago we found what we b would be our ideal location—a love in the Sierra . . . During the spring first year we rented a house in th . . . Through the summer mont stayed at different motels in th noting how many people came an the types of people, the shopping ties, the recreation available . . .

"We rented another house late in C for a week . . . At Christmastime w another house for a week in order the landscape laden with snow, a what difficulties or pleasures it pre . . . Dividing our vacation throug year into four separate vacations, came aware of the problems and ple of four seasons. A person could c same thing on weekend trips."

Change-as-you-go. There is no doub requirements are apt to change a search goes on. One of the best d strations of this process was report a family from San Francisco.

"Finding the right place for us took years. We wanted a place in the co and our only fixed requirement wa locale—southern Sonoma County.

"The classified section of the San cisco papers was our starting plac went from Country Property ads t farm catalogs; then to the Santa Press Democrat and real estate ag in that area . . .

"As our car crawled up a horrendou road, we realized how difficult it w be to get out in a fire. So our secon quirement was 'on a good road.'

"Looking at two parched, barren we decided we'd have to have tree a creek. And seeing a winter creek in mer, we added 'live' to our cree flooded cabin on a creek-bend mac amend 'live creek' to 'spring-fed, creek.' Finally, vandalized cabins an difference in size of property taxes

e pitched a Coleman Tent side the drenching Pacific surf.

To make sure you'll stay dry in your Coleman.

Crashing waves. Salty spray. Blustery winds. Brutal conditions you'll probably never have to face anywhere you camp.

But just to prove that Coleman Tents are the best values on the market, we pitched a Coleman "Oasis" model near the punishing Pacific.

Coleman beat the sea. And we stayed dry inside. Because our pole system is spring-loaded, gives and takes under pressure. And Coleman's Dri-Tex Duck defied the constant drenching. Not surprising. Our seams are lap-felled, hooked over and under each other, then sewn tightly. Heavy-duty, weather-sealed zippers make Coleman's big windows water-proof. No wet feet, either. Coleman Tents feature double vinylized nylon floors.

You'd expect to pay lots more for tents built to weather the worst of wind and water. Yet, Coleman Tents are popularly priced from $20 to $200. Terrific bargains from the people who take your fun seriously.

Roll up the steak and tie with a string every 1½ inches or so. Place in a baking pan and season with salt and pepper.

Bake uncovered in a 425° oven for 15 minutes, or until browned; reduce oven temperature to 375° and bake 30 minutes longer for medium rare meat (it will be slightly pink inside). Cool and chill.

Another time, you might enjoy serving this meat roll hot.

The spiciness of cloves permeates this Danish pinwheel of beef and lamb. It slices beautifully to any thickness desired. Because you weight it after simmering, the meat stays sealed together even when it is cut.

Try to select pieces of meat of equal length and width (their thickness may vary) for a neat meat roll.

ROLLED SAUSAGE (Rullepølse)

1 flank steak (approximately 1¼ pounds)
1 boneless breast of lamb (approximately ¾ pound)
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
½ teaspoon sugar
1 can (10½ oz.) condensed beef broth

With a wooden mallet, gently pound the meats into pieces of similar size. Lay flank steak down first and place the lamb on top. Mix together the salt, cloves, allspice, pepper, and sugar and sprinkle evenly over the meat. Roll up, starting at a narrow end, and tie roll with strings spaced 1 inch apart. Thread a large sewing needle with string and sew ends and seam securely.

Lay tied meat roll in a pan and pour in broth (undiluted). Cover and simmer for 2 hours or just until tender. Remove from broth and place in a 5 by 9-inch loaf pan (or other convenient dish); cover with a small board and weight with a heavy object (such as an antique iron or 5-pound bag of sugar) for at least 8 hours, turning roll several times to keep an even shape. As soon as roll is cool, refrigerate it. Remove string and slice to serve. Makes 1 roll, about 2 pounds. Keeps refrigerated for 1 week.

Butter-rich frozen brioche rolls make ideal edible containers to hollow out and fill with mushroom and chicken liver pâté. The result is intriguing: individual buns encasing a savory pâté filling.

BRIOCHE PÂTÉS

¾ pound chicken livers
½ pound mushrooms, chopped
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ teaspoon each garlic salt, onion salt, and dried tarragon (crumbled)
2 tablespoons dry white wine
1 tablespoon brandy
2 packages (7½ oz. each) frozen brioche rolls (12 individual small brioches)

Sauté chicken livers and mushrooms in 2 tablespoons of the butter with garlic salt, onion salt, and tarragon for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add wine and brandy, cover, and simmer 10 minutes longer. Transfer to a blender and purée until smooth. Then blend in the remaining 4 tablespoons butter.

Slice the tops off each brioche and with a sharp pointed knife hollow out the insides, leaving at least a ½-inch shell. Spoon pâté mixture inside each brioche and cover with the tops of the rolls. Bake in a 350° oven for 30 minutes. Cool and chill. Makes 12 pâté-filled brioches. Allow 2 per serving.

If you think an enchilada is just a sauced tortilla wrapped around a meat or cheese filling, these south-of-the-border variations offer you a surprising insight into the versatility of Mexican foods.

True, their ingredients lean heavily on a standard selection, but the assembling is unusual. The first enchiladas are flat tortillas with filling between the layers. In the second dish, a soufflé mixture bakes in a shell of tortillas. The chicken enchiladas are topped, rather than filled, with chicken. And the meat enchiladas are filled with a special kind of chorizo.

The Mexicans make more than one kind of enchilada

Melted cheese and chile salsa form tasty crust of this unique enchilada ca Inside, a puffy egg mixture that resembles a savory soufflé but is much more stirring occasionally, for 15 minutes.

Planter's Punch. Arrange in each of 4 large glasses 1 or 2 slices fresh peeled pineapple; ½ of a small, peeled and sliced orange; and 1 or 2 slices fresh, peeled and seeded papaya. Fill glasses with a mixture of 1½ cups orange juice and 2 cans (12 oz. each) guava nectar. Chill and serve garnished with mint sprig. Sip juice with a straw and eat fruit with a spoon. Makes 4 servings.

This casserole is quite unlike a typical enchilada; whipped eggs, much like a soufflé, bake in the tortilla-lined dish. It goes well with simply roasted or grilled meats or poultry; or it can be a main dish.

GREEN CHILE ENCHILADA

7 or 8 corn tortillas
Salad oil
1 can (7 oz.) green chile salsa
4 eggs, separated
1 tablespoon flour
1¾ cups shredded jack cheese
3 to 4 canned green chiles, rinsed, seeds and pith removed, and finely chopped
Mild pickled red pepper for garnish

In a small frying pan heat ½ inch salad oil over medium heat. Fry tortillas, one at a time, just until soft; turn once. Drain briefly and immediately coat on all sides with green chile salsa. Put 1 tortilla in the bottom of a 7 or 8-inch-diameter casserole (at least 2 inches deep); lean remaining tortillas, overlapping, around sides and slightly over bottom center tortilla.

Beat egg whites until stiff; set aside. With same beater whip egg yolks until slightly thickened, then beat in flour; stir in 1 cup of the cheese, the chiles (taste first to decide the amount of hot flavor you want, adding more or less as you like) little of the egg white. Fold yolk into remaining whites and pour i tilla-lined dish. Fold tortillas dow filling. Spoon remaining salsa ont llas, then sprinkle tortillas evenly maining cheese. Bake, uncovered 375° oven for 30 minutes. Garnis pepper and serve. Makes 6 side-dis ings or 4 main-dish servings.

All it takes is a few minutes of preparation and a little know-how.

1 clove garlic, minced
2 cups jellied consomme
½ cup lemon juice

Many uses for a new table pad

A new table padding has proved adaptable for a variety of uses. It's embossed foam-rubber, ⅛-inch thick, on a flannel backing. Soft to the touch and better looking than the average padding, it can be placed under a tablecloth to protect a table from hot dishes and spilled liquids, or used by itself to cover a table for card playing or children's games, for typing or sewing. You can cut it to any shape. It wipes clean with soapy water.

As yet the padding is handled by only a few West Coast department stores—in 41-inch widths (white and green) and 53-inch widths (six colors). A 53 by 90-inch piece costs about $14.

Hang the trash basket

This arrangement works beautifully and it's easy to install. A standard plastic wastebasket with a straight lip hangs on a strip of sheet aluminum shaped into a U and nailed to the inside of the cabinet door. When you open the cabinet door the container swings out to receive trash. The owners are Dr. and Mrs. Howard Dale, Seattle.

Armenian coffee cake, cut in slices, shows cinnamon-flavored sesame tahini filling. Cheoreg, shaped in braided loaf and small rolls, is flavored with spice called mahlab

Armenian bakers' secrets

The Armenian breads you see above may introduce you to two new flavors, sesame tahini and a spice called mahlab.

The bread at left is filled with tahini (pronounced ta-hee-nee), a paste made from ground sesame seeds. Tahini usually comes in a can as shown above, has a slightly nutlike flavor, and in consistency resembles thin peanut butter.

The large braid and small rosette-shaped rolls show two ways you can shape a butter-and-egg-rich yeast dough, called cheoreg (choor-reg). It depends on mahlab (mah-leb) for its intriguing flavor. Mahlab tastes slightly sweet and gives off a marvelous aroma while baking. You might compare its flavor and fragrance with coriander or cardamom. You can buy either ground or whole mahlab. Before using whole mahlab, whirl it in a blender until finely ground.

Scallop edged canned rum cake presented deliciously on a liqueur flavored pudding

Baba floats on a pudding cloud

Rum-soaked babas from a can are the easy, ever ready beginning for this memorable make-ahead dessert. You freshen the flavor of the cakes with a bit more rum, then present them on a delicate, cloudlike pudding that is uncooked.

You will find the yeast-raised rum cakes (single-serving size or tiny cakes) in the gourmet sections of large food markets, and often in the fancy food sections of import shops.

BABAS ANGELIA

- 2 cans (12 oz. each) rum baba cakes, single-serving size, or 1 can (14 oz.) petit rum baba cakes
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ¼ cup cold water
- 3 eggs, separated
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons brandy
- 4 tablespoons rum
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup whipping cream

Arrange rum cakes in a single layer on several thicknesses of paper towels and set aside to drain.

Soften gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes, then melt over hot water. Beat egg yolks with ¼ cup of the sugar until slightly thickened; blend in gelatin, brandy, 2 tablespoons of the rum, and vanilla; set mixture aside.

Wash beaters and whip egg whites until stiff; gradually beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar until whites hold stiff, glossy peaks. Whip cream with same beater until stiff. Fold thoroughly together the yolks, whites, and cream. Pour equal portions into 8 dessert dishes or 1 large compote. Chill until slightly set.

Place cakes in a dish and sprinkle with remaining 2 tablespoons rum, then place 1 large cake or 2 petit cakes on each pudding or all the cakes over compote. Chill until set, at least 1 hour. Makes 8 servings.—R. C., Belmont, Calif.

Cold salad entrée features eggs, shrimp, tomatoes, and spring's tender asparagus

With asparagus and eggs . . . spring salad, or a shooting star sandwich?

Chilled, perfectly cooked asparagus and eggs are basic to each of these three cold entrées. Each combines meat or fish with a flavorful cold sauce. You can prepare and chill all the ingredients ahead.

The mustard-caper dressing adds zest to each ingredient in this pretty luncheon or supper plate.

SPRING SALAD PLATE WITH MUSTARD-CAPER DRESSING

Halve or quarter eggs and arrange over ends of the asparagus on each side of the shrimp. Garnish with tomatoes and watercress; sprinkle eggs with paprika, if you wish. Serve very cold with a bowl of dressing. Serves 6.

A Dutch sandwich lunch . . . a casserole picnic . . . and breakfast for Mother's Day

Broodje, small but satisfying when piled high with filling; this holds ham,

Maytime weather offers almost irresistible inducements to cut kitchen time to a minimum. Acknowledging this, our menus this month are simple enough to free you for other activities, or so flexible they fit in smoothly.

They include a Dutch sandwich lunch or supper party you might serve buffet-style on the patio; a Mother's Day breakfast in keeping with young cooks' capabilities; and a casserole picnic for Memorial Day.

Broodje lunch or supper party

This menu is inspired by the broodjes-winkels—or sandwich shops—of Amsterdam. A broodje (pronounced broh-ja) is a sandwich consisting of a small, soft roll, generously buttered and filled with a thick layer of meat, cheese, fish, or a salad mixture. Assembled, the sandwich is almost as tall as it is wide. Winkels are the impeccable restaurants where the sandwiches are served.

Although the bill of fare of an Amsterdam broodje shop may offer 30 o varieties, we recommend that yo the choices of fillings to from four Milk is the customary beverage paniment, but adults might prefer bodied Dutch beer.

New 'Foodcenter 24' rolls into your old refrigerator space

General Electric's new 'Foodcenter 24' gives you 23.6 cubic feet of space for fresh and frozen foods, probably about twice the capacity of your old refrigerator. It's only 35¾ inches wide and 66 inches high and very likely will fit into your old refrigerator space.

The new GE automatic icemaker keeps a party supply of cubes on hand right at eye level and makes more as you use them. Big, convenient upright freezer holds up to 298 lbs. of frozen foods.

In the fresh food side, new strong tempered glass shelves are easy to clean; spills won't drip through. One shelf is adjustable; three shelves slide out. The seven-day meat keeper is convertible. Keeps meat fresh up to a week, or flip a lever and use the drawer for extra vegetable space. The butter conditioner delivers "table-ready" butter.

There's no defrosting ever in refrigerator or freezer. And it rolls out on wheels when you want to clean behind it.

cheese. Have all of these sliced as thinly as possible when you buy them; broodje fillings typically consist of many thin layers. You can arrange the meats and cheese on a platter, cover it with clear plastic film, and refrigerate it several hours before serving.

Either of the salad fillings can be made two to three hours before serving and similarly refrigerated. We used an ice cream scoop to mound sandwich-sized portions (about ¼ cup each) on leaves of butter lettuce; guests pick up the filling, lettuce and all, and transfer it to a buttered roll. Thinly sliced cold roast beef might be an alternative to the tartare filling for those who don't care for this classic raw meat mixture.

Look for packaged small (about 3 inches in diameter), soft dinner rolls for your broodjes. Resembling small hamburger buns, they are usually sold in plastic bags of 12, plain or with sesame seeds. Have them split and well buttered for guests to use in making their own broodjes. You can expect each diner to eat about three.

Salmon Salad Filling. Drain and flake 1 large can (1 lb.) red sockeye salmon; remove bones and skin. Blend ½ cup mayonnaise, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, ¼ teaspoon dill weed, and ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg. Lightly blend mayonnaise mixture, salmon, ½ cup finely chopped celery, and 2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped. Makes about 2½ cups, enough for 10 to 12 sandwiches.

Beef Tartare Filling. The day of your party, purchase 1½ pounds freshly ground round steak. Mix in 2 eggs, slightly beaten; 1 teaspoon each salt, dry mustard, and Worcestershire; ¼ teaspoon pepper; 2 tablespoons each grated onion and drained capers; and ¼ cup finely chopped dill pickle, blending lightly but thoroughly. Serve with lemon wedges to squeeze over each portion. Makes about 3½ cups, enough for 14 to 18 sandwiches.

Jan Hagel Cookies

- 1¾ cups unsifted regular, all-purpose flour
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ cup sliced almonds
- ¾ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ¾ cup firm butter or margarine
- Sugar

Mix flour, the ½ cup sugar, almonds, and cinnamon thoroughly. Stir in vanilla. Cut in butter to form particles the size of dried peas. Work mixture with your hands until you can shape it into a smooth ball.

Divide dough into 2 equal parts; roll out one portion at a time about ⅛ inch thick on a floured board. Cut into 2-inch rounds. (Or shape dough into two rolls, each about 2 inches in diameter. Wrap dough well and refrigerate it for 1 to 2 hours or until you are ready to bake. Then slice dough ⅛ inch thick and continue as for rolled cookies.)

Sprinkle cookies lightly with sugar. Bake in a 400° oven for 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes about 3½ dozen cookies, 2½ inches in diameter.—A. R., Santa Monica, Calif.

A unique party entrée: Chinese steamed dumplings in soup with savory pork or shrimp fillings. You can make these specialties with ingredients available in most markets

l of the most delicious and intri- members of these are the steamed ngs — savorily seasoned meat or h mixtures wrapped in thin dough nd steamed. Here we tell you how e shrimp dumplings, ha gow, and umplings, fin kue.

n serve these small steamed dump- s hot appetizers, to be eaten with and dipped into soy sauce or hot rd sauce as desired.

ve the dumplings as a main dish, t them in a rich broth soup (above) ccompany with hot Chinese pod or finely shredded cabbage salad with a hot mustard or sesame oil dressing, hot cooked rice (which you can stir into individual soup servings), pickled onions, and tea. Dessert might be almond cookies with preserved kumquats or ginger-flavored ice cream.

Patience is perhaps the most important requisite in making steamed dumplings, for even though they are not difficult to make, they do take time to shape. To facilitate their preparation for a party meal, you can freeze the cooked dumplings, and reheat; or simply refrigerate the blended ingredients for the fillings overnight, and shape and steam the dumplings early in the day, reheating to serve.

Another time-saving alternative is to make only one of the dumplings; the recipes give directions for this change.

If you cannot get fresh coriander (also called Chinese parsley or cilantro, and usually available in Oriental or Mexican food markets) or fresh ginger, use the dried spice substitutions that follow.

SHRIMP DUMPLINGS (Ha Gow)

- 1¾ pounds medium-sized raw shrimp, shelled and deveined
- ⅔ cup minced canned bamboo shoots
- 1 teaspoon grated fresh ginger (or ¼ teaspoon ground ginger)
- 1 teaspoon minced fresh coriander (or ¼ teaspoon ground coriander)
- ¼ cup minced pork fat
- ⅛ teaspoon anise seed, crushed
- ⅛ teaspoon white pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Dumpling dough prepared for shrimp dumplings (recipe follows)
- Salad oil

Grind shrimp through medium blade of a food chopper and measure exactly 2 cups; save any extra for other uses. Mix the 2 cups shrimp with bamboo shoots, ginger, coriander, pork fat, anise seed, pepper, and salt. (You can chill mixture, covered, overnight.) Divide shrimp mixture into 30 equal-sized portions.

To make each dumpling, roll a piece of the dumpling dough out on a moderately floured board to make a round that is 4 to 4½ inches in diameter. Spoon a single portion of the shrimp filling down the center of the dough round. Lift opposite sides of the round over the filling and pinch together, fluting to completely seal in filling. Brush entire surface of each dumpling generously with salad oil. Keep covered and cold until all are shaped.

Cover a wire or perforated rack with foil and brush foil with salad oil. Place rack in a steamer or deep pan, keeping rack several inches above water level. Perforate the foil liberally with a fork to prevent the accumulation of moisture while cooking. The pan should be deep enough to allow a lid to cover dumplings without touching. Have 2 or 3 inches of water boiling in pan and keep at a steady boil. To steam dumplings, place slightly apart on rack, cover, and cook 15 minutes.

You can serve dumplings as hot appetizers, freshly made, or reheat them in the steamer for about 5 minutes. (If you cook dumplings ahead, keep cold and covered, for no longer than 1 day.)

If you serve the dumplings in the soup (recipe follows) you can add the hot, freshly made dumplings to the soup, or cook the dumplings ahead (chilling during the interim) and reheat them in the hot soup.

You can also freeze the cooked dumplings for up to 1 month; place slightly apart on a sheet of waxed paper on a baking sheet and freeze until firm, then store in plastic freezer bags. Remove from bags and set dumplings apart to thaw; if they touch, the dough skins stick together. Reheat as directed above. Makes 30 dumplings.

PORK DUMPLINGS (Fin Kue)

2 cups (about 1 lb.) ground lean pork
½ cup minced soaked dried Japanese mushrooms (directions follow) or ½ cup minced fresh mushrooms
⅓ cup minced green onion
¼ cup each minced celery, canned water chestnuts, and canned bamboo shoots
2 teaspoons minced fresh coriander (or ½ teaspoon ground coriander)
1 teaspoon grated fresh ginger (or ¼ teaspoon ground ginger)
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
1 egg white
Dumpling dough prepared for pork dumplings (recipe follows)
48 fresh or frozen green peas (optional)
Salad oil

Mix the pork with mushrooms, onion, celery, water chestnuts, bamboo shoots, coriander, and ginger. Gradually blend soy sauce with cornstarch and add to pork mixture along with the egg white. Beat to blend thoroughly. (At this point you can chill, covered, overnight.) Divide mixture in 48 equal-sized balls.

To make each dumpling, roll a piece of dumpling dough out on a very lightly floured board to make a 3-inch-diameter round. Place a pork ball onto the center of the dough. Crumple the dough up and around the filling (see photograph at lower left, page 197); the top surface of the filling stays exposed. Put 1 pea in the center of each dumpling, if you like. Brush dumplings all over with salad oil. Keep covered and cold until all are shaped.

To steam, follow directions for shrimp dumplings, and cook for a total of 20 minutes. You can serve, or reheat and serve, or freeze as directed for shrimp dumplings. Makes 48 dumplings.

Soaked Dried Japanese Mushrooms. Place 4 large dried Japanese mushrooms in a small deep bowl. Pour over them ½ cup warm water mixed with 1 teaspoon sugar. Soak 30 minutes. Drain, rinse in clear water, and squeeze dry. Discard stems and mince caps to make ½ cup.

Dumpling Dough. Stir 1 cup boiling water into 2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour, blending thoroughly with a fork or chopsticks. Shape dough into ball; knead on a moderately floured board for 10 minutes or until very smooth and velvety. Cover and let rest for 20 minutes. Divide into 2 halves; cover one while shaping the other. To make the shrimp dumplings, roll one of the dough halves into a 15-inch-long log. Cut in 1-inch sections and then cut each section in half to make 30 pieces. Keep covered with clear plastic wrap at all times to prevent drying. Shape according to directions with shrimp dumplings.

To make pork dumplings, roll the other dough half into a log 24 inches long and cut in 1-inch lengths, then cut each section in half to make 48 pieces. Keep the pieces covered with clear plastic wrap. Shape according to directions given for pork dumplings.

(For best results, do not divide the large ball of dough into the small sections until you are ready to shape and fill dumplings; you can make half the recipe if you want to make only one kind of dumpling.)

Chinese Dumpling Soup. Combine in a big, deep pan 2 large cans (1 qt. 15 oz. each) chicken broth, 1 large onion (sliced), ¼ cup packed fresh coriander (or 1 tablespoon whole coriander, crushed), 2 slices fresh ginger (or 1 teaspoon ground ginger), and 1 or 2 pounds bony chicken parts. Simmer, covered, for 1½ to 2 hours.

Pour soup through a fine wire strainer, discarding residue. Return liquid to the large pan and heat to boiling; reduce temperature to simmering and add the prepared pork and shrimp dumplings.

Quickly return to simmer, then remove from heat and serve, spooning soup and dumplings gently into bowls to avoid breaking the dumplings. (You can make just half this recipe if you want to serve only one of the dumplings in the soup. You can also refrigerate the soup, without dumplings, for several days, covered; or freeze until you are ready to heat and add dumplings.) Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Hot muffins to start the day

Cornmeal muffins with bacon make a satisfying breakfast with a soft-cooked
On a leisurely weekend morning, expand menu to include butter-sautéed sma

Hot muffins for breakfast can give a day the nicest possible start. The recipes that follow show several ways you can vary this simple bread.

If you want to serve muffins quickly on a weekday morning, there are two ways to prepare ahead: Bake the muffins the night before and wrap them in foil; then reheat them in the wrappings in a 350° oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Or prepare your baking pans; combine the liquid ingredients and refrigerate them; and sift the dry ingredients into a bowl in advance. Then in the morning stir the two mixtures together, and the muffins are ready to bake.

If you have muffin pans with a nonstick fluorocarbon finish, there's no need to grease them for any of these recipes.

Bacon-speckled corn muffins and soft-cooked eggs are good companions.

BACON CORN MUFFINS

Coarsely chop 6 slices bacon. Cook slowly until browned; drain, reserving 2 tablespoons of the drippings. Crush bacon until crumbly. Sift and measure 1 cup regular all-purpose flour; sift into a bowl with 1 cup yellow cornmeal, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon each salt and soda, and ⅓ cup sugar. Beat 1 egg lightly with 1 cup cultured buttermilk and reserved bacon drippings. Stir crushed bacon (if you wish, reserve about 1 tablespoon for topping) and milk mixture into dry ingredients just until combined.

Fill greased 2½-inch muffin pans two-thirds full; sprinkle reserved bacon over tops. Bake in a 425° oven for 15 to 18 minutes or until muffins are golden brown. Makes 1 dozen.—A. M., Oceano, Calif.

These golden orange muffins use puréed fresh orange peel and pulp for flavor.

ORANGE-RAISIN MUFFINS

- 1 large orange
- About 1¼ cups buttermilk
- ½ cup melted butter or salad oil
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 4 cups regular all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons soda
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 cup chopped raisins

With a vegetable peeler, remove thin outer peel from orange. Remove and discard white membrane from orange. Cut pulp into pieces and whirl, with peel, in blender until puréed. Measure and add enough buttermilk to make 2 cups liquid. Blend in butter and eggs. Sift flour, measure, and sift flour again with soda, salt, and sugar.

Combine liquid ingredients, flour mixture, and raisins, stirring just until blended. Spoon into greased 2½-inch muffin cups, filling about three-quarters full. Bake in a 350° oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes 2 dozen muffins. —I. J., Bothell, Wash.

Each of these lemon muffins is coated with a brown sugar and coconut mixture. Turn them out of the pans as soon as they're baked; serve upside down.

UPSIDE-DOWN LEMON MUFFINS

- Coconut topping (recipe follows)
- 2 cups regular all-purpose flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 cup milk
- 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine, or salad oil
- 1 tablespoon each grated lemon peel and lemon juice

Divide coconut topping evenly into 12 well greased 2½-inch muffin cups; press against bottoms and sides. Sift and measure flour; sift into a bowl with baking powder, salt, nutmeg, and sugar. Beat egg lightly with milk, butter, lemon peel, and lemon juice; stir mixture into dry ingredients just until combined. Fill prepared muffin pans about three-quarters fu

If Colombian Coffee can make blends taste better, think how good it tastes all by itself.

Most leading blends of coffee have some lombian in them to give a richer, fuller te. But now you can get that richer, ler taste all by itself—in S&W's 100% lombian Coffee, with Juan Valdez* on label.

Juan and coffee growers like him spend eir lives growing coffee beans that de- er a richer, fuller taste.

Swiss veal . . . and rösti potatoe

The veal dish called Geschnetzeltes (gnh-shnet-sel-tis) is offered on restaurant menus throughout Switzerland. It is a simple combination of quickly cooked julienne strips of veal in a rich wine-accented cream sauce. The make-ahead character of this dish makes it ideally suited to company entertaining at home.

To complete the meal we suggest the traditional accompaniment "rösti" potatoes (diced, buttery, pan-roasted potatoes), a crisp green salad, and hard rolls.

SWISS JULIENNE OF VEAL
(Geschnetzeltes)

Carefully trim away skin or fat from 2 pounds boneless veal cutlets, ⅓ inch thick. Put one piece at a time between two pieces of waxed paper and pound with a smooth-surfaced mallet to flatten it evenly to about ¼-inch thickness. Sprinkle meat lightly on each side with salt, pepper, and paprika. Cut into strips ¼ inch wide and about 1½ inches long.

In a wide frying pan heat 3 tablespoons butter or margarine until bubbly. Add 2 tablespoons chopped shallots or green onions and sauté until just softened. Add veal strips and cook over medium high heat, stirring frequently, until no longer pink, about 4 minutes. Remove meat and shallots (or onion) to a 1-quart

On a fresh May day . . . an icy cold lemon dessert

The summerlike euphoria occasionally brought on by May can stir an urge for a light, refreshing dessert—long before summer's berries and stone fruits are around to satisfy that urge. When this happens to you, you might consider one of these two excellent spring desserts.

Both are easy frozen lemon desserts; each is refreshing with canned or frozen fruits. You must freeze them at 0° or colder; they can be made weeks ahead.

FROZEN LEMON TORTE

The Chefs this month are concerned with the chicken and the egg

The chicken and the egg are the whole concern of the Chefs this month. Which came first matters less to these gentlemen than what happens after either arrives.

What happens to an egg when Chef Fred Cherry finds one is a sort of fritter.

"May I say that this was invented on a dismal, rain-drenched morning after? We called it Featherless Swallows.

"We thought some solid food would help, but the refrigerator revealed little more than four ears of corn and an egg. The corn was grated into a bowl containing the one egg yolk and beaten very quietly with a sprinkle of salt. The egg white, stiffly whipped, was stirred into the mixture, and spoonfuls dropped into a buttered pan, quickly browned, turned, and swallowed. Naturally we went out for more corn, but life now had a purpose.

"I've since tried it with canned and frozen corn, but fresh is best."

Chef Cherry makes this a morning dish with syrup, honey, or jam, but we found it versatile enough to serve by itself as a side dish with meat.

FEATHERLESS SWALLOWS

- 1 egg, separated
- 4 medium-sized ears of corn, or 1 can (12 oz.) whole kernel corn, drained and chopped
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter

Place egg yolk in a small bowl and grate or scrape in fresh corn. Add salt and beat just to blend. Whip egg white until stiff and fold into yolk mixture. Melt butter in a frying pan over medium high heat and fry mixture a tablespoon at a time until lightly browned, turning once. Makes 12 to 15 small fritters.

An omelette with a spicy sauce makes up what Herb Goldstein calls Mediterranean Omelette. Since one of the primary ingredients is our own Western jack cheese, the name needs a little qualification. The ingredients draw from both the Mediterranean and Mexico, and the flavors will remind you as much of chiles of a Spanish omelette. This is approach to the piquant flavor climes; and whatever you call probably like it very much.

Chicken Eugenio is, we quote, "the result of ingenuity when left alone with an uncooked chicken, an unsatisfied appetite, and an undaunted imagination."

K. E. Svilich is the source of this ingenuity, and his inspiration is primarily Italian.

The resulting dish has its antecedents in such fare as Chicken Cacciatore. The flavors are strong and hearty, so you'll need a good Italian red wine and a salad with some gumption to stand along with them.

CHICKEN EUGENIO

4 tablespoons olive oil
1 clove garlic, minced or mashed
3-pound broiler-fryer chicken, cut in pieces
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon sage
About ⅓ cup flour
2 green onions, chopped
¼ green pepper, chopped
1 can (1 lb.) peeled, pear-shaped tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon basil
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
1 can (4 oz.) button mushrooms
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Heat oil in a large frying pan with garlic. Dust chicken parts (reserve giblets) with paprika and sage; roll in flour, shaking off excess, and brown on all sides in the hot oil. Meanwhile finely cut giblets. Remove chicken from pan; add giblets, onions, and green pepper and sauté until vegetables are limp. Return chicken to pan, add tomatoes, salt, basil, parsley flakes, and mushrooms including liquid. Cover and simmer over low heat for 30 minutes, or until chicken is tender.

Arrange chicken on platter, sprinkle with Parmesan cheese, and keep warm. Over high heat, reduce tomato sauce about half or until desired consistency. Pour over chicken. Serve with extra Parmesan, if desired. Makes 3 or 4 servings.

To cook frittata, add egg mixture to vegetables. Cook until almost set; invert onto large platter, slide it back into pan to cook top side; invert again onto serving plate

Yours from Italy . . . two frittatas

An Italian frittata is a simple mixture of cooked vegetables, eggs, and seasonings that is fried quickly (on both sides) in a wide, open frying pan. It is typically served for brunch or lunch, but you might also consider it as a late supper entrée with a green salad and French bread.

Special pans for making frittatas—made of aluminum or rolled iron, with straight, shallow sides—are available at gourmet cookware shops. But we found that a frying pan with a non-stick fluorocarbon finish is the easiest to use. A well seasoned cast-iron pan also works well.

If you plan to use a frittata pan or cast-iron frying pan that is not well seasoned, you should season it beforehand to prevent the frittata from sticking. To do this, pour about a half inch of salad oil into the pan and place over medium heat; when oil just begins to smoke, remove it from the heat and let cool. Drain oil from pan and wipe with paper towel; do not wash.

Spinach and Asparagus Frittata. Wash and remove stems from 1 pound fresh spinach and cook, covered, in the water that clings to the leaves after washing; cook until limp, about 2 minutes. Cool, drain, and chop; set aside. Slice 1 pound asparagus diagonally into inch-thick slices; cook in boiling salted water until just tender, about 5 minutes. Pour into colander and cool quickly in cold running water; drain; reserve.

Beat together 8 eggs, 3 tablespoons whipping cream, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash pepper, and 2 tablespoons shredded Parmesan or Romano cheese; set aside.

In a 10 or 11-inch frying pan (see left for types to use), combine 3 tablespoons olive oil and 2 cloves garlic, minced or mashed; stir over medium heat until golden. Add cooked spinach and asparagus, distributing them evenly in pan; cook about 2 minutes. Pour egg mixture over vegetables and cook, without stirring, until set about ¼ inch around outer edge. With a wide spatula, lift some of the egg mixture from the sides of the pan, all the way around, tipping pan to let uncooked egg mixture flow to bottom. Continue cooking until top of frittata is almost set (top ⅛ inch of egg mixture towards center should still be liquid).

Invert a large platter over frying pan and turn frittata over onto platter. Add 1 tablespoon olive oil to pan, tip pan to coat bottom with oil, then slide frittata back into hot pan to cook top side. Cook about 2 minutes, then invert onto serving plate. Cut in wedges to serve. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Zucchini Frittata. Follow recipe for Spinach and Asparagus Frittata, with these changes: Omit spinach and asparagus. Cook 1 pound fresh zucchini, thinly sliced, in boiling salted water until just tender, about 5 minutes. Pour into colander, cool in cold running water, drain. Combine squash; 1 can (2 oz.) sliced pitted, ripe olives, drained; ½ cup sliced green onion (including part of the tops); and ¼ teaspoon oregano. Add these vegetables to hot olive oil and garlic, distributing evenly in pan; cook about 2 minutes. Add egg mixture; cook as directed above.

A pinto bougainvillea

Bougainvilleas come in many colors, but up until now each variety had its own single color. The bougainvillea aptly named 'Surprise' has two colors that it flaunts simultaneously. The bracts (the colored parts most people think of as flowers) may be white or they may be rose purple. Bracts on a single branchlet may be all of one color or of both. Long, profusely blooming branches may have a foot of pure white, a foot of rose purple, and a foot of mixed bloom.

Not all bougainvilleas are equally hardy to cold, but 'Surprise' seems as hardy as any. Two plants in Menlo Park and Los Altos lost leaves during a cold spell last December but came back strong with fresh foliage in March—and one plant was in a can, a severe test of hardiness.

A Southern California wholesale grower has a good supply of these plants; prices run about twice as high as those of other bougainvilleas.

Time to plant tomatoes

Tomato plants have been in nurseries for six weeks or so, but there is still plenty of time to plant them. In fact, the experience of last year's "baseball gardeners" suggests that early planting of tomatoes is useful only if warm weather follows. Some gardeners were so discouraged by the lack of early growth of last year's tomatoes in cold, wet soil that they replanted later in the spring, using sturdy plants that came from growers' greenhouses in mid-May or even June.

Some, stymied by wet soil, planted tomato plants in milk cartons or similar containers to grow on until weather improved and soil could be readied. Of course, if it's a warm spring, earlier planting will give earlier tomatoes.

When you choose varieties to plant, be guided by your nurseryman; he's been listening to tomato reports for a long time and knows well what will yield best in your area.

Pumpkins and sunflowers

Last year we reported the Big Pumpkin Contest held by the Men's Garden Clubs of America (Sunset, page 180, June 1967 and page 219, October 1967). Running concurrently with this year's contest is a Big Sunflower Contest; sunflowers win on diameter, pumpkins on weight. To be eligible, contestants must be 16 or younger.

Where there's a Men's Garden Club unit, you'll see contest dates and rules announced in local newspapers; in many areas club members will distribute free seeds to entrants. One such distribution will be made at the Men's Garden Club show to be held April 27 at the Valco Shopping Center, Homestead Avenue and Wolfe Road, Cupertino, California.

Children in areas where there is no unit can still enter. For seeds, send a stamped, addressed return envelope to Ben Hoyle, 433 Eureka Ave., Mountain View, California 94040. Closing date will be in late September; we'll let you know the exact date as soon as it's decided, so that you can have pumpkin weighed or sunflower measured in time by a county farm advisor or 4-H director. Then you can mail the certificate (along with a snapshot of contestant and his pumpkin or sunflower) to Mr. Hoyle.

Patience with bare-root plants

Most bare-root trees and shrubs planted this spring should be in full leaf by now, but there may be laggards that still look

Prize-winning sunflower is an armful for its grower; it measures 19 inches across as bare as poles. It's especially distressing when large, relatively expensive shade trees are slow to show signs of life. Have patience; these large trees have been shocked by digging, and it takes them some time to reestablish roots and put out top growth.

Trees whose roots are relatively few and coarse are likely to be the slowest to start into growth—fruitless mulberry, silk tree, pecans, and walnuts. Such trees may remain obstinately bare until the first few really hot days (90° or thereabouts) "boil" the buds out of trunk and branches.

While you wait, be conservative with the hose. Until the tree is in active growth it needs little water; too much water at the roots (especially at a time when soil is warming) invites root rot. Plants must not go bone-dry, of course. Best technique is to water by inspection of the soil, turning up a trowelful from time to time to see that some moisture, but not too much, is available.

How long should you wait before pulling out the plant? It's hard to be specific; we've heard of trees being pulled out as late as the first of July and returned to the nursery for replacement, then starting into growth after replanting.

"June drop" a friend, not an enemy

Very shortly after pollination, petals fall from flowers of deciduous fruit trees and young fruits begin to show. Many embryonic fruits that were not pollinated drop right away, but they are so small that their loss is not noted. Other fruits drop at later stages for a variety of reasons; they are not missed either.

The last wave of dropping takes place when fruits have reached good size and the owner has begun to estimate the size of his crop. This last wave is the so-called "June drop," which may take place before, during, or after June, depending on climate, season, and type of tree.

It's distressing to see large green fruits littering the ground, but it's not a thing to be alarmed about. Consider June drop the tree's way of thinning out those fruits it couldn't successfully ripen. Even this natural thinning, distressing though it may be, is seldom heavy enough to guarantee best size and quality in the remaining fruit; you'll have to supplement it with hand thinning.

Blear-eyed marguerites

When rays of marguerite flower heads fail to open properly and a squint replaces the wide, golden-eyed stare, you can be pretty sure that thrips are responsible for the damage. You can make positive identification by breaking open one of the distorted buds and shaking it over your hand or a piece of paper. If you're pretty sharp-eyed yourself, and thrips are there, you'll see them, but just barely. They're tiny insects, usually light brown in color.

Thrips have become a serious pest of marguerites, white marguerites in particular. They do their worst damage in late spring when they move in from fields and orchards. They persist through summer and fall but cause little trouble during the cool winter months.

So far no one has come up with a sure-fire way of eliminating thrips ☐ Feeding. Feed annuals that were set out last month and have begun to grow. Feed azaleas and camellias that have finished bloom, using fertilizer with an acid reaction. Feed early-blooming rhododendrons that have just finished flowering. Feed fuchsias and tuberous begonias lightly and often. Check color and growth rate of lawn; when growth rate slows, or if grass turns a paler green, feed.

☐ Food garden. Set out plants of eggplant, pepper, and tomato. Sow beans, corn, cucumbers, melons, pumpkins, and squash. In warmer areas make successive sowings of such early crops as lettuce, carrots, and radishes.

☐ Grooming, pruning. Remove old, withered fronds from ferns when new fronds begin to unfurl; take care not to injure tender new fronds.

Trim off dead wood you missed during dormant pruning, and cut back to live wood any tender plants damaged by the heavy freezes of last December.

When you cut rose flowers, make every cut a pruning cut. If you want plants to spread, cut to an outside bud; if you want them to grow upright, prune to an inside bud. If your roses are mostly for garden decoration, keep spent blooms cut off.

od results with annuals, pre- as carefully as you would a planting hole for a tree; add a complete fertilizer and peat moss, ground bark, rotted sawdust, or other humus-forming material. Churn into the existing soil by rotary tilling or by vigorous spading and raking. Final result should be a soft, fluffy soil. If you have to work hard to thrust a trowel into it to prepare the planting hole, soil isn't soft enough.

Fast shade for a wall

Owners of new houses may find that a west-facing or south-facing wall absorbs so much heat that the room inside can become nearly unlivable. Shading is the answer, and the fastest solution is an architectural one that would use awnings, screens, louvers, or a shade-making structure built outward from the wall.

Landscaping solutions might involve a large shade tree, a group of trees, or a tall screen planting—all slow or (using large plant material) expensive. One economical answer is to plant the tree or screen and wait, meanwhile using temporary shade from fast-growing vines on temporary supports — twine, wire, poultry netting, and the like. Fastest and most economical of vines are the annual kinds you grow from seed — and these may yield useful or amusing by-products.

For fast growth and a bonus of fresh vegetables, string beans (vining kinds, of course) are an excellent choice. For bright flowers (but second-rate beans) you could use scarlet runner beans. For bright flowers alone, consider morning glory, canary bird vine, cypress vine, moonflower, hyacinth bean, or cup-and-saucer vine. Moonflower is an especially prodigious grower. For fruit that's amusing, decorative, sometimes even useful, plant gourds.

It's a blast

Withered leaves, shriveled twig, and apricots in the picture at right indicate that the tree is infected by bacterial blast, a disease caused by an organism known as Pseudomonas syringae, the same organism that causes lilac blight and citrus blast.

Not shown here, but characteristic of the disease, are long, wet-looking or gummy cankers that form on branches. Branches die back, and entire trees have been killed. In this stage the disease is called bacterial canker. As a blast, or destruction of young buds, twigs, leaves, or fruit, it attacks other fruits, notable cherry and pear.

Bacterial blast is easily confused with brown rot; unfortunately, unlike brown rot, it is hard to control. Until further research uncovers a specific cure we can only recommend cutting out the infected branches well below the infected areas. To be safe, sterilize pruning tools between cuts. The copper sprays used on apricot before bloom to curb brown rot are being evaluated; they may prove to have some value in controlling blast.

On citrus the disease may cause black pitted spots on the rinds of lemons, or it may wither and blacken leaves of other kinds of citrus, especially orange and grapefruit.

If you missed the bare-root season, you can still have roses. In fact, by getting container-grown plants in bloom you can pick your color combinations without fear of clashes.

☐ Propagating. Make cuttings of carnation, fuchsia, geranium, marguerite, and pelargonium this month. Divide bamboo when new stalks begin to push out of the ground. Even small divisions, carefully lifted, will establish themselves, but large divisions start off faster and make big stems faster.

☐ Watering. In most years May is not too early to build watering basins around trees and shrubs and to apply a mulch for conserving water and frustrating weeds. If rains continue late, as they did last year, basins and mulches can wait. But replenish mulches around azaleas, camellias, and rhododendrons no matter what the weather; it will keep soil soft, moisture content of soil fairly even, and root run cool through fluctuating weather conditions.

Be sure to keep container plants well watered, even if weather is cool.

If a geranium could turn around to admire another plant, it would probably be to admire its refined cousin, the pelargonium.

Yet the two plants, similar in many ways, have significant differences that go beyond appearance. It's common knowledge that "you can't kill a geranium;" no one says that about the pelargonium.

Pelargoniums are in bloom now, and it's a good time to set them out. You'll be able to see and select colors you like, and plants set out now will be well established before hot weather comes. If you keep old blossoms picked off, plants growing in coolest seaside gardens may bloom

SYSTEMIC INSECTICIDES: They mal the plant itself lethal

In 1963, a remarkable new kind of garden product made a quiet and rather inconspicuous appearance on garden store shelves. Then last year the product suddenly multiplied, the one form became seven forms, the trade names became numerous. The big splash of new products in 1967 brought an enthusiastic reception on the part of Western gardeners.

The new products are systemic insecticides—insect-killing chemicals that plants absorb into their systems. The chemicals remain effective in the plant tissues for as long as a month to six weeks, possibly even eight weeks. By comparison, some surface insecticides such as malathion remain effective for only about three days. While the chemicals are in a plant, most kinds of sucking insects that take juices out of the plant get killed.

The plants can be rained on and washed repeatedly with water from sprinklers and yet remain, all during the effective period, safe from damage by sucking insects.

In all other respects the treated plants do not appear to differ from untreated plants of the same kind growing under the same conditions.

The form in which you buy a systemic insecticide determines how you use it. Following are the seven forms and some observations about their uses.

The first three you put on dry; the fourth goes into soil via a subsurface injector; and the last three go on the foliage as spray. Systemic insecticides can be taken into plant systems by way of root uptake, by absorption through leaves, or both.

THE DRY PRODUCTS

Di-Syston granules. Several products, put up in large canisters, contain Di-Syston granules as the only active ingredient. The label tells you how to apply by sprinkling the granules on the ground and mixing into the top 2 inches of soil. Subsequent waterings put the active ingredient into soil solution where the roots take it into the plant system.

A characteristic of this form is that under all conditions and especially during cold weather (when plant activity is slow) the uptake of the systemic from the soil is slower than it would be with sprayed-on material entering through leaves.

Di-Syston granules plus fertilizer. This is one of the two most-sold forms. Five major manufacturers of garden materials in the West market such a product, and all five product names contain rose: "Rose and Flower Care," Ornamental Systemic," "Syst Care," "Double Duty Rose C "Rose Care Kit."

The combination is a natural because roses benefit from a fe month to six weeks through th season—and that interval happ the period over which the sy secticide remains effective. M systemic insecticide keeps away the number-one pest on roses.

Many other plants can bene same way from simultaneous fertilizer and insecticide. Cine instance, can benefit from the fe need the systemic insecticide the leaf miner that attacks then Di-Syston granules plus fertilizer emergence weed killer. At leas formulation combines these th ingredients. It, too, has rose in —"Rose Guard." The pre-emerg killer in it is Treflan—a chem stops germination of many diffe of weed seeds. The idea is that y this material into the surface cultivated soil around rose pl it keeps the rose bed weed-free the rose bushes and keeps them sucking insects.

As with any of the new garden that do several things to the soi lawn) at once, you should use terial with care. Follow direc plicitly. Realize that every time any three-way or four-way co material to the soil for any one you are also supplying the soil chemicals that are in the mix for purposes. After a while you co up a high concentration of che the soil that could damage som This hazard is greatest with w ingredients.

Di-Syston cartridge. A firm with h ters in the Midwest manufact sells a root feeder, with valve, t on the end of a hose and opera water pressure. This firm also sell materials in cartridge form. Yo cartridge into a chamber in th unit, the cartridge dissolves a passes over it, and the chemical with the water through the hollow tube that you stick into the root This firm now packages and sells ton cartridges, which you can pu

Green garden . . . pleasing to passersby

This attractive entry garden won first prize in the 1967 roadside beautification contest in the Del Monte Forest on California's Monterey Peninsula.

As worked out by owners Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Dodd with architect Jim Pruitt and Watson's Nursery, its strongest points, in the judges' opinion, were general appearance from the road and ease of maintenance. The judges also commented on the way several large native pine trees had been retained on the rear of the property to tie in with surrounding sections of pine forest and trees on the golf course across the road.

Green is the predominating co house is gray-green; plants are shades of green. There is subdued in the soft tones of the earth adobe brick retaining wall and th exposed-aggregate entry walk.

The weird growth formations shown in the photographs on this page are examples of fasciation — an abnormal flattening or coalescing of stems. In the case of crested cockscomb (example at lower left), growers actually propagate to retain this characteristic because they think it an attractive novelty.

Many kinds of plants show fasciation; it occurs among annuals, perennials, shrubs, and trees. Mostly it takes a form—several of the stems c make an abnormally wide stem, flowers usually develop in som abnormal fashion.

One mature plant of the perennial double-flowered, white variety 'Bristol Fairy' will make a billowy cloud about 4 feet wide and high. Annual gypsophila (G. elegans), a bouquet filler, is easy to grow from seed sown in the open ground from late spring into summer.

The crisp flowers, spiky form, and varying stem lengths of snapdragons are equally satisfying in borders and arrangements. Available in many colors, snapdragons combine superbly with delphiniums and other plants with spikelike form such as larkspur and penstemon.

Following are other plants you can grow for cutting, with suggestions for using them in the garden:

Fernleaf yarrow (Achillea filipendulina). Chrome yellow flowers in flat clusters in summer, fall; also attractive when dried. The 4 to 5-foot plants make good temporary screens, or fillers in large borders.

Astilbe. Plumelike flower clusters in pink, red, white, from May through July. Plant in part shade with ferns, hellebore, hosta.

Carnations. Many colors; bloom late spring into summer. Grow in pots or tubs from which you can move them into bare spots in borders. Stake to keep upright.

Coreopsis. Yellow flowers of perennial kinds bloom from late spring to fall. Excellent tall fillers in wide shrub borders.

Cosmos. Summer and fall-blooming annuals with daisylike flowers in many colors. Splendid quick fillers in borders.

Growing ivy on a gate

The secret is the swinging planter boxe

As long as there are chain link fences and gates, gardeners will try to hide or disguise them.

Hiding a fence isn't tough. Shrubs can screen it off. Vines will clamber up, over, and through it. Plant some ivy at the base, and in a few years the fence disguises itself as a thin, straight-up mass of vegetation—as shown at the left of the photograph above, where you'd never guess that underneath the ivy a chain link fence is hiding.

Some less-known rhododendron to see in bloom this month

Initial success is guaranteed new roses that appear as All-America selections; the best remain best sellers, while the others quietly drop out of prominence.

Success comes harder to rhododendrons. They make their quiet debuts, are seen at rhododendron shows, receive awards, and attract considerable attention among rhododendron fanciers without creating much stir in the general gardening world.

There are, in fact, many splendid new rhododendrons; there are also many splendid rhododendrons, not new or not even recent, that have failed to receive the attention they deserve simply because a few rhododendron varieties have so thoroughly blanketed the field.

Consider some of these "other" rhododendrons when you plan your garden—the less widely sold varieties that may offer better flowers or better plant form than the old, established favorites; or that may merely offer something different, something as good as (but less familiar than) the popularity winners.

Here are some that you may wish to look at now while they are in bloom. All are available in northern California rhododendron country if you do some looking; most are fairly common in the Northwest.

RED RHODODENDRONS

For years the best-selling red rhododendron has been 'The Hon. Jean Marie de Montague,' a variety whose virtues include compact plant form, dark green foliage, and a profusion of large trusses of scarlet flowers. It is a relatively easy plant to propagate and grow. The latest American Rhododendron Society yearbook lists its quality ratings at 3 for flowers, 4 for plant characteristics (5 is highest).

Here are some other good red varieties:

'Britannia.' An old variety, but a great plant. New quality rating is 4 for flowers, 4 for plant. Compact shrub with large, rather pale green leaves that may yellow in full sun. Has been scarce because cuttings are hard to root. Hardy to −5°.

'David.' Rating of 4/3 suggests flowers somewhat better than those of 'Jean Marie,' plant somewhat less good. Fairly new as rhododendrons go; won an award in 1939. Hardy to 5°.

'Earl of Athlone.' Rated 5/2; superb flowers on a plant of open, spreading habit. Cuttings hard to root, plants often grafted. Plant rates better than 2 if on own roots. Hardy to 0°.

'Leo.' Fairly new (award in 1948) English rhododendron rated 5/3. C plant, large leaves, large truss berry-red. Seems destined to b best seller. Hardy to −5°.

'Mars.' Another old variety with of 4/3. Slow grower and needs even in the Northwest. Hardy to

PINK RHODODENDRONS

The average gardener's standard lence has been 'Pink Pearl,' certa of the most popular rhododendr ties in the West. Flowers are large trusses, open soft pink and fade blush pink. Plant is a fast, op grower, hardy to −5°. Latest qua ing is 3/3.

Other rhododendrons of similar

'Anna Rose Whitney.' Quality this one is 4/3. Flowers are dee than those of 'Pink Pearl.' May consider plant quality higher tha a big, fast growing shrub but com with outstanding large leaves. I hardy to 5° and is easy to grow probably become a best seller.

'Cotton Candy.' New rating is high 4/4. Large, soft pink flower a tall, conical truss. Plant is a grower of medium size with lar green leaves. Hardy to 0°. Like the ing, probably headed for best-sell

'Jan Dekens.' Quality rating is but most gardeners would not fi Dekens' inferior to 'Pink Pearl' in They would almost certainly note usually large, handsome leaves. mind that foliage is noticeable a and flowers last only a month Hardy to 0°.

'Mrs. Furnival.' At 5/5, the rated pink. 'Mrs. Furnival' is n novelty nor a neglected variety variety that everyone should see b before he plants a pink rhododend not the biggest, the brightest, or th iest, but compactness and hand balanced proportions may make best, as its ratings would seem to i Plant is hardy to −10°.

WHITE RHODODENDRONS

White rhododendrons have to be against 'Loder's White'; this stands alone in its class with a ra 5/5. Pale pink buds open to large slightly scented flowers. A heavy producer and easy to grow. Other in general production can't match though many have merit for one te rhododendrons to consider:

OF LITTLEWORTH.' Rated at 4/3. re very large, in a tall truss, dark purple spotting. Plant is ht, and spreading. Plants are —5°.

KER.' Rating is 5/4. Plants not available as others mentioned, some looking for. White flowers on stain in throats form very ne-shaped truss. Plant is quite us, upright, with very large (to ves. Hardy to 0°.

OF PEARL.' Rated 4/3. This va- sport of 'Pink Pearl' and like y respect except flower color. pen palest pink and fade white, faint spotting in the throat. 0°.

'PEARL' ('Halopeanum'). Rating vigorous old variety. Flowers h pink flush, fade pure white. , cone-shaped. Hardy to 5°.

blues—or rather the closest ap- to pure blue—in rhododendrons found in the small-leafed, small- kinds. Among the large-flowered, sed varieties, the standard has years been 'BLUE PETER,' an old at has stood up surprisingly well ings with a score of 4/3. Flowers lavender-blue with a dark purple illed at the edges, in cone-shaped Shrub is medium compact, with ssy leaves that tend to droop. —10°.

ORD.' Not superior in flower color to 'Blue Peter,' but with out- large, glossy leaves. Plant is tall rous, hardy to —5°. Rating is 4/3.

NSIGN.' Resembles 'Blue Peter' ms later, has somewhat better it. Rated 4/4. Hardy to —10°.

Y.' A rather new rhododendron in of 'Blue Peter.' Flowers lavender- h brown blotch, in tall, compact Some people think it a purer blue ue Peter.' Plant dense, compact, ght green leaves narrower than 'Blue Peter.' Rated 4/3 and —5°.

Hard to root, and not very well n spite of several awards. Has y handsome dark green leaves on m-sized plant. Large flowers in a me-shaped cluster are blue-violet dark purple stain at the throat. s 3/4 (some judges think it should h higher) and plant is hardy to nts scarce.

RHODODENDRON

SPLENDOUR,' an old favorite, still alone in the large-flowered royal lassification. Frilled purple flowers rker blotch at the throat. Rating nd plant is hardy to —10°.

These plants like to grow in crevices

Many kinds of plants grow in crevices. You often see weeds and even ornamentals growing out of cracks in sidewalks and walls. As long as there is a bit of soil to nurture roots, and a way for moisture to reach them, the plants will grow.

You find charming examples of crevice planting in ancient, weathered walls, steps, and paving in older gardens, as in Florence, Italy, where we took the photographs on this page.

Some of these plantings were deliberate, but just as often they were happenstance—with the informal, whimsical results seen in the two sets of steps to the right. But even in younger gardens rock and plants can look as though they had been together a long time. A rock wall planted only a year or so might well appear much like the one above—assuming, of course, that the rocks have a soft coloring and texture that comes with age.

You can plant a dry rock wall in two ways: as you place the stones, or after the wall is built. If you use the first method (considered best), place a layer of rocks; set out the plants, with roots

One house, one coat. Our new theory of stains.

For years, the American way of staining exterior wood has consisted of applying two coats of stain to every one exterior surface.

Which is all right. Except we figured it would also be nice if somebody came up with some good one-coat exterior stains.

Which we did. They're called Rez Double-Tone® stains.

Rez Double-Tones are extra-heavily pigmented stains.

They give you about twice the hiding power of other stains, yet cost no more. One coat covers smooth or rough-sawn siding—sinks deeply into the wood and dries to a flat finish without disguising the natural wood texture.

If you're an architect, a builder, a painter or a homeowner and you support our one house, one coat theory of stains, send for our free color selection brochure. Write us:

At last the right speeds for trimming and edging your lawn. From Toastmaster.

Most trimmers and edgers are combined in one tool. Sounds handy—but it means the cutting blade revolves too slow to trim right, too fast to edge right. But now Toastmaster has a separate tool for each job—each with precisely the correct speed to do its special job right: 18,000 RPM for the trimmer blade, 4,550 RPM for the edger. Both new Toastmaster tools have specially tempered, reversible, double-edge blades, and adjustable auxiliary handles.

There are some people around who want to spoil woman's greatest indoor sport.

Shopping

It's hard to believe, but there are some fairly influential people around today who think the government ought to do your shopping for you.

It seems they think you're overwhelmed by all those different brands of soap . . . and all those cake mixes like Pineapple Supreme, Swiss Chocolate and Angel Food. Or, maybe just not bright enough to make up your mind.

So, they want the government to restrict the number of brands on the supermarket shelf . . . and standardize their contents under grade labels . . . Grade A, Grade B and so on. They figure that would make shopping easier for you.

Of course, if all that happens, you may never make something like Black Forest Torte or Venetian Roll.

Because what manufacturer is going to knock himself out to create new and better products if he can't use them to compete with? Restrictions don't stimulate competition. They tend to make all products the same. And that's not the way this country got prosperous.

DARROW M. WATT

These are clivias. Deep orange and yellow flowers in spring. Fine house plants. In California (coast and coastal valleys) they grow outdoors, bloom with azaleas, take same conditions. Clivias will be given to finishers of contest described below

For garden contestants, two clivias

This year, every Sunset reader who enters and finishes our summer-fall garden contest will receive a pair of clivia plants. (Last year, we called the gardens "baseball gardens," because they are planted, flourish, and are pulled out within the baseball season; and the premiums then were baseball plants—Euphorbia obesa.)

The clivias that this year's finishers get will be two years old. Clivias usually do not bloom until their fourth year (the ones pictured are five years old). Then, they produce more flowers each spring.

The idea of the contest: You plan and plant a six-months garden in the spring, and make it as good-looking, abundant, and comfortable as you can. You take snapshots of it in the beginning and during the season. In July, by postcard survey, we will ask for dates when a Sunset photographer might come to photograph your garden. We'll also give you a chance to drop out if you wish. Then between October 6 and 21 you send in your own snapshots and a report on what you did, what you planted and how it fared.

A team of judges will look at all reports and snapshots and score them. They'll be looking for evidence of imagination, resourcefulness, and heroic horticultural and architectural accomplishment.

Those entrants that get the greatest number of points—in the adults' division and in the children's division (16 and under)—will win cash prizes and nursery merchandise orders.

You can see some of the best baseball gardens from 1967 starting on page 104 of last month's Sunset.

To enter, send your name and address (and age, if 16 or under) to Summer-Fall Gardens, Sunset Magazine, Menlo Park, Calif. 94025—before June 15. You will be sent an entry number and more details.

JEANNETTE GROSSMAN

These are double, yellow-flowered nasturtiums. Nectar in flowers attracts hummingbirds. Leaves round with long stems

Nasturtiums reward you

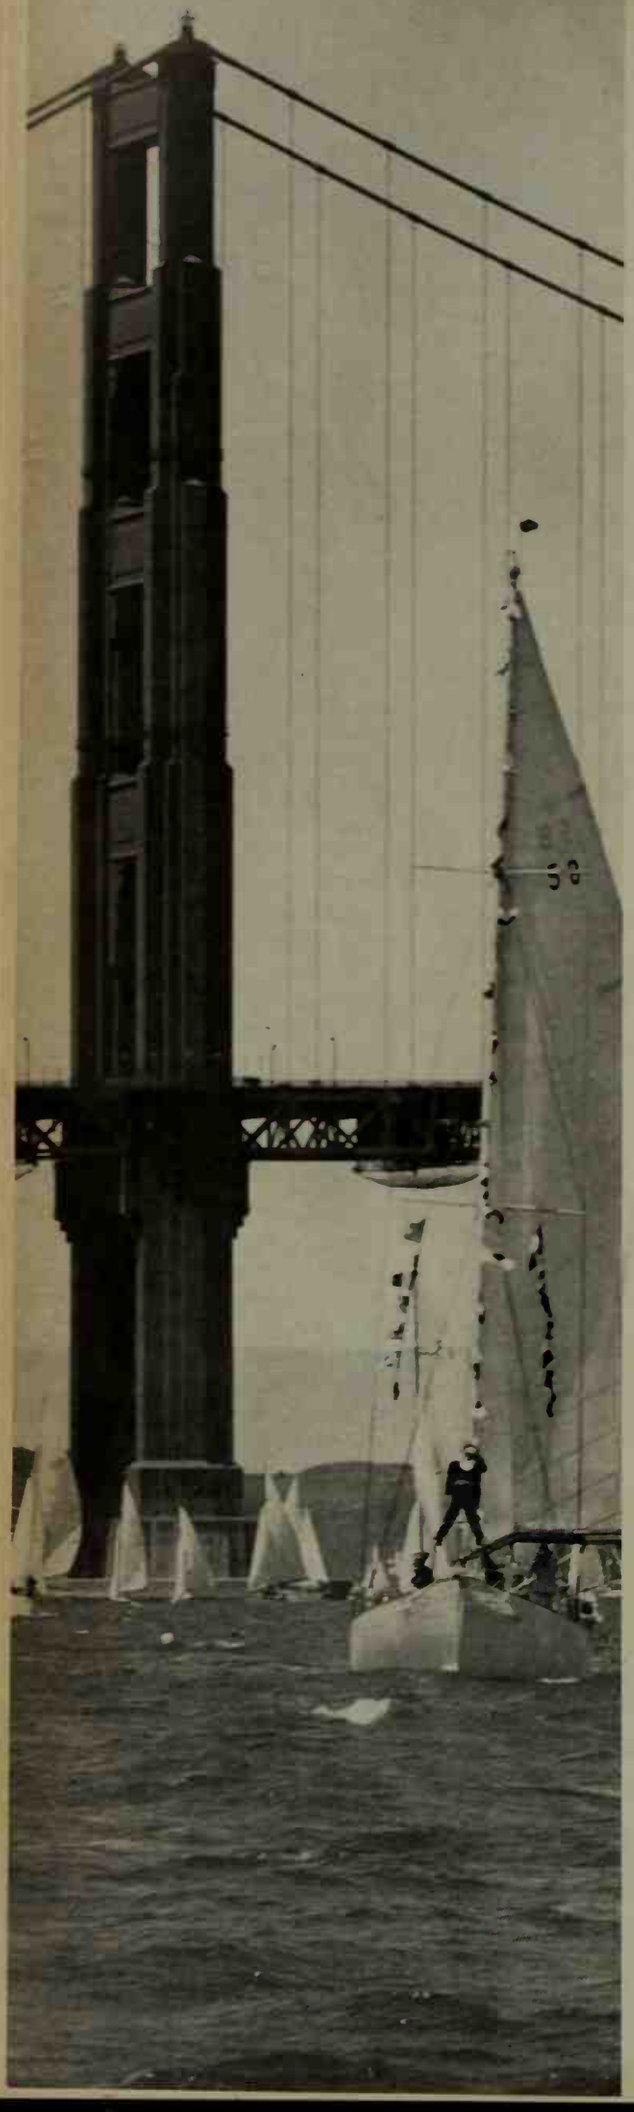
Sow nasturtium seed now, and in about two months you'll be rewarded with plants that have attractive foliage and give a colorful display of long-stemmed flowers with a refreshing sweet scent. Both leaves and flowers are useful in arrangements, and they have a watercresslike flavor that can add piquancy to green salads and other foods (for a recipe, see the July 1966 Sunset, page 129).

Nasturtiums grow well in full sun and seem to revel in heat. However, early May sowing in hot dry areas may be a little late unless you give them some shade —at least during part of the day. Plant the seeds in soil that's well drained but not too rich, or you'll get all leaves and few flowers. Keep soil moist. Spray to control black aphids.

Seed racks in nurseries and garden supply stores usually carry a good supply of both climbing kinds (to 6 feet) and compact dwarf kinds (to 15 inches). Flowers are either single, double, or semidouble. They come in many rich colors ranging through red-brown, maroon, red, orange, yellow, and creamy white. Most often the seed packets include mixed flower colors; however, you can also buy certain kinds that are all one color.

Use the climbing or trailing kinds on slopes, or plant them at the top of a wall and let them trail over. If you want them to climb on a fence or wall, supply string or wire for the leaf stalks to coil around and thus lead the plants upward. Or let them trail from hanging baskets. The dwarf kinds make excellent compact plants in containers or in flower borders.

When flowers fade, you usually get an abundant seed crop; allowed to stay on the ground the seeds will germinate, and you'll probably have nasturtiums around for years. However, if you keep the flowers picked before seeds form, you'll prolong the bloom season—usually up to the first frosts.



"Slightly different west of the Rockies"

In the office of Sunset's publisher hangs a large relief map of the Un States. The whole right side is relatively smooth; that's the East Middle West. The left side, from the Rocky Mountains all the way the Pacific, is generously wrinkled.

That mountain-wrinkled West is the mainland territory that Su serves: the seven Western states that lie west of the Rockies. In 1 we also added Hawaii, because it has an affinity for new ideas in liv that are later adopted wholeheartedly in the West.

A hundred years ago, the great Western mountain barrier seriou limited contact between the West and the East. Western communi had to look to each other for mutual support, and the cities of Seat Portland, San Francisco, and Los Angeles grew up as centers to se them. These cities are still major Western centers for distribution goods, along with Spokane, Boise, Salt Lake City, San Diego, Phoeni Immigrants from the East notice differences along our Pacific slo And Sunset's service to you is based on these differences.

Most important is climate. Because the Rockies effectively cut us from Great Plains weather influences, our winters are generally somew warmer and wetter and our summers mostly are milder and drier; n the Pacific Ocean, the climate is moderated by warming ocean curre These factors give much of the West a wide choice in garden plants more greenery and more flowers through the year. They also allow us take for granted certain locally grown foods that are special delica elsewhere.

Our houses tend to be more open in the mild-climate West, and we spend a good deal of time outdoors all year. And with a choice of s coast, mountain, forest, and desert very near where most of us live, find picnicking, camping, fishing, hiking, and boating readily available

Thus the West served by Sunset, which continues to be a semisepar region economically, is also a proving ground for a new pattern of ho and family living. Both these aspects of the West are reasons for Sun Our job is simply to help Westerners enjoy the special opportunities (a solve some of the special problems) of living in the West.

The jet plane is shrinking the time barrier between West and East. I it doesn't diminish the difference in weather and geography, and therefo in our ways of living. That difference is still the basis for Sunset's serv to both reader and advertiser. As the French say, Vive la différence!

WINDOW ON THE WEST: Opening Day

Big sloop, pennants flying, leads a sailboat parade under the Golden Gate Bridge. It's Opening Day (April 28 this year), and the new racing season is under way. It won't end, really, until next opening day. Weather is mild enough on San Francisco Bay for racing to continue right through winter. Opening Day on Puget Sound is May 4. Organized racing on the Sound stops with Labor Day, but sailing doesn't. You'll find hardy sailors in impromptu races on brisk days right into late autumn and again in the spring. In Southern California sailing is an all-year affair, as it is in Hawaii and on several of Arizona's reservoir-lakes.

The Cover Story

Poolside parties are great fun for the guests. But they're not always easy for the owners when there are no facilities for changing and no handy arrangement for storing, preparing, or serving food and drink. The poolhouse on the cover provides for all this admirably (see page 72). Photograph is by Glenn Christiansen

*East Coast POE. Price slightly higher in it

To anyone who bought a second car in the last month:

Pity.

Oh, the shame of it all! If only you had waited a little longer!

Because we just started a whole new ballgame in the second car league.

It's called America. And—sufferin' self-recrimination! — it's the first car designed to be a second car.

With a "his and hers" automatic/manual transmission. Powerful front-wheel drive. Big-car riding liquid suspension. A roomier interior than a Rolls-Royce Silver Shadow. Up to 30 mile[s] gallon. Thick floor carpeting. [sc] brakes. Etcetera, etcetera.

And a price—$1845*—[at] makes America the low[-] priced car with an autom[a]tic transmission.

When it comes to buyin[g an] old-style second car, there['s] new adage: he who hesitate[s] saved.

America by Austin. The first car built to be a second car.

As a reward for jumping to a suspended ball, or for swimming around the pool underside-up with the trainer standing on his belly, the pilot whale (named Willy) was tossed a few mackerel, squid, and smelt, which he swallowed without chewing.

In another pool, two dolphins made happy squawking noises while they leapt in tandem, seemingly enjoying the public display of their talents.

Splendid view of Alaska Range is part of hiker's reward. A Sunset editor on Sable Mountain scans slopes for Dall sheep

Getting face to face with mountain sheep

It isn't difficult to see Dall sheep in Mount McKinley National Park, but getting close to them is another matter. Their world is rugged, the ridges and steep slopes of Alaska Range mountains. The Sunset team parked near the East Fork of Toklat River and began the climb upward, not sure the effort would be rewarded.

It took 2 hours of whacking through brush and climbing a near-vertical sheep trail to reach the crest. There they saw the green leeward slopes and, by day's end, the sheep too.

Sometimes sheep were above, sometimes below, and frequently just out of normal camera range. But finally our photographer was able to get quite close, to within 20 feet—and snap the young ram pictured on page 66.

A diamond is a girl's best friend.

This diamond is on the membership card of the California State Automobile Association. And it's a real gem.

What happens if your car conks out and there you are all alone, feminine and helpless? Never mind where, or what time of day or night. Just call the nearest AAA garage. A man will come rushing to your rescue.

If your battery's dead, he'll give it a boost. If the tire's flat, he'll put on the spare. If you've flooded the engine, he'll unflood it for you.

And if the trouble can't be fixed on the spot, he'll give you a tow.

All that—no charge. All that—just by flashing your diamond.

All that, and that's just the beginning. We'll also help you plan your next vacation, handle every detail of travel abroad, recommend hotels and motels, make and guarantee your reservations, provide road maps and tour guides, help you with any traffic problem, make available the best car insurance in the business—and send you our nice magazine every month besides.

How can we afford it? We're a nonprofit organization. One of the 238 affiliated AAA clubs in the United States and Canada, serving more than 11 million members.

Give us a call, or drop by the office. It takes about 12 minutes to sign up.

CALIFORNIA STATE AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION (WE'RE THE AAA IN NORTHERN AND CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND NEVADA). CHECK THE WHITE PAGES OF YOUR PHONE BOOK UNDER "AAA CALIF. STATE AUTO ASSN."

And we'll make reservations for you clear across the continent. Free style. Channel swimmer? There's a TV set in every room. Get the picture?

Memorial State Park, with its swimming beach, camping, and picnic sites, makes the grim events of the winter of 1846-47 seem far distant. Yet it was only 50 years ago this month that three survivors, Martha "Patty" Reed and Eliza and Frances Donner, squinted into the sun and were photographed (see right) with the governors of Nevada and California at the dedication of the Donner Party Monument.

On June 9 California officials plan a rededication of the monument on its semicentennial in conjunction with the centennial of the nearby town of Truckee, California. At 1 P.M. in Truckee a parade will begin a march to the monument in Donner Memorial State Park. Participants will include a band, a dancing group from the Pyramid Lake Indian Reservation, vintage cars of about 50 years ago, and a contingent of mounted horsemen.

The monument was erected on the site of the Breen family shack and the Keseberg lean-to. Its stone base stands 22 feet high, the depth of the snow during that fateful winter—as documented by the stumps of trees cut to that height by the Donner party and still standing at the turn of the century.

Elsewhere in the park, a museum of history displays relics of Indians of the area and early pioneers, and mementos of the railroad line that crosses the Sierra at Donner Pass. On display near the museum is a steam tractor built b iel Best, which once hauled cut lu the eastern slope of the Sierra.

down that lonesome road. heck your gas. Tighten your elt. Say a little prayer. And you never left home.

t all's well in a SAAB, the f-the-ordinary small car from en. (Just point her down the nd let her fly.)

AB is out of the ordinary be- it was designed by aircraft eers.

cause SAAB has true aero- nic design the faster it goes, the tighter it hugs the road. The easier it is to handle.

SAAB is also out of the ordinary because it has front-wheel drive.

Because SAAB has front-wheel drive it doesn't push you around the way other small cars do. It pulls you around curves. Around corners. Out of skids. And out of trouble. (Most ordinary small cars don't give, even as extras, all the standard SAAB safety features.)

Now what about the engine in the world's safest small car?

SAAB's new 4-cycle, V-4 engine packs so much power that you can go from zero to 50 mph in ten seconds. (Push it to the floor and hit over ninety.)

As an optional extra, our V-4 engine has a LIFETIME GUARANTEE.

So that's why you can be sure that your SAAB will never leave you out in the middle of nowhere.

SAAB

You can drive it like a big car.

It takes trips other small cars shouldn't take.

Texans make a colorful show of HemisFair

Since opening day, April 6, over a million visitors have strolled the flag-bedecked promenades of HemisFair in San Antonio. Landscaped waterways meander through a parklike maze of pavilions and plazas, and broad, tree-lined walkways crisscross the 92-acre grounds.

On a three-day visit last month, we were favorably impressed with the new "world's fair." Among the many spectaculars, we particularly recommend the show at the U. S. Pavilion's Confluence Theater, and Alexander Girard's imaginative exhibit of Latin American folk art. Altogether there are more than 50 pavilions on the grounds.

The fairgrounds open each morning at 9 and remain open until midnight. Most of the governmental pavilions are open from 10 A.M. until 10 P.M. These and the other exhibit halls are air-conditioned, which is a help considering the nature of the central Texas summer. Evenings are the best time for strolling. Temperatures after dark are pleasantly mild, and the fair becomes a fantasy of light and color.

HemisFair closes on October 6. If you are considering a visit, write Visitor Services, Box H, San Antonio 78206. Back will come literature on events, prices, lodging.

You'd be surprised what special services Gulf offers you vacation drivers.

For instance, we have a service called Tourgide® to send you free maps that are clearly marked to show you the best route for your trip. Free information about where to stay and eat. And sightseeing suggestions.

While you're traveling, you can use your Gulf Travel Card at any of the 900 or so Holiday Inns for rooms and meals.

Then there's the problem of finding clean places to freshen up. Wherever you travel, you'll find Gulf restrooms neat and clean, because Gulf girls called Tourguards regularly check them to make sure of it.

As for your car needs, you'll find Gulf stations in every state (plus 5,000 British-American stations in Canada) where you can use your Gulf Travel Card.

If you don't have a Gulf Travel Card, you can get an application for one at any Gulf station. And pick up a Tourgide request card at the same time.

WALTER J. HICKEL
GOVERNOR

STATE OF ALASKA
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR
JUNEAU

April 17, 1968

Mr. L. W. Lane, Jr.
Publisher
Sunset Magazine
Menlo Park, California 94025

Dear Bill:

As you and other members of the Sunset staff know, I have long felt that the State of Alaska should become a part of Sunset's editorial service area.

So I am very pleased to learn of your decision to make Alaska a part of the Sunset family of Western states.

Mrs. Hickel and I have for many years enjoyed Sunset in our home, even though you have not encouraged Alaska circulation.

As a businessman, and now as Governor of Alaska, I have felt that Sunset's editorial subject matter and Western regional service have strong appeal for families in Alaska. From the visits many Sunset people have made to Alaska over the years, I know you are aware that our way of life is closely related to life in the other Western states that you serve.

Sunset has been a firm friend to Alaska and a leading authority on travel within our state, and I have long been aware of Sunset's knowledge of Alaskan economic growth and how important this growth is to the Western and Pacific Ocean areas served by Sunset.

On behalf of the people in my State, we look forward to increasingly close ties between Alaska and Sunset, and we extend a cordial invitation to all Westerners to visit their 49th stat

Warm personal regards.

Sincerely yours,

Walter J. Hickel

Walter J. Hickel
Governor

ALASKA joins California, Utah, Arizona, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Idaho, and Hawaii to boost Sunset's editorial service area to 9 Western states

For almost 40 years now, Sunset has been edited as The Magazine of Western Living with its circulation primarily confined to a limited number of Western states. Circulation outside this area was and is discouraged, chiefly by charging a higher subscription rate and with no discount for long-term subscriptions. In all states east of the Rockies, Sunset is not sold on newsstands.

The states that make up Sunset's basic circulation area are as different as Hawaii and Utah, Oregon and Arizona, California and Idaho, but they do have many things in common. Among these are a recent frontier heritage, modern urban and suburban living next door to wilderness, an interest in and an acceptance of innovations in daily living.

Why have we waited so long for Alaska? For a long time we simply felt that too much of Sunset's editorial content wouldn't apply adequately to the realities of Alaskan living. We felt that not enough of Sunset's how-to-do-it articles would be useful to Alaska readers.

But times change and conditions change.

Alaska's climate hasn't changed, of course. It's still exactly what it's always been, mild and moist in Southeastern, not so mild but not too difficult along the southern coast, and with winters that encourage tall tales in the Interior and the Arctic.

Other things have changed. The jets have almost wiped out the historic time gap between Alaska and the lower mainland 48. Air freight has brought fresh produce from California in hours, couturier fashions from New York overnight.

Alaska is still the frontier, but suburban Anchorage today is definitely not the frontier. Life at home in Alaska is changing, not just in Anchorage, but life at home in Valdez, Cordova, Sitka, Haines, Fairbanks, Wrangell, Juneau. And as it does, Sunset's how-to-do-it articles on house planning, remodeling, landscaping, cooking, entertaining, all will prove increasingly useful to increasing numbers of Alaskans.

Alaska has always been a part of the American West, and for the last 70 years, so has Sunset. Alaska really got its start in 1898 when Nome and the Klondike opened everything up. Sunset got its start the very same year.

Sunset's Alaska readers receive Sunset's Pacific Northwest edition. Much of its content fits Alaskan conditions. Not all of it does, as Alaskans will very well understand.

But the garden information we publish can be most helpful throughout Southeastern—from Ketchikan to Skagway.

Our cooking and entertaining articles are based on Western foods, including Pacific salmon and Alaska king crab.

Our house planning and remodel planning articles should be stimulating and useful to families throughout Alaska. So should the many craft articles we publish.

Our travel articles concentrate on travel in the Western states (including this month's lead article on Mount McKinley National Park), but Sunset's issues carry additional travel reports from almost anywhere in the world, and Alaskans are great travelers.

Until now Sunset's subscription price in Alaska has been $5 each year (the same rate we charge in all states except California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Idaho, Utah, Arizona, Hawaii).

Starting with this June 1968 issue, Sunset's subscription price to Alaskans drops to $3 per year (two years $5, three years $6, four years $7).

The lead article in this new June Sunset, quite appropriately we feel, is on Mount McKinley National Park. It is the work of three different Sunset editors who visited the park in 1966 and 1967 to hike, explore, make notes, and take photographs.

To our present Alaska readers and the many new Alaska readers we hope to serve in the years ahead, we send our best wishes. We hope you will enjoy forthcoming issues of Sunset and will find them both stimulating and useful.

In the days of Indians, voyageurs trappers, the canoe was a classic co ance for wilderness explorers. More a century later, it's still hard to be travel through watery hinterlands from roads, dams, and motorboats.

Many canoes built today have flotation tanks built in, usually in the bow and stern. Even when swamped and full of water, these craft will support two men and all their gear without sinking.

Canoes range from about 14 feet long, weighing 50 to 70 pounds and carrying 400 to 700 pounds, up to 16 to 18 feet long, weighing 80 to 100 pounds and carrying 800 to 1,200 pounds. For a 14 to 16-foot canoe of good design and workmanship, you can expect to pay from $175 to $250.

In many of the West's cities you can rent canoes by the day or week—look under Boat rentals in your telephone book. Costs vary but are usually quite reasonable: $12 to $20 a week, which often

WHERE TO CANOE

Lakes that penetrate back country and moderately slow rivers through wilderness particularly attract canoe explorers. Rivers you do not know well are tricky because of the uncertainty of what may lie around the next bend. Until you are experienced and confident in your ability to run white water, avoid raging rivers.

Though most Western national parks are too up and down to provide placid canoeing rivers (an exception, if established, will be the proposed Redwoods National Park in northern California), some parks —Olympic, Yosemite, Yellowstone—have quiet lakes, big and small, where yo canoe on waters prohibited to motor (In general, it's wise to keep well from motorboats because their wak set a canoe bobbing violently.)

Many high mountain lakes in the cades and the Sierra have road acce launching, but offer far shores dev civilization's intrusions. Hundreds of and dozens of streams and rivers in W ington, Oregon, and northern Cali remain fairly remote.

The lower portions of several rive the west side of Washington's Oly Peninsula offer fine canoeing, as do peninsula's Lake Ozette. Canoeing o water is increasingly popular in Wa ton's Puget Sound where there are administered small islands for can Many rivers, or long portions of th Washington, eastern Oregon, and flow smoothly enough through inter country to provide grand canoeing e ences. The rivers of Oregon's Willa Valley, and most of California's R River, can offer excellent canoeing.

The Bolex 155 Macrozoom lets you make professional-style home movies in the camera instead of at the lab. First of all, you get the Multitrix, an incredibly versatile titling device which allows you to shoot your own titles separately, or superimposed over whatever you're shooting.

Then you get the benefit of the unique Bolex Macrozoom 8.5 to 30mm f/1.9 lens, which lets you get within one inch of your subject and still be able to focus. Three new Western guide book

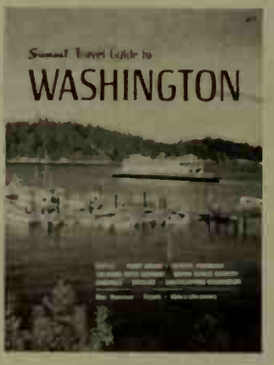
Some travel books end up as coffee table decorations. Others get used — they lie open at your elbow as you plan a vacation trip, go with you in the car, get referred to again in hotel, motel, cottage, or camp.

The three new Sunset books pictured here are of the second stripe. They are meant to be of service. Each is illustrated throughout with black-and-white photographs and maps, but these are mainly adjuncts to the practical how-to-get-there and what-to-do-there text.

Price of each of the books is $1.95.



Sunset Travel Guide to Washington. A decade ago Lane Books published Discovery Trips in Washington—a potpourri of suggestions based on Sunset articles. Just before the Seattle World's Fair in 1963, this book, a like one on Oregon, and material on adjacent states and on British Columbia were all combined to form a thick volume titled Pacific Northwest and British Columbia.

Now the Washington and Oregon information has been revamped, updated, expanded, and published in separate books.

In its 96 pages, the book on Washington sweeps the state geographically: Seattle, Puget Sound and the San Juans, Southwest Corner, the Cascades, Grand Coulee Country, and so on. Two additional chapters reach into Idaho for a report on the lake country just across the boundary, and into British Columbia for a glance at Vancouver and Victoria.

For hikers there are descriptions of forest and beach trails in the Olympic Peninsula and other places; for shumpikers, side-road suggestions such as the old stage road over the Colockum pass between Ellensburg and Wenatchee; for the average touring family, scores of other varied suggestions.

Steam passenger train climbs over itself on Spring Canyon's famous "Corkscrew Loop."

Ride an 1880 Steam Train to Roaring Camp & Big Trees

You can still ride an old-fashioned steam train through redwood country on California's historic Roaring Camp & Big Trees Narrow-Gauge Railroad, just seventy miles south of San Francisco. This quaint backwoods railroad is still untouched by the Jet Age and operates regular passenger service with steam locomotives and equipment actually dating back to the 1880's and 90's.

Passenger trains depart from Felton Station, a quaint narrow-gauge depot built in 1880 and located about ½ mile southeast of the tiny Santa Cruz mountain community of Felton. On the five mile roundtrip route, you pass through the first redwoods to be preserved for posterity (back in 1867), up the steepest railroad grades in western America, and over a number of spectacular trestles spanning redwood-forested canyons.

You can stopover at Bear Mountain, Cowell Redwoods State Park or Roaring Camp to picnic, returning on a later train. At Roaring Camp, while your steam locomotive takes on water, there is ample time to visit an 1880 General Store and an old-fashioned caboose restaurant.

Passenger service is operated daily throughout the year and, during the summer months, steam trains leave Felton Station every hour from 11 A.M. to 4 P.M. Roundtrip fare is $2.80 with half fare for ages 5 through 15. Children under 5 are free.

A copy of the railroad's latest timetable can be obtained free by writing: Roaring Camp & Big Trees Narrow-Gauge Railroad, Felton, Santa Cruz County, California.

YOU AND YOUR CAMERA

If you are headed for Mount McKinley National Park and have thought about purchasing a camera, now's the time to do so. If you have considered a telephoto lens for the camera you now have, by all means buy it before you visit the park. If you bring no camera, at least come to the park with a pair of binoculars. With even a minor interest in wildlife, you'll find camera and binoculars invaluable. For a few suggestions about camera equipment, see page 60.

THE WILDLIFE

Grizzly bear (Ursus horribilis). Grizzlies are among the park's most difficult animals to photograph, not because they are hard to find but because they are potentially so dangerous. You will see the bears most predictably along 5 miles of road in Sable Pass, the park's only closed area. You are not allowed to leave the road or hike through this restricted area, but you park's numerous ponds and lakes are important nesting for waterfowl, some of which find their way to Wash- on, Oregon, and California in winter.

THE PARK ROAD

McKinley Park Road, actually a continuation of Denali Highway, goes 93 miles from the park entrance to Wonder Lake; it continues 4 more miles outside the park beyond Camp Denali to Kantishna, a mining town ghost. The road's highest point is 3,980 feet at Highway Pass, and the average elevation is about 2,500 feet.

Everywhere along the road to Wonder Lake you can expect to see wildlife

Most of it is gravel, except for about 15 miles of blacktop near the park entrance. Along the way the road serpentines through forests of black and white spruce, crosses low mountain passes, and open valleys and slopes. Anywhere along it you can expect to see wildlife.

HIKING

The few trails in the park are mostly short paths near the hotel. Elsewhere serious hikers strike out over the tundra or along gravel river bottoms.

Subaretic tundra in the park is of two general kinds, wet and dry. The wet bogs of bottom lands are thickly grown with willows and bushy species that make hiking difficult. On slopes, however, where drainage is good, low-growing alpine tundra is springy and easy to hike over. Looking almost like an immense golf course, mile after mile of rolling tundra offers an open invitation to go exploring.

An easy day-hike through particularly beautiful country is along the trailless west shore of Wonder Lake. You can fish along the way and, if the clouds cooperate, photograph Mount McKinley where it looks close enough to touch even though it's 25 miles away.

If the waters are low, adventurers might like the trek from Eielson Visitor Center up the Thorofare River to Sunrise Glacier, or the long trip across the braided, shallow channels of the Thorofare, around Mount Eielson and up Glacier Creek. Glacier Creek flows right next to one flank of gigantic Muldrow Glacier. Do not attempt to walk on the glacier unless you

To get the biggest impact from the fewest plants, try to saturate several strategic garden locations. Concentrate plants near heavily traveled walks, alongside entries, in containers on the patio, underneath garden-view windows. Plant close together for immediate effect; allow growing room if you want them to last longer.

When shopping for annuals in pots, look for those just coming into bloom—unless you need flowers that same day. Beware of woody, overgrown plants that may have passed their prime; such clearance-sale annuals are not to be confused with the plants shown here, purposely grown to be sold in bloom.

Sky window and trees

To take full advantage of a eucalyptus grove, architect F. Malcolm George opened u the roof as well as the wall in his own home, winner of an Honor Award in 1967-19 A.I.A. - Sunset Western Home Awards. The roof-climbing window is its central then

The sky window idea

You look out on clouds and treetops. You enjoy a grand wash of daylight

he Western house continues to go through an opening-up rocess.

)ne of the earliest developments along this line was the sliding lass door to a patio. Another, the so-called "picture window," ontinued to grow larger; and windows in general increased in umber and in size, in both custom and mass-built houses. 'lerestories were used to pull daylight in above the standard eiling heights. Ribbon windows filled end walls and stairwells o wash walls with light and offer outside views.

nd then, with house walls well opened up, architects began o see new possibilities—skylights could pierce the roof and ring overhead daylight into interior spaces for special effects.

Now we have noticed increased use of another source of daylighting that, for lack of a better name, we call a sky window—a kind of mixture of skylight, window wall, and clerestory.

Sometimes it takes the form of a window wall extension angling up above the eave line and becoming a part of the roof itself: for example, the window in the color photograph at left is not unlike a window in an artist's studio or loft. At other times it may be a large, high-up window for a view of trees or sky, replacing the normal ceiling. Here and on the next two pages, we show four different houses with sky-turned windows.

Whether it's legally a skylight or a window depends on its location in the house and the interpretation of applicable building code requirements.

If the opening is classified as a skylight, you can use an approved clear plastic or a wired glass. Restrictions are mainly to insure the safety of persons on the roof who might walk or fall into a skylight, and to protect those inside against breaking glass. The wire holds the glass together and prevents a shower of sharp pieces in the event of breakage by impact or fire. In some situations, laminated glass may also be an acceptable overhead glazing material.

The wire mesh design in the glass is far less obtrusive than it used to be; at a distance you hardly see the wire. If the opening is used solely as a source of light, you could use wired glass in one of many patterns, or a clear or translucent plastic skylight. But if you want to sky-watch or look out at a view, you'll want a non-patterned wired glass.

If the opening faces north, clear wired glass is suitable since the window won't get any direct sun. But for an east or west exposure, and to a lesser degree for a south

Watch a professional groom a garden for a party five days hence

You will recognize this garden if you saw the article on page 82 of the March 1968 Sunset—Getting the garden ready for a grand occasion in June. Here the same garden is getting its final touches by a hired professional gardener five days before it became the site of a late-June wedding reception.

The moves of this experienced pro should be interesting and helpful to gardeners who are finishing off preparations for a wedding reception or a big garden party like the one described on page 86 of this issue. His work should also interest any amateur weekend gardener who looks for help in making plantings look better and in ways to do jobs more effectively.

All professional gardeners are not alike. Some are simply garden janitors, best at mowing, edging, sweeping, and taking refuse to the dump. Others are strongest as diagnosticians and preventers of plant ills. And others are really artists that can bring out the best in plant form, flower display, and garden bed appearance. This professional, Yoshihiro Okasaki of Los Altos, California, is of the latter group. He's an outstanding bonsai grower and trainer and this skill reflects in the manner in which he prunes, trains, and displays garden plants.

Our camera followed Mr. Okasaki as he worked one full day in this garden. Other things he did during the day: plunged 24 potted 'Popeorn' petunias into a bed of same to fill it out; spaded and raked a 12 by 12-foot bed and plunged blooming pelargoniums (in their cans) into it; pruned, groomed, and edged a ground cover of chlorophytum, three beds of impatiens, two borders of lobelia, a bed of marigolds and petunias, and a bed of sword ferns; and thinned and pruned to embolden the forms of three small palms, three draeaenas, tree ferns (removed all aging fronds), a big fatsia, and the overhanging branches of the neighbor's loquat, cotoneaster, and oak.

At the end of the day, he raked and swept up his prunings, clippings, and mess, and with them completely filled his ½-ton pickup truck—all from an area of about 7,000 square feet.

ince summer brings highly reliable weath- r to much of the West, your summer ntertaining can extend beyond confines f living and dining rooms to your garden.

The best time of day for parties in the arden depends on where you live. A eekend brunch or afternoon dinner arty best suits the climate in many reas. If you live in the desert or in outhern California, entertaining out of loors can wait until evening. In parts of he Northwest, the wise hostess will have n alternate plan for moving the party nside in ease of a shower.

The summer party in a garden can be an specially easy way to entertain, and the nformality of such an occasion helps put uests at ease. With the additional space your garden provides, you may want to nvite a larger group than you usually entertain. Then, you may find yourself in need of some extra equipment. From friendly and well equipped neighbors you can often borrow extra garden furniture. But improvising some of the necessities adds to the fun of the party and can emphasize its theme.

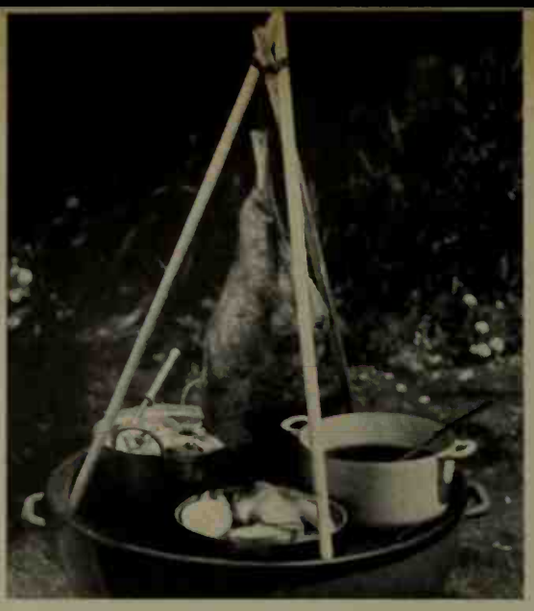
For example, the canopy that provided shade for the diners at our Turkish lamb barbecue party, pictured above, was made of inexpensive denim fabric. It proved surprisingly stable when subjected to modest amounts of wind and bumping by guests. Directions for making it follow. A photograph on the next page shows how we made the low tables. We asked guests to bring their own cushions.

Don't overlook the possibility of renting such party needs as extra chairs, tables, or garden umbrellas. Rental agencies in all large population centers are listed in the telephone book's yellow pages.

Their prices are quoted by the day, but that usually means the one day you use the equipment; actually for a Saturday party they often deliver Friday and pick up Monday, yet charge only the one-day rate. Typical prices are 75 cents to $1 for a lawn chair; $4 to $5 for a round garden table; about $8 for a table with umbrella; 40 or 50 cents for a cushion.

Articles rarely ordered or difficult to store run higher, but you can find large canopies (about $30), infrared heaters (about $35), glassware, punch bowls, and portable bars. It's wise to call the rental agency 10 days or so before the party so that equipment can be held for you.

To make your own canopy like the one shown above, you'll need four strips



The leg of lamb hangs from a tripod

Lash together three sticks or dowels (2½ feet long) as shown at left above. Drill small holes through lower ends of sticks to secure tripod to grill with wire of sturdy fabric about 3 feet wide and 12 feet long; sew sides together and insert six grommets at points where poles will go. To support the canopy, you'll need two 7-foot center poles and four 6-foot end poles; drive a nail into one end of each pole and run nails through grommets in fabric. Attach a length of cord at each canopy corner, tie other end to a tent stake or 6-inch spike driven into the ground.

Serving food out-of-doors poses other problems, including how to keep hot food hot and cold food cold. You can use ice lavishly for foods that need chilling, provided that your arrangement allows melting ice to drain harmlessly onto the lawn.

If you use a barbecue, you can utilize its heat to keep meats hot until served. For the barbecue party shown on pages 86 and 87, we cooked the lamb on the grill; then, with just enough hot coals remaining to keep foods warm, we rigged the grill for serving the meat and all accompaniments. The party shown on page 89 used barbecue fires another way, with a menu planned around skewered meats; guests did their own cooking on the small barbecues at each table.

Another trick for keeping foods warm is to plan a menu using small electric appliances and then serve from them outdoors (see photograph on page 90). The two appliances used for this Mexican-style brunch shouldn't overload a single electric circuit. If you use more than two, better use two extension cords plugged into different outlets.

In testing ideas for garden entertaining, we staged the three parties pictured on these pages. If you'd like to duplicate our party foods, here are menus and recipes.

The barbecue buffet

Meat cooked on the barbecue and served with salad and bread makes simple, time-tested fare for a relaxed summer party. This party plan utilizes the barbecue also to keep the cooked meat and its accompaniments warm for serving.

Adapted from a classic Turkish dish, the entrée introduces a rather surprising flavor combination of lamb, broth, yogurt, and green pepper.

Our taste testers including those who didn't especially care for some of these foods individually, heartily approved of the combination.

Serve the salad as a first course, or substitute a mixed green salad and have it at the table. After the lamb has cooked, set up the tripod as shown at left and suspend meat from center with wire.

For each 6 to 8 guests, you'll need about 1 quart rich meat or chicken broth, which can be homemade or canned, and about 1 dozen sweet French rolls. Split and toast the rolls and heat broth ahead. For Lamb Kebab in a Bowl. Buy a large leg of lamb with bone in (about 6 lb.) for each 6 to 8 guests. Drill a small hole through end of shank bone. For each leg, crush 1 clove garlic, blend with 2 tablespoons olive oil and 1 teaspoon each oregano and thyme, and rub over surface. Roast lamb slowly in a barbecue that has a hood, allowing about 2½ hours. Use a meat thermometer and roast to about 150° for medium rare or 160° for medium well. When done, remove the barbecue hood, take out all but a few ignited coals, attach tripod to grill, and suspend meat with wire.

To serve, place pan of rolls under meat, ladle a little hot broth over rolls, and carve meat thinly, letting it fall onto rolls. Each guest places bread in a bowl, piles meat slices on the bread, ladles broth over, then generously tops all with the following sauce:

Green Pepper - Yogurt Sauce. Cut 6 green peppers in ½-inch-wide strips and put in bowl. Drizzle over the peppers 6 tablespoons olive oil blended with ¾ teaspoon

Cook-at-the-table barbecue

This menu was inspired by the Japanese method of cooking right at the table. Each of our guests had a tall, slender glass of soy-seasoned sauce to dip and glaze the skewered meats. You could adapt the party idea to any skewered meat entrée that might be marinated in advance for simpler table cooking. Any direction, including straight out

A draftsman's lamp mounted on a wall bracket makes an extremely versatile bed lamp. You can extend or twist the lamp to shine exactly where you want it to shine, instead of having to scoot yourself around until you match the beam coming from a stationary lamp.

Good quality draftsman's lamps with a wall bracket cost about $25. Import stores sometimes have lamps for $12 to $15.

Vacation houses: a cost correction

In the article on renting out vacation houses in the April 1968 Sunset, an error appears in the chart on page 164. In item 12, "actual cost to the owner," the parentheses should read (item 3 minus item 11) instead of (item 8 minus item 11). The actual cost of the house then becomes $812 instead of $1,662.

Tool organizer that stores and carries

If you have a tool drawer where the things you need collect at the bottom and everything sharp or pointed piles up on top, you'll like the new three-layered tool organizer. It has drawers at the bottom for nails and screws, troughs just above for tape, small boxes, and so forth, and a perforated platform at the top through which you can insert screwdrivers, pliers, hammers, and wrenches.

Its sturdy handle is easy to grasp when you want to carry tools to your work, and the whole unit is only 11 inches high, 14 inches long, and 7 inches wide.

The tool organizer costs about $5. You must order it by mail; for information send a stamped, addressed return envelope to Building Department, Sunset Magazine, Menlo Park, California 94025.

Fire!

In a summer cabin (especially one far from fire protection) it's reassuring to have on hand some means of extinguishing fires.

Good for an ordinary wood, paper, or rubbish fire is a garden hose with a spray nozzle adjusted for heavy misting. Be sure your hose will reach into the house.

For inflammable liquids or electrical fires the best extinguisher is dry powder type with a BC rating. For a house, the 4-pound size, costing about $14 to $27, is adequate. Have it checked once a year by an authorized dealer. Charge for servicing is about $6 if you've used it, about $4 if you haven't.

For car or boat there are 2¾-pound dry powder extinguishers with a BC rating costing $10 to $15, and $4 for servicing.

Airy, open pavilion a short walk from the house is a place for entertaining guests or for just sitting and enjoying the canyon vi

Their deck is topped with a "space frame"

The raised deck pictured here occupies one end of a long, narrow garden on a hilltop. It is a focal point of the garden and just naturally attracts people. Part of its appeal is a device that designers call a "space frame."

A space frame simply consists of a framework of upright and horizontal members suggesting an enclosure while remaining open. The one here creates an airy garden pavilion effect. Equally important, it dramatizes a long view by supplying a foreground that gives depth and scale to the canyon beyond.

This space frame also seems more like a pavilion because its deck is above the level of the remainder of the garden; and because it is raised, you have a more interesting view of the garden from it. For entertaining, the deck's surface handles groups well, and the pavilion is conveniently near the kitchen.

In another climate, the posts might support a roof for shade, but here on the seaward side of the Santa Monica Mountains, only a suggestion of shade is needed most of the year.

The pavilion was designed by landscape architect Jack W. Buktenica, for Mr. and Mrs. Irving Hammer, Los Angeles.

Twenty-three feet of maple counters and a side-by-side cooktop and barbecue unit are the special features of this remodeled kitchen in the Hollywood, California home of architect Perry Neuschatz.

Without changing the original floor plan, and working around existing windows, Neuschatz took full advantage of the wall space. He provided for top-of-the-range cooking under a custom-made hood along the window wall (picture at upper right), and sandwich and salad making and baking in the alcove opposite. The small fixed table satisfies kitchen dining needs.

Because Mrs. Neuschatz likes to be able to put things away, all wall space above the counters and between the windows was used for storage, behind brightly painted sliding hardboard panels.

An $8 roll of wallpape covers 4x8 feet of wal

If you can't find a wallpaper that doesn't look cheap until you get up around $8 a roll, maybe you should take a look at Weldwood® paneling. It starts at $7.95. And it's a whole lot easier to put up.

It comes in broad, flat, stiff 4'x 8' panels. You just squeeze panel adhesive on the back and stick them on the wall. 32 square feet at a time.

Wallpaper comes in long, narrow, floppy rolls (5 yards x 27 inches—about 34 square feet). You need paste, brushes, cutters, rollers and a stepladder. Then you can get one roll up in half an hour. Maybe.

And with cutting, trimming and overlapping you'll be lucky if you cover as much wall as you can with one Weldwood panel.

Unless you're an expert, it still won't look right.

And you'll be standing there kicking yourself with paste in your hair.

So next time your wife is dragging you around the wallpaper stores, steer her into a Weldwood dealer's and show her some paneling.

It has a rich, warm look. It's a cinch to put up. And it lasts as long as your house, so you never have to do it over.

The panel shown here is Weldwood Ranchero®—$7.95 at your Weldwood Headquarters Dealer (you'll find him in the Yellow Pages under Plywood).

For two booklets full of remodeling ideas, with lots of color pictures, send 50¢ to Remodeling, Box 61, New York, N.Y. 10046.

We don't make furniture for just any old Tom, Dick or Harry Prince Tomaharajah flipped his turban over Brown-Jordan's Classic II. And the chairs are so comfortable that he's become positively mellow. It's been weeks since he had anyone beheaded. In 372 of the palace rooms you'll find its understated elegance, the sculptured contours of lifetime cast aluminum, the rich splashes of subtle colors in a dining set (with half-round console), sectionals and corner tables (in the harem) and occasional chairs (on the ramparts). Of course, the Royal Decorator had it all made up in his own choice of fabric and color finish. (The best stores in town will handle custom orders for you too.)

Richard the Lionhearted

trusts Brown-Jordan's Tamiami to take hard abuse. Its aluminum frame and ribbon-like vinyl are impervious to sun, rain, salt air—and the other half of his act. He feels lionized by his sturdy table with its chatterproof top (set in exclusive shock-absorbers). The tempered glass top is eight times stronger than ordinary glass. Tamiami may be just the fashions-in-the-sun you've been looking for. (How about a rocker, garden-picnic table and a quartet of stacking stools for your garden tent?)

prize pitcher for the Saints, believes the team that sits together hits together. But with his contract, you can't blame him for preferring the luxury of Regent II in the dugout. Hand-laced with extra-wide vinyl straps, and triple-baked to an automobile finish, Regent II comes in a complete collection. 5 shapes and sizes of tables, 7 types of chairs. For the 7th inning stretch, Hal has his manager deliver his refreshment on a matching service cart. (You'll find Regent II is priced right in your ballpark.)

You may have already dined at one of our tables in a hotel in Florida, sunned on one of our chaise' at a resort in Hawaii, or flirted in one of our club chairs in a gazebo in Connecticut. (Professional interior designers rely on Brown-Jordan for its high fashion and long life.) Now's the time to pick out a few pieces for your own home. You'll find Brown-Jordan collections at the best stores. And you can write for a brochure to Brown-Jordan, El Monte, California.

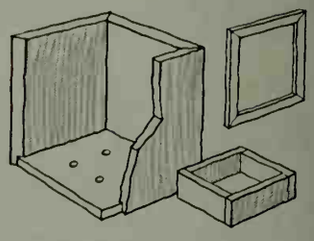
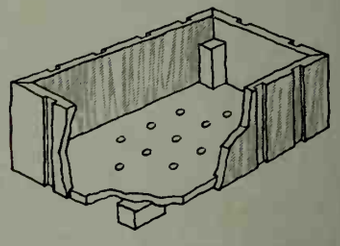
Easy-to-make planter boxes

Of these two straight-sided planter boxes, the taller one at left best suits a smallish shrub; the other looks good brimful of annuals. Each costs $1.50 to $2 to build. Paint or stain the planters, or let them weather naturally.



Box on a box. The sides are 1 by 12 rough redwood, 12 inches high, mortised to accept an 11-inch-square bottom of any scrap wood. Miter the corners, then use waterproof glue and nails to secure sides and bottom together. Use glue and nails to attach decorative wood trim desired. The base is four 8-inch lengths of 1 by 2.



Box on four blocks. The sides are ⅝-inch-thick resawn plywood with vertical grooves, costing $13 per 4 by 8-foot sheet. Half a sheet will cut down to make four planters of the size shown—about 12 by 23 by 8 inches deep. Mortise sides to accept whatever material is used for the bottom, and miter the corners; then glue and nail all together in one operation. Later, glue a reinforcing block into each corner. Use small scrap blocks for legs.

Weathering . . . part nature, part art

The natural, understated beauty of our Western woods often heightens with weathering, whether it be natural or artificial. Outdoors, a weathered finish on wood house siding, decks, fences, and patio and garden structures is an attractive and practical alternate to painting. It blends in well with most Western landscapes and requires very little in the way of maintenance.

Indoors, weathered wood finishes can be particularly practical and handsome in family rooms and other places that receive considerable abuse. They are durable and resistant to marks and abrasions.

A partially weathered piece of driftwood from the beach or mountains often benefits from more weathering or from removing some stains here and there. Or you may have bought or made something in your workshop of new raw wood that you would like to give a weathered finish.

How do you weather wood at home?

There are a great many ways. We describe here some of the easiest and most effective methods commonly used in the West. We speak mainly of Western softwoods because most Western hardwoods do not weather well, and tend to crack and warp when cut into boards and exposed to the elements. Whole branches of such plants as manzanita or myrtle are exceptions.

NATURALLY

One good way to weather our softwoods is just to be patient.

On any outdoor structure, decking, or fencing, Port Orford and Alaskan cedars —our best weathering woods—will turn a handsome silvery gray in a few months. Other Western cedars, pines, and hemlock will turn a light gray in a year or so. Douglas fir and white fir change to a somewhat darker gray in about the same time. Redwood usually turns a dark gray in a few months, then gradually lightens over the years.

With any of these structural woods, you can hasten the natural weathering somewhat by hosing down the wood whenever you water the lawn in warm weather. And with any structural wood left to weather naturally outdoors, it is best to use aluminum or stainless steel nails to avoid unsightly rust streaks. Plain steel nails rust badly; even the heads of galvanized nails, after being hammered, will rust to a considerable extent.

To weather individual pieces of wood such as a piece of driftwood you have icked up, simply expose them where they re away from soil and other possible ources of staining, perhaps on top of a oof, fence, or rack of firewood. Just turn he pieces over about once a month and et them down when watering. A six-onth exposure is usually ample.

ECHANICALLY

n furniture and small wood objects, you an almost immediately obtain an attrac-ive weathered finish mechanically. One ay is simply to wire-brush the piece of ood. You can do this by hand with a teel wire brush, or use a wire wheel on bench grinder, turning lathe, portable lectric drill, or flexible shaft. Wire-brush ith the grain of the wood so the steel rush will remove the soft summer wood nd leave the hard winter grain un-ouched.

nother way is first to burn the surface f the wood to a dark brown with a pro-ane torch or blowtorch, and then to wire-rush it as above. The surface burning ats into the soft summer wood so that he wire-brushing can cut in much deeper. nd leaving some of the dark, burned oloring can be quite attractive.

r take the piece of wood to some firm hat does sandblasting (look in the class-fied section of your telephone directory). fter sandblasting, a manzanita limb, for xample, will be returned to you almost one-white, looking very worn and weath-red. A dry piece can be sandblasted uch easier and better than a green piece. ost of sandblasting a 4-foot-long gnarled mb suitable for a mantel or wall decora-ion runs about $3 to $4.

Y BLEACHING OR STAINING

o weather large areas of wood such as fence, deck, or house siding, you can ake a strong solution of salt dissolved a pail of water and just brush it on. ou will need to repeat this treatment any times to arrive at anything like he appearance of driftwood.

ou can immediately darken and elimi-ate the raw look of redwood by painting t with a mixture of ½ cup of baking soda o a quart of water (see page 176 of the January 1967 Sunset for full details). The oda reacts with chemicals in redwood to ive it a dark weathered appearance. This reatment does not darken other Western oftwoods to any appreciable degree.

o bleach structural Western woods a air degree, you can brush on a mixture f liquid chlorine in water (5 per cent hlorine). This is the liquid chlorine used o treat swimming pools, similar to laun-dry bleach but stronger, cheaper, and less ure. Try it first on a sample board to ee if you are obtaining the coloration you want; if you use it on paneling or furni-ture that is to have a varnish or other ealer finish, be sure to let this bleach-ng solution dry and weather at least two weeks before sealing. bleach may bring out some unwanted coloration from the wood and leave it under the sealer coat.

Bleaching oils, available at paint stores, will weather our Western softwoods to some extent and also partially seal them. Some contain an ingredient that prevents dark mildew spots on damp wood; your paint dealer can add such an ingredient to the others.

For small wooden items and interior paneling (this treatment is too expensive for fencing and large structures), you can buy at a paint store a two-part commercial bleach that will almost immediately turn wood bone-white. Brush on the powerful bleach from one bottle; when the wood is the color you wish, brush on a neutralizer from the second bottle to stop the bleaching action.

You can weather rough-sawn beams, posts, fencing, and siding immediately and inexpensively by staining them with a thin mixture of Portland cement in water. Simply try your mixtures on a scrap board until you obtain the color desired. The cement gives rough-sawn wood a light, weathered coloration and also induces a slight chemical reaction that further weathers the wood.

The clear water repellents and such wood preservatives as pentachlorophenol do nothing in the way of giving your wood a weathered appearance. It will look the same after such a treatment, but either water repellent or preservative will considerably increase the wood's durability while it weathers naturally, as well as afterwards.

Last but far from least, you'll find a wide variety of weathering stains at paint stores. They give wood a slightly painted look (some more than others), but they also seal and protect the wood to a considerable degree. This is particularly helpful when you are weathering Douglas fir or white fir, which have a tendency to split and crack in sunlight.

Some of these are made for indoors, others for outdoors. Some are called shingle or siding stains, some penetrating stains, others stain-sealers, and so forth. Some are lightly pigmented (semitransparent), others heavily pigmented.

The best way to make your choice from the many weathering stains available is to take a sample of your wood to a knowledgeable paint dealer who handles one of the better-known brands, and try the manufacturer's different types on it.

These stain-sealers are very easy to apply with a brush, roller, or spray gun. On a deck or any smooth wood siding exposed to the sun, you will probably have to apply a new coat every two years. Rough-cut lumber soaks up two or three times as much of one of these stains or sealers as smooth lumber does, but it will probably need a new coat only once every seven years.

This just might be your favorite rye

It might be if you like a mild delicate rye, light and springy in texture. Its flavor is what comes naturally from a medium grind of the rye berry — without a trace of caraway seed.

If your taste runs to more robust ryes, we have a rye to match it. We bake nine different loaves of rye. Each with its own personality. In one, the accent is on the sourdough flavor; in another, the caraway seed — crushed or whole — makes the intriguing difference.

Flavors change, too, according to the grind of the rye berry, and the blend of dark, medium, and light rye flours, and the addition of whole wheat or white flour. For example, compare the delicate Swedish Rye with robust Sandwich Rye that combines full flavored dark ryes, mellow medium ryes, the sharpness of caraway, and the piquancy of sourdough.

Why not taste your way through the Oroweat Ryes? There's one for every taste and every occasion.

Wall-long storage and display is provided by recessed shelves and cabinets. Art desk at left has swing-up top, built-in light box

When inches count . . . storage inside a wall

When space is tight, you can sometimes squeeze an extra few inches out of a room by partly recessing shelves and cabinets into a wall.

In this 8½ by 10-foot den, part of a larger remodeling project, the owner used 4 by 4 posts about 40 inches apart as one nonbearing wall. He then designed and assembled shelf units to recess between the 4 by 4's, and below them built similarly recessed cabinets and a desk.

The upper units were divided into various-sized shelves and open sections, to suit the possessions to be stored and displayed. For example, each shelf of the shallow section at upper right in the photograph above is 5 inches deep and 8 inches high to hold paperback books; one section in the middle unit is 7 inches deep, 9 inches high, to hold hardcover books.

Nailing strips were attached to the back of each shelf unit so the gypsum board that lines the room on the other side of the wall would have adequate support. The units were then nailed through their sides into the 4 by 4 posts; they project at most 3½ inches into the room.

Below the open shelves are built-in-place cabinets, open all the way to the back of the gypsum board. Thus the cabinets have a usable interior depth of 15 inches yet they project little more than 12 inches into the room.

In the far corner the owner put in a small drawing table. Its hinged top swings upward against the shallower lower part of the shelf unit above it, where it is held by a magnetic catch. Beneath the hinged top is a light table—a long incandescent light under a panel of obscure glass—with two drawers for pencils, brushes, and similar gear. The switch on the wall above the desk controls a 2-foot long electric radiant heating unit at foot level.

Shelves were assembled of 1 by 7 and narrower boards backed by ¼-inch plywood

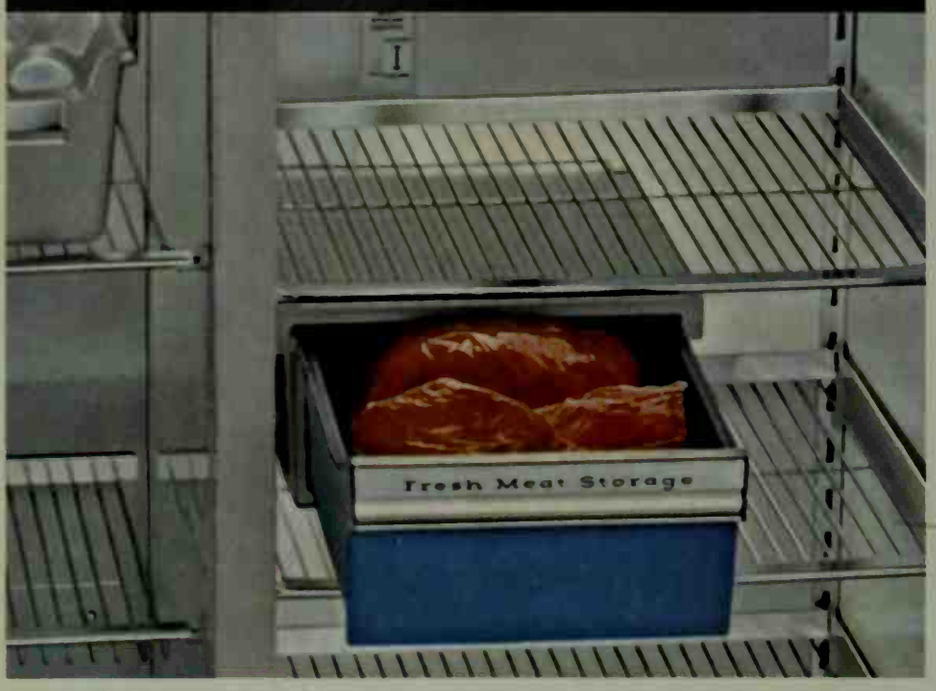
Amana's independent little "refrigerator within a refrigerator."



It keeps meats market fresh up to twice as long as ordinary meat trays.

Usually, meat trays are only storage bins. But Amana's meat keeper actually has its own independent cold control. It protects steaks, chops, and what-have-you with a surrounding blanket of cold (up to 10 degrees colder than the rest of the refrigerator). No drying air blasts ever touch the meat.

Our exclusive "little refrigerator" is a bonus you get with our big side-by-side refrigerator-freezers. Like the Amana 25 and the Amana 22. (Meat keeper is also standard on freezer-at-the-top models.)

Check these other bonuses, too: Separate cold controls for refrigerator and freezer (set one without affecting the other); adjustable cantilevered shelves*; butter conditioner; Free-O'-Frost; rollers and a brake (to hold the unit in place). Plus Amana's exclusive 5-Year Total Appliance Warranty.

Half of an old air mattress makes a handy camp cabinet when it's tied to a tree

For your kitchen in camp

When you go camping or picnicking and are preparing fairly complete meals, you will really appreciate something that helps organize the miscellany of culinary equipment you bring along.

Either of the two kitchen "cabinets" shown here holds a goodly amount of that equipment, keeping it handy for use and away from most animals. Both are simply tied around a tree like an apron, do no harm the tree as do nails, and roll up into small packages for transportation.

The cabinet shown above is the larger—it's half a rubberized-cloth air mattress that leaked once too often. The owner took it to an awning shop (because a heavy sewing machine was needed) and had four lines of stitching sewn across

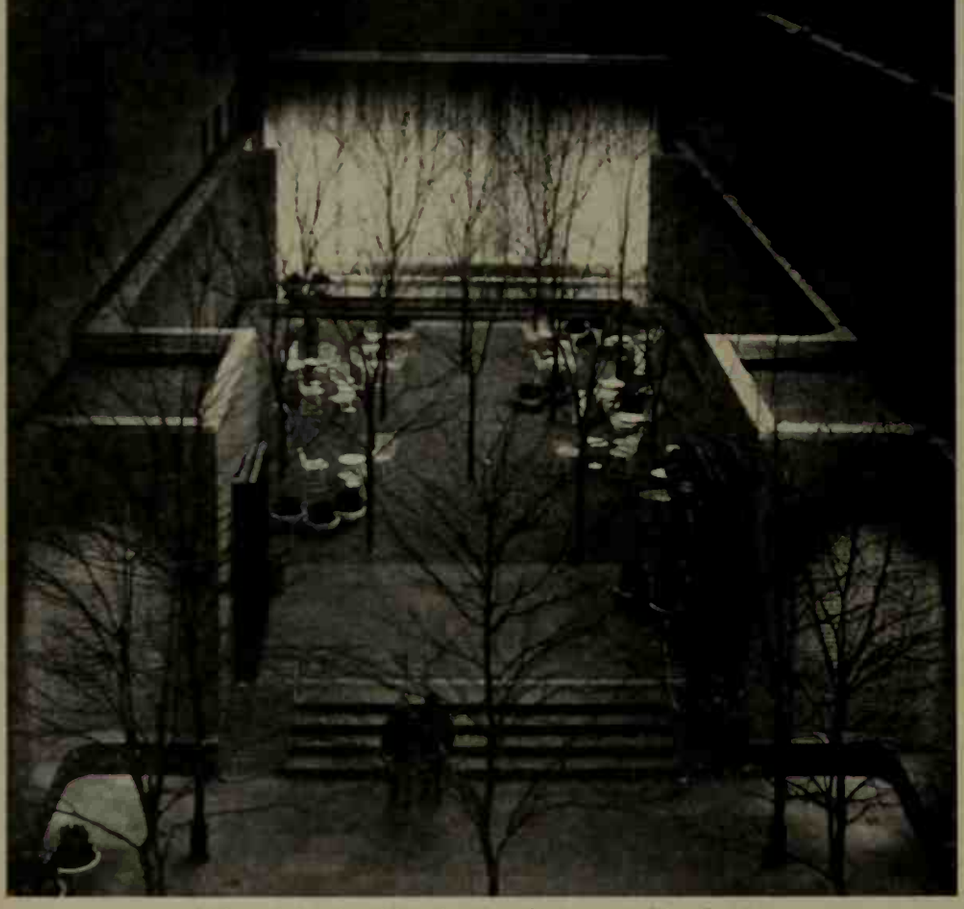
Even your dear Uncle Charlie can't show you everything.



Although he should make a perfect tour guide: lived in the city all his life, won't have any trouble showing you all the famous landmarks you've seen pictures of. And the street he used to play on as a kid.

But he probably wouldn't be able to help you find a waterfall in the middle of Manhattan. (Some people who live there haven't seen it, but a Gray Line tour passes it every day.)

Or things like Bottle House in Death Valley, built out of beer bottles by an old saloon keeper. Or a 300 year old water mill near Boston that now lies underneath Central Street.

And then Uncle Charlie might not be able to tell you about the history of his city, or about its architecture, and which movie star lives where.

For that you need a tour guide who really knows his way around.

Between them, Gray Line guides know their way around almost 600 cities in the United States and Canada. And some in Australia, Hawaii and Japan. (If you just let us know where you're going, we'll send you our brochures.)

Gray Line tours all start in comfortable, clean, air-conditioned motor coaches. They cost as little as $2.75 (not much compared to the cost of a vacation).

And range from coffee and doughnut tours to night club tours to 6 days in the wilderness of the West.

You could probably interest Uncle Charlie himself in one of our tours. It would be a lot nicer than bringing him another tie.

Canopy bed . . . and a firepole bed

On the theory that children don't usually get a very exciting place to play or sleep when their parents move into a new house, architect Ronald Lowry Molen designed these two combination units for the children's bedrooms in the Duane A. Fluckiger house, Salt Lake City.

Each one combines the functions of a bed, dresser, and desk, scaled down to child size. The canopy bed has an enclosed feeling that most children like, and there is ample space for books above the dresser. The firepole bed is as much a game as a piece of furniture, and the space under it creates a quiet corner.

Both units were constructed of birch plywood with the beds anchored to the walls. The mattresses rest inside boxlike frames so that blankets and sheets can be tucked in neatly at the sides.

Carpeting on the floor is comfortable underfoot and warm to play on. In the unit above, it was carried up the bed's support piece to simplify vacuuming. One wall in each room is rough-sawn cedar to provide a pin-up wall for posters and artwork.

The unit above is one piece; the canopy hangs from a frame attached to the wall and open to the ceiling. In the room at right, the unit was designed as two pieces —a desk-dresser sits at right angles to the 5-foot-high bed. Decorative applications of wood on the side of the bedframe form channels for the ladder, which toenailed to the floor to prevent slippag The firepole sits out from the bed ju far enough that a little boy can clear t bed on his way to the floor.

Asked whether he'd heard mothers obje to making up stationary beds, archite Molen said that he had heard some suc murmurs, but pointed out that childre are soon big enough to make their own.

The original house, a pleasant one-bedroom stucco structure, occupied a highly desirable view site at the end of a quiet lane, but its size (777 square feet) was totally inadequate for a couple with children. What happened was a kind of space explosion: The owners added 1,760 square feet of new living space, not including decks and carport. The expanded house still retains much of the effect of the original stucco house, though ther little left of the old shell.

Architects were A. Jane Duncombe of Duncombe-Roland-M ler, Santa Rosa, California, and Donald James Clark a Thomas Higley, San Francisco, for Dr. and Mrs. John S. Du of Santa Rosa.

The door installation, both labor and materials, cost slightly less than $100. Time required was one day.

If you are handy with woodworking tools, you can install such a door yourself, saving 50 to 60 per cent of the cost.

You first nail the 2 by 4 framing solidly to the existing doorway, whether plumb or not, and then plumb the jambs with shims of wood shingle. A good method is to plumb and secure the hinge-side jamb, hang the door, and then use shingle shims to align the top and other jamb with the door. This reduces trimming on the door.

Small guest room becomes a luxurious bath

It isn't often that one makes a bedroom into a bath, but architect Ellis Jacobs and his wife Janina, a busy interior designer, decided a larger bathroom was more important than an infrequently used guest room. So they converted a 10 by 12-foot room accordingly.

To trim costs, Mrs. Jacobs laid the ceramic tile floor, and also selected and stacked the marble for the shower-tub wall, ready for the tile setter. A soft beige, the marble had a thin black vein in it that the Jacobs wanted to run in a continuous line around the wall.

Glazed tiles, 2 inches square, line the tub and shower pan (the shower is open to the room) and cover the vanity counter; all are in various shades of blue-green. The fixtures—basin, toilet, and bidet—are turquoise.

Among the amenities are a ceiling hea two hydro-massage units in the sunl tub, a built-in magazine rack in the cc partmented toilet, a fold-out adjusta mirror to the right of the three la sliding mirrors (which conceal a medic cabinet), and built-in scales.

Out of an oil and vinegar bath come these four vegetable salad surprises

A salad repertory that includes a variety of marinated vegetable recipes can simplify your summertime meal planning. Pick any one of these salads to take the place of a hot vegetable and provide cool crisp complement to the rest of the meal.

Marinated vegetables have some other noteworthy advantages. They are prepared ahead so that the vegetables may absorb the marinade flavors. They carry well to picnics away from home. And once out of the refrigerator, they hold up better than most other salads.

Our way of cooking vegetables for salads is to plunge them into a large quantity of boiling water, cook until almost tender, then cool quickly with cold water.

Grated Parmesan cheese is sprinkled over these zestily flavored vegetables.

Foods nust please the palate, provide adequate ourishment (ideally with calories kept ow and protein high), and offer a suffiient variety to save the party from restess dreams of steak all night.

YOUR EQUIPMENT

These few articles can be surprisingly adequate for feeding a family of four. ("Our trips are usually planned for four to six people and last six to seven days.")

One cup per person. The Sierra Club cup of aluminum with stainless steel rim and handle saves one from burned fingers and burned lips, the disadvantages of an all-aluminum cup. These can be purchased in mountaineering supply stores.

One spoon per person. Buy the lightest stainless steel, soupspoon size. Make a hole in the handle to attach to the belt of your pants with twine or light chain. Then the spoon is always convenient. Carry one extra for cooking and serving.

Nest of cooking pots. These are sold in all camping departments. Buy a set of the lightest weight. Take along only the 6-cup coffee pot, the quart and 2-quart pots, and frying pan which doubles as a lid.

One tomato can (16 or 17-oz. size). This fits inside the coffee pot; attach a handle of thin wire. This and the pots are sufficient to cook for four to six people.

One pot lifter. This is essential. Very small ones are available, and adequate for pots of this size.

One sharp knife. This should be a medium-sized knife in a sheath, strong enough and large enough to cut small pieces of wood as well as food.

One small spatula. Get the kind sold at the variety store as a children's toy. Keep pancakes small and this will work well.

One small grill. Variety stores sell small broiler racks and cake racks. Buy one of rectangular shape 4 to 6 inches long to make your cooking fireplace.

Two steel wool soap pads. These are for scrubbing the dishes. Put each in a separate plastic bag. Two will last several days.

Paper towels. Remove cardboard roll; carry about a half roll of towels. Pour boiling water over the dishes and pots after scouring, then dry in the air; the towels are for emergencies.

Heavy-duty aluminum foil (1 to 2 square feet). This is used to wrap around or place over food to keep it hot while waiting for something else to cook. Wash and save from meal to meal.

Folding plastic bucket. This is useful for toting water or for personal washing but is optional. The light ones weigh about 6 ounces.

Lightweight plastic bag. Each person carries his own cup and spoon. The rest of the equipment is nested together in this bag. One from the cleaners or the covering from a new bed pillow is ideal. Pans accumulate char, and plastic keeps this off the rest of the pack. Even if the plastic tears, the bag is large enough to serve as covering.

Five heavy plastic bags. A good size is 12 by 18-inch (2-gal.). These need to be heavier because you will pack food in them and will be opening and closing them daily.

One-quart plastic bag. This is to carry a small amount of water if your route includes a dry stretch; otherwise carry it empty, hooked on one person's belt, for mixing juice for brunch and lunch.

Pipe cleaners and rubber bands. Pipe cleaners are used for bags that are opened frequently. They will last the trip. Small rubber bands are used for individually-packed plastic bags.

This is a modest kitchen indeed. Obviously all meals are eaten from a cup with a spoon. The advantage is that both spoon and cup can be securely carried by hooking to one's belt. The cooking pots double for mixing bowls. The tomato can is fine for mixing powdered milk or sauces and can be put over the fire. In addition to the sheath knife, the smallest-size pocket knife, attached to one's belt, is convenient. The spatula can also serve to drain liquids from food. The foil can make an extra lid for small pots.

The grill is used to complete a small, efficient fireplace. On some trails there are campsites with grills, but often it is necessary to make a fireplace. (Incidentally, with more and more people using the mountains, it is considerate to destroy your fireplace before leaving an area.) A large fire is cheerful in the evening, but a small fire shielded by the rocks is far more satisfactory for cooking, especially if there is a little wind. It also takes very little wood if wood is scarce.

("If we are going into a rainy area such as the Olympics, we do carry a small Alpine stove which comes with compact cans of gas. These add weight but are absolutely necessary in some areas.")

YOUR KITCHEN ON THE TRAIL

Of the five heavy plastic bags designated for food, breakfasts, and dinners, take one each; lunch takes two because the foods are bulkier; and the fifth is a basic bag. ("We divide the carrying of these among four of us, and the one who carries breakfast also carries the basic bag.") Breakfast is likely to be the most hurried meal and everything should be immediately available.

The basic bag should contain the coffee, tea, salt, pepper, sugar, margarine, powdered milk, cocoa, and seasonings. The kind of tea with spice and fruit additives has more zest than ordinary teas, and now comes in tea bags. Rose hips tea (a Swedish delicacy) has vitamins as well as its own distinct flavor. Maté is something between a tea and a bouillon and is also nutritious. Some hikers prefer brown to white sugar.

For seasonings, consider these: two cloves of fresh garlic, a cube of fresh ginger root, a cinnamon stick, dried ground orange and lemon peel, dried parsley, dry minced onion, curry powder, dill weed, an herb mixture, a dozen whole black peppers, a few juniper berries, a little Parmesan cheese. Such small quantities can be put in tiny plastic bags or the smallest pill bottles that have tight lids (the druggist will sell them to you).

Carry the margarine that comes in a plastic dish with tight lid. Margarine keeps its consistency through the heat of the day, while butter has a remarkable ability to spread all through the pack.

BREAKFASTS

Cooked cereal, piping hot, is the easiest and most welcome breakfast on a cold, rainy morning. Served up with brown sugar, margarine, and powdered cream, it is a far better one-dish meal than one would expect from memories of breakfast at home over the morning newspaper.

Powdered eggs "doctored" with a bit of dry minced onion and Parmesan, or a pinch of herbs and bacon crumbles, become downright edible. A fair omelet can be made if beaten well with milk and cooked in a quart pot rather than a frying pan. The toy spatula will turn the eggs nicely.

Pancakes are great for a sunny, leisurely morning. They take more time and trouble, and every piece of equipment: the big pot for a mixing bowl, the foil for keeping the bacon warm, the frying pan for cooking, the tomato can for syrup, and the quart pot for lots of hot water to get off all the syrup later.

Following is a list of breakfast possibilities for a week's trip, to give the beginner some idea of how to start. Each day's amount is prepackaged at home, so there's no measuring in camp, no looking around for ingredients.

Cereals. Use mixture of dark coarse cereals with lots of raisins and walnuts; cut in bits of dried apple or pear, or try a variety of nuts. (The Swiss have a prepared mixture—Bircher müsli—which includes hazelnuts and toasted coconut.) Serve with sugar, margarine, and powdered milk or cream; Canadian bacon, two slices per person; coffee.

Scrambled eggs. Add bacon crumbles or dried ham nuggets. The prepared omelet mixes are fine, especially the Western omelet. If you mix your own, delve into basic bag for seasoning and cheese. Serve with hot apple sauce.

Buttermilk pancakes. Use a mix; add ham nuggets directly to batter (or serve with Canadian bacon). Make syrup of powdered maple syrup mix (hard to find), or simply boil brown sugar and water, just enough for the meal. Syrup simply cannot be carried.

Oatmeal (just to vary the cereals). Add apricot and date nuggets, sugar, margarine, and cream. Slivered almonds are good in this. Serve with Canadian bacon or ham.

Wild rice pancakes. Use a mix. Spread with jam that comes in a tube. Serve with Canadian bacon. (Regular bacon can be carried, but it is greasier to handle and gets strong unless eaten early on the trip.)

Additional possibilities: Dehydrated corned beef hash, stew, chile, a dry concentrated cereal with dried bananas.

"Lest these meals seem light or limited," Mrs. Saxton notes, "we have found it more satisfactory to eat in smaller amounts several times a day: midmorning snack of fruit juice with a handful of roasted nuts, a piece of semisweet chocolate, or diet food packets. We alternate orange and grapefruit crystals for juice. These have a more natural flavor than many of the fruit powders available. Plan on lots of juice: for lunch also, and for midafternoon with a handful of tart hard candies to nibble along the trail."

LUNCHES

Lunch is the heaviest and bulkiest meal and the hardest in a way because most ordinary sandwich combinations are not possible. Bread is a nuisance, and one sandwich apiece for six persons for seven days means 84 slices. Crackers crumble and are hopeless if they get wet. A better solution is to take small amounts of compact pumpernickel, rye rounds, or canned date or nut bread (removed from can at the beginning of the hike).

Real cheese and real meat are more satisfying and keep better than many of the substitutes for them.

Under no circumstances take along sardines or smoked oysters, unless you like them so well you are willing to have the oily, fishy odor travel with you on the trail throughout the day, the next day and the rest of the trip. What's more, if you leave them home, you will be spared a difficult decision: whether to bury the can which you know a small animal will dig up or carry the smelly thing out.

There are many good hard candies and individually wrapped candies. The best cookies are small, chewy ones that won't end up a heap of crumbs. Dried fruit these days are steamed, and this moisture adds weight, but the fruit is delicious. In addition to the usual varieties, look for dried mango, pineapple, banana slices, crystallized ginger, and candied orange peel in specialty shops.

Here is a summary of lunch suggestions:

Breads. Compact pumpernickel, rye rounds, date or nut bread; Melba toast, rye wafer bread; shredded wheat crackers (they carry better than most crackers).

Meats. Pastrami, smoked pork butt, tongue, lean ham; beef jerky, Chinese dried shrimp, canned ham, Vienna sausage, chicken spread or pâté de foie gras.

Cheese. Smoked hickory, hard jack, Cheddar, Swiss or Gouda; canned Camembert for the end of the week.

Dried fruits. Pitted prunes, dates (dried or fresh), apricots, peaches, pears, bananas; pineapple and mango (hard to find but a real treat).

Cookies and candies. Good fruit flavors, such as English orange sherbet drops; Dutch mints, toffees, coffee and Swedish rum drops; cookies (including imported kinds) in packages made to travel.

Assortments for variety. Cocktail dried mushrooms, coconut chips, dry roasted nuts (cashews and almonds carry better than pecans which crumble); shelled salted sunflower seeds, Mexican squash seeds; lemonade and lime powders packaged with their own sugar; instant iced tea.

("But what to do for salad? We make a small fresh treat bag, and we often chew

THE CIVILIZED SAFARI OR CROCODILES WITHOUT TEARS.

There is a place on this planet where no Hilton stands. A vast dark place of such mystery and legend that even the Spanish and Portuguese conquistadores dared not intrude. The Amazon Jungle.

Now, four centuries later, little has changed. Crocodiles still lounge on river banks. Piranha and 600-lb. prehistoric fish still glide through the waters. Jaguar, wild boar and the world's only 200-lb. rodent still roam the jungles.

As for the Indians, some of them deep in the interior have still never seen, or been seen by, explorers. Others, have made friends with the few who have ventured into their lands.

And now, traveling through the middle of all this, there is a comfortable and secure hotel-boat (guest capacity, 12) with electricity, showers and a well stocked bar.

This floating hotel is run by veteran Amazon guide Andre Rakowitsch. Rakowitsch is one of those few men who have established a friendship with certain tribes of the Amazon Basin. In fact, he and his guests are practically the only people from the outside world these tribes ever see.

When they do have visitors, the Indians are delighted to spend a day trading with them, or possibly swimming with them under a 35 foot waterfall near the village.

Later, back at the boatel, there is a choice of evening diversions available nowhere else in the world. You can go out with powerful searchlights and shoot a crocodile between its glowing red eyes. Or you can stay on board with an icy martini and dance.

Braniff's 18-day Amazon Safari tour departs from New York and Miami. It includes, in addition to the Amazon-Mato Grosso regions, visits to Bogota, Brasilia and Rio de Janeiro. Fishing equipment is provided.

Run to the round steak, Mother, they can't corner you there!

Don't get caught in a budget bind when the weekend suddenly fills up with unexpected guests. You don't need a filet. Drop a low-cost round on the grill. Follow the method below and the humble round steak will come off the grill sizzling, tender, and juicy. And, just one can serve 6 or 8. Here's how:

BARBECUED ROUND STEAK

3 to 4 pounds beef round steak, cut 1½ to 2 inches thick
1 tablespoon mixed Italian herbs
½ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon catsup
1 tablespoon cooking oil
3 tablespoons soy sauce
Meat tenderizer (available at your grocer's)

Trim most of fat from beef. Slash remaining fat at 1 inch intervals to prevent curling. Combine all ingredients, except tenderizer, and brush on beef. Place in shallow pan, cover and refrigerate overnight. Bring beef to room temperature 30 minutes before grilling. Apply tenderizer as directed. Grill 4 to 5 inches from coals, 10 to 15 minutes per side. Turn only once. Carve into ½-inch slices. Serves 6 to 8.

the first day with everyone carrying a fresh orange or apple in his own pocket. Strips of green pepper, a few lettuce leaves, celery, even a handful of green beans wrapped tightly will keep for as long as three days.")

DINNERS

These are vastly improved if a good fisherman is along. The ultimate: trout flipped from the stream into the frying pan and eaten as hors d'oeuvres with daiquiris of rum, snow, and lemonade mix. ("We take a Jamaican rum of 150 proof. This is further enhanced if we happen to find a pungent small wildflower called Pennyroyal along the trail.")

The standard first course of dinner is soup. For four to six people, use two packages and less water, despite the directions. Many dried soups combine well. You'll find cream of leek and chicken very good with herbs. Dill weed adds a nice touch to any of the vegetable soups. Curry and ginger root make a spicy tomato; try dried parsley and minced onion in smoky pea. Minestrone and onion both need Parmesan. Experiment with combinations you never thought of at home. Add more vegetables (from packets of peas, beans, tomato flakes), thicken with potato flakes or pre-cooked rice, throw in dehydrated meat balls: You have what the French call potage. Make in the large pot (if there's an entrée, however, make soup in the coffee pot, to be washed out for hot chocolate later).

Pot switching is an art, and the true virtue of a tomato can is quickly recognized under these stringent conditions. It is just right for puddings, flavored gelatin, gravy, no end of other uses. Gelatin, though, is a risk. The sports stores sell a fast-setting kind (you can make one yourself by adding an extra tablespoon of unflavored gelatin). Snow is not always where you want it; even then gelatin takes time to set; but of course flavored gelatin is drinkable. Cooked puddings are more reliable. Tangy flavors seem to taste best after a day's hike.

("Our family is not pudding minded, and we prefer a rich hot chocolate with a bit of cinnamon stick à la Mexican chocolate and a dash of rum. We like this every evening, and the making and the drinking have taken on the aura of a pleasant ritual. Buy one of the good Dutch or Swiss ground chocolate mixtures, and use larger amounts than directions indicate.")

The various dehydrated fruit mixes (these are commercially dried to very light weight) take some soaking and are improved by fairly long cooking. Simmer them down; use brown sugar, cinnamon, some dried orange or lemon peel. This makes a delicious compote that lacks only sour cream.

The dessert should be cooked first or simultaneously with the soup, the main dish last. Soup is in the coffee pot, dessert in the tomato can; and you have quart and 2-quart pot for the entrée, frying pan doubling as a lid.

Meat that needs it is browned first in th frying pan. Cook spaghetti, noodles, ric mashed potatoes in the quart pan. Sav the largest pot for sauces to which yo will add the meat and pastas.

Don't attempt to cook vegetables sep arately. None of them is very good b itself; but when you simmer them t gether with meat and sauce in the larg pot (the frying pan now serving as a lid you can produce a delectable dish. (Whi dining on the main course, fill an empt pot with water and put on the fire for h water to rinse cups for dessert.)

The new freeze-dried meats have revoh tionized back-packing, not only for the weight but for their many menu poss bilities. Some of the products are pacl aged as complete meals: shrimp creol beef and chicken stew, Swiss steak, chi pork chops. All require a few minut soaking; some come with a specially pr pared enzyme that you pour into th packet with hot water for the soaking Remove them from their colorful box before starting the trip, and punctu with a pin near the top of the envelop This makes them lie flat for packing. B do not puncture in the middle, for yo will use this packet for the soaking, th drain to cook.

AIR POLLUTION...

Now you can do something about it in your home

The Honeywell Electronic Air Cleaner removes up to 95% of the airborne particles passing through it.

Nature pollutes the air with over 30 million tons of dust and pollen every year. Modern man adds countless tons of airborne wastes —smoke, fly ash, soot, assorted fumes, oxides, acids and gases.

It's not somewhere else, it's in your home.

As you sit at home and read this, you may think that air pollution is "out there" somewhere. A dull, gray haze you can see from a distance. But it's right inside your home. Even if you live in the suburbs. Even if you have air conditioning. Even though you can only see a small part of it in the form of soot or dust on tabletops and windowsills.

The fact is, you breathe about 16,000 quarts of polluted air every day unless you have an Electronic Air Cleaner in your home.

The Honeywell whole-house air cleaner fits into the ductwork of any forced air furnace or air conditioning system. It catches 99% of the pollen, and up to 95% of all the particles passing through it . . . including irritating particles so small that about 7000 of them would fit on this dot (·). It's about 19 times more efficient than most ordinary furnace or air conditioning filters.

Maybe you can't eliminate air pollution in your area now. Only time and enlightened clean air programs will do that. But you can start to fight air pollution in your home with a Honeywell Electronic Air Cleaner.

Why don't you write or call one of the dealers listed below and ask for literature or a demonstration. Do it now. Then you can breathe easier.

Whole house air cleaner fits into existing forced air heating or air conditioning ductwork. Portable units also available for single rooms and homes with other types of heating or cooling systems.

chops, envelope of gravy mix, bag of beans, and small bag with sugar.

In camp refresh pork chops in water according to directions on can, drain, dry, then brown in 2 tablespoons of the margarine. Stir in the gravy mix and water as directed on envelope and heat to simmering, stirring. Set aside.

Combine beans with water as directed on package, add brown sugar, and simmer 20 to 30 minutes or until beans are tender to bite. Then stir in pork chops and gravy and heat through. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Pork patties with sweet potatoes and apples

- 1 envelope (1⅜ oz.) dry sour cream sauce mix
- 3 tablespoons instant dry nonfat milk
- 1 package (4 oz.) dried seasoned apple sauce mix
- 1 1 or 2 inch piece cinnamon stick
- 1 package (5 oz.) instant mashed sweet potatoes
- 3 cans (2 oz. each) freeze-dried pork patties
- Water
- 3 or 4 tablespoons margarine

In separate plastic bags combine sour cream sauce mix with dry milk and apple sauce with cinnamon stick. Put in a larger bag with sweet potatoes and cans of pork.

In camp add 6 tablespoons water to sour cream mix, squeeze gently to mix, and let stand at least 10 minutes. Also pour boiling water into cans of pork and let stand 1 minute, drain.

In pan combine apple sauce and cinnamon stick with 3½ cups water and bring to a boil, simmering about 10 minutes or until sauce is ready to eat. At the same time melt about 3 tablespoons butter in a wider pan and brown the pork patties; then gently stir in the sour cream mix, blending in all the browned particles.

To serve, stir the potatoes and about 1 tablespoon margarine into the apple sauce, heating through; accompany with the lightly sauced pork. Makes 3 or 4 servings.

Spaghetti with meatballs in sauce

- 1 envelope (1½ oz.) dry spaghetti sauce mix
- 1 package (1 oz.) tomato flakes
- About 1 tablespoon freeze-dried parsley
- 3 or 4 whole black peppers
- About 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- A generous pinch mixed herbs seasoning
- 2 cans (1¾ oz. each) freeze-dried meatballs
- 8 ounces (½ lb.) spaghetti
- About ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 small clove garlic
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- Water

In a heavy plastic bag combine spaghetti sauce mix, tomato flakes, parsley, peppers, onion, herb seasoning, and meatballs. Put spaghetti and cheese in separate bags, then into sauce bag.

At camp pour sauce mix into pan, add garlic, margarine, and 3 cups water; blend and bring to boiling. Simmer 20 to 30 minutes, stirring frequently as mixture tends to stick.

Also bring to boil a large quantity of water. When sauce is about ready cook the spaghetti in the water until tender to bite—takes 5 to 10 minutes. Drain spaghetti and blend with sauce. Sprinkle with cheese. Serves 3 or 4.

Desserts are easy. Numerous pudding mixes can be prepared and eaten alone. Pour vanilla sauce over a small piece of fruit cake or canned plum pudding (good for two nights). The specially dried fruit mixes are very light: cocktail mix, apricots, peaches, pears, apple sauce. Add orange or lemon peel and brown sugar.

Summertime treat . . . fresh fruits inside a transparent candy shell

Frivolous in a way, but exceptionally attractive, these summertime treats are quick-to-make fresh-fruit confections that glisten in thin, transparent candy shells. You bite through the sweet, crackling exterior to savor the juicy fruit inside.

The glacéed fruits, their colors intensified by the crystalline coating, are fun to serve whenever the occasion calls for a sweet. Arrange them individually, perhaps on leaves or in bonbon cups; or group them just before serving. (When grouped, they begin to stick together rather quickly.) These fruits also make handsome decorations for desserts such as cakes, ice cream bombes, and tortes.

Since the fruits gradually dissolve the candy coating, you can glaze them only about 2 hours ahead; have the fruits ready in advance. They must be clean and dry. Strawberries and cherries with stems work well; or use hulled strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, or other small berries; tiny figs; small apricots; clusters of two or three seedless grapes; or dry-surfaced orange segments.

Pairing up . . . early fruits with French cherry and grape cheeses

Beginning in June our cherries, apricots, peaches, and nectarines can combine with some exceptional cheeses to offer you some delightful taste discoveries, all within the fruit-and-cheese approach to dessert.

In recent years the West's supply of cheeses from all over the world has multiplied manyfold. Among them now are several French process cheeses that pair beautifully with the early stone fruits.

These cheeses are characterized by their buttery texture and delicate flavor. The cherry cheeses, Nec Plus Ultra and Gourmandaise, are almost identical in taste; their distinctive bite comes from Kirsch (cherry brandy), which is part of their composition. Le Beau Pasteur is very similar to the cherry cheeses but hasn't the tang of Kirsch. The grape cheeses—they have many names, but are all about the same—are the mildest of the cheeses, and most easily identified as they are all encased in a heavy black rind of pressed grape marc.

You find these cheeses in shops specializing in cheese and gourmet foods, and also, with surprising frequency, in the refrigerated section of large supermarkets. They keep well refrigerated for a week or so; if cut, they should be covered with clear plastic film. Trim off any mold. For best flavor, hold the cheeses at room temperature several hours before serving.

CHERRIES WITH CHEESE

A combination of distinction is sweet cherries and creamy Nec Plus Ultra or Gourmandaise. There is an unmistakable unity of flavors here. To emphasize the impact, serve only cherries with either cheese, and plain crackers.

PEACHES, APRICOTS, AND NECTARINES WITH CHEESE

The cherry cheeses, grape cheeses, and Le Beau Pasteur are very complementary to each of these fruits, and they will all go well together if you would like to offer a basket of fruit and a cheese board. Slices of cheese can be served right on top of slices of fruit.

On the road from New Delhi to Agra to see the Taj Mahal . . . a recipe discovery

Like the ancient alchemists, Chefs of the West keep restlessly pressing and probing and testing for purest gold —in the form of food that lifts the spirit and delights the senses.

Daniel Kelly conducts his quest in spare time from duty as a Marine Corps officer, and has good opportunities for travel. "My wife, Grace, and I discovered this recipe in New Delhi, India. On our visit to Agra to see the Taj Mahal, we stopped at the Clark-Shiraz Hotel and found the exact same recipe. (We have fixed it up for American tastes.)"

These countries around the rim of the Indian Ocean tend to make their rendering of lamb shish kebab rather fruity, hot, and slightly sweet. ("The Indian people put hot red chile peppers in everything," says candidate Kelly.)

We have encountered the name as saté, satay, and sosatie, but never sassatie. With the unexpected double play on Grace Kelly, it harks back to the old American slang word, "sassiety."

SASSATIES A LA GRACE KELLY

- 2 pounds boneless lamb leg or shoulder
- ⅓ cup chopped onion
- 6 cloves garlic, minced or mashed
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 can (about 1 lb.) apricots
- 1½ teaspoons grated orange peel
- 2 tablespoons curry powder
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1/16 teaspoon cayenne
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 4 tablespoons wine vinegar or lemon juice

Cut lamb into about 1-inch cubes and string on skewers. Sauté onion and garlic in olive oil until soft. Add apricots puréed in a blender with ½ cup of the apricots' syrup, orange peel, curry powder, brown sugar, cayenne, salt, and vinegar. Stir and boil 2 minutes. Cool sauce and then pour over the sassaties—the lamb cubes on skewers. Marinate the lamb in the sauce overnight, turning occasionally.

Drain sassaties, saving the sauce, and then broil until brown on all sides. Heat sauce and pour over the grilled sassaties when you serve them—perhaps with hot steamed rice and minced hot chile peppers. Serves 4.

What U. S. winery makes a Pinot Noir? (Actually, 46 wineries do, all but 3 of which are in California.)

What varietal wines does a given winery make?

If you ever ask either kind of question, you can find tabulated answers in the four-page pamphlet U.S. Varietal Table Wines, just published by the trade journal Wines and Vines ($1, postpaid, from Marcus Publications, 16 Beale St., San Francisco 94105).

One chart covers the wines made from native American and hybrid grapes; a much larger one covers the traditional vinifera grapes imported from Europe and grown in this country almost entirely in California. The two charts cover 76 different varietal wines, produced by 103 wineries (their addresses are included).

Cooking with a Mexican accent.

by Elena Zelayeta

Taco stands make me cringe. Not that I'm against making tacos an everyday food here in America. After all, in Mexico they're the equivalent of sandwiches, and that's pretty unpretentious. But, must Americans take Mexican foods, which are as spirited as we Mexicans ourselves, and make them so banal?

There just shouldn't be any such thing as a trite taco. Mexicans make bizarre ones filled with armadillo meat. They make mundane ones filled with beans. They make elegant ones filled with lamb brains. They make mischievous ones with enough chili peppers to ignite you. But dull tacos, no.

Promise me you won't make bland tacos. But don't feel you have to make a big production of them, either. The tortillas for taco shells are so simple that I find the supermarket ones (usually in the delicatessen case) just fine. As for a basic meat filling, forsake lamb brains and use good ground beef. It calls for a sprightly but balanced seasoning, and actually you can buy that in a mix. Lawry's Taco Seasoning Mix is vivacious without being overwhelming. It has the chili and oregano and comino (cumin seed) Mexicans put in their taco seasonings. (My impression is that the Lawry's people, with their various Mexican-style mixes, are going into Mexican cookery quite seriously. Surely they're doing their mixes with more authenticity than any other American maker I know.)

Extemporizing is the key. Once you have the tortillas and the meat filling, let yourself go. Mash avocados. Mince onions. Grate all sorts of cheeses. Put out ripe olives, shredded lettuce, sour cream, chopped tomatoes and green bell peppers. Then turn your guests into an assembly line of do-it-yourself taco makers.

Zabaglione the cold way

Served with berries and cream, Italian zabaglione (pronounced zah-ba-yoh-nee) makes a refreshing summertime dessert.

Made from egg yolks, sugar, and wine for flavoring, it is traditionally served hot, but in these two versions you serve it chilled instead.

Use slender parfait glasses or stemmed wine glasses to show off the effect of alternating this lemon-flavored zabaglione with whipped cream and berries.

VENETIAN ZABAGLIONE

- 6 egg yolks
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- ½ cup Marsala or dry Sherry
- ¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1 cup whipping cream
- Sugar
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 1½ cups strawberries, hulled

Using the top of a double boiler, beat egg yolks until light and gradually beat in sugar; then beat in wine and lemon peel. Place over simmering water and use a wire whip or portable electric beater to beat constantly until custard thickens and retains a peak (about 5 minutes). Immediately remove from heat and let cool to room temperature, or cover and chill.

Whip cream until stiff, sweeten to taste, and flavor with vanilla. Alternate spoonfuls of zabaglione, berries, and whipped cream in slender glasses. Serves 6.—D. V., Palo Alto.

Here rum-flavored zabaglione makes a sundae-style topping on ice cream and berries.

ZABAGLIONE AND ICE CREAM

- 8 egg yolks
- ¼ cup sugar
- ⅓ cup dry white wine
- 3 tablespoons light rum
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream
- ½ cup fresh or frozen blueberries (optional)
- 2 cups fresh strawberries, hulled
- ½ ounce semisweet chocolate

Using the top of a double boiler, beat egg yolks until light and gradually beat in sugar; then beat in wine and rum. Place over simmering water and use a wire whip or portable electric beater to beat constantly until custard thickens and retains a peak (about 5 minutes). Remove from heat and let cool at least to room temperature, or cover and chill.

Place scoops of ice cream in large dessert bowls. Spoon over blueberries and strawberries and top with zabaglione. Cut chocolate into curls with a vegetable peeler; sprinkle over top. Serves 6.

NEWS AND IDEAS

New portable electronic oven

The first portable electronic oven is now available in Southern California—and planned for June distribution in the San Francisco Bay Area. A somewhat hefty 91 pounds, it fits into a space about 15 inches high, 23 inches wide, and 18 inches deep; the corresponding oven space is about 9 by 15 by 13 inches, large enough to take a 25-pound turkey. It's priced at $475.

It might be worth considering for the patio, a vacation house, or boat or trailer equipped for 115-volt, 60-cycle current. It cuts cooking time as much as 75 per cent. You set one dial for cooking times under 5 minutes, or another for times of 5 to 25 minutes—and push a switch.

The unit automatically shuts off whenever the time is up or the door is opened. It does not have a browning element; the obstruction-free inside stays cool and wipes out with a damp sponge. For more information on electronic ovens, see page 96 of the August 1967 Sunset.

One new, several old ways to light a barbecue fire

Everyone has a favorite way to light a barbecue fire, from using paper and kindling to inserting an electric starter. For safety reasons, you should never use kerosene, gasoline, or alcohol; they're poisonous, and the first two are explosive.

To get an idea of what's available this summer, we made a quick trip through several markets. We found the usual variety of starter fluids in squirt-top cans (since the stream of fluid has been known to ignite, one should be extremely careful not to squirt it on an already lighted fire). Jellied alcohol and pre-treated briquet packs are still available. And so are a number of portable electric starters, each with a handle and simple resistance coil. You pile the charcoal on the starter and let it heat for about 20 minutes. Don't leave it there too long, however, for it can burn out.

The newest starter we found was a solidified foam holding tiny drops of flammable fluid suspended in the cells. It is both clean and safe. White and slightly oily to the touch, it comes packaged 24 cubes to a box for about 4 cents a cube. We found 2 cubes sufficient to start 25 briquets.

Making your own wine vinegar

Making wine vinegar with a wine vine culture is a reliable, quiet process th takes place over a period of seve months, unnoticed and untended.

The resulting product is a uniquely f vored vinegar that varies with each bre ing and with your choice of wine. Y can use homemade vinegar just as y would a commercial vinegar—always serving a starter for succeeding batches

Once you get going, your vinegar outp can easily be made generous beyond yo immediate needs; you can soon start g ing it as very personalized gifts.

WINE VINEGAR CULTURE

You may be familiar with the ancie method of using a mother of vinegar- growth that floats on the liquid and a slowly—to convert wine into vineg Though many readers have reported su cessful results to us, wine vinegar a thorities warn that the slow action m permit undesirable side growths to flo ish. They much prefer the controll results achieved with a culture of unp teurized wine vinegar. Combined wi wine and water in prescribed proportio the culture immediately acidifies the m ture to the point where no undesired ganisms can grow.

Wine vinegar culture can be ordered mail. A 4 to 6-ounce container costs abo $2.50, including postage. For a list sources, send a stamped, addressed retu envelope to Wine Vinegar Editor, Sun Magazine, Menlo Park, Calif. 94025.

HOW TO MAKE WINE VINEGAR

The wine vinegar culture, which is usua red, can be used to make red or rosé wi vinegars. You can also use the same c ture to make white wine vinegar, but y have to make several batches with wh wine before achieving the desired p color. The yield is four times what y start with; use part or all of it to start t next round.

Choose a glass, wood, or stainless st container that will be no more than tw thirds filled by the vinegar mixture; co tact with air is essential for the cultu action. Wash the container, rinse, po boiling water into it, and drain well.

Combine in the container 1 part wi vinegar culture, 2 parts wine, and 1 p water (added because full-strength wi might contain enough preservatives to k the culture.) Close opening with a wad sterile cotton.

Set mixture in a warm place (ideally S to 90°) where temperature is fairly co stant; near the hot water heater is a go spot. Let stand two to three months, longer if the room is cooler.

When the vinegar is ready, it tastes ve acid and has no alcoholic flavor or aron It is about 8 per cent acetic acid (or 8 grain strength); commercial wine vi gars are about 5 per cent acetic acid (4 grain strength). To make more vineg use part or all of the finished, unpaste ized vinegar, again adding an equ amount of water and twice as much wi and set aside another two or thr months; be sure the container is ne more than two-thirds full.

If you won't be needing more vineg immediately, pour the amount of start you wish to save into a container, addi water and wine as before, but keep m ture very cool to greatly slow growth the culture. If allowed to continue wo ing without being thusly refreshed, t culture eventually consumes the ac leaving a strong, bad-tasting brew.

HOW TO USE IT

Homemade wine vinegar is about twice acid as commercial vinegars so use it spa ingly. Or you can dilute it to suit yo taste with as much as an equal amount water, a combination of water and wi or all wine. The extra wine introduces mellow flavor that many people enjoy.

For a clearer-looking vinegar, pour through a piece of muslin or nylon stoc ing to remove sediment.

HOW TO PRESERVE IT

Wine vinegar makers, professionals a amateurs alike, recommend pasteurizati to deactivate the culture when the vi gar is at its prime (pasteurized vineg however, cannot be used to make mo vinegar). The technique is simple: He the vinegar to 140° to 150° over dire heat or in a hot water bath; test with thermometer. (If you plan to dilute wi vinegar with wine, pasteurize the vineg after you add the wine.) Store in tight closed bottles at room temperature.

HOW TO FLAVOR IT

After you pasteurize the vinegar, t amount of flavoring you add depends e tirely on your personal taste.

To make herb-flavored vinegars using t ragon, oregano, basil, dill, thyme, or oth herb, immerse freshly cut sprigs (or dri herb) in the vinegar. Let stand until t vinegar takes on the desired flavor, th use. If you want to hold the flavor at certain level, take out the herb, or po the vinegar through a strainer.

To make garlic, onion, or shallot-flavor vinegars, add the chopped vegetable the vinegar; let stand one to two wee or until as strongly flavored as desire Pour through a strainer and discard t vegetable.

For a starter . . . a soup from Sonora

In Mexico a cup or small bowl of a lig but distinctly flavored soup is one of t most typical ways for a special meal begin. Here are two easy-to-make Me can soups you might try at home.

The first is called cream of asparag soup, yet there is no cream in the sc you might expect. Frozen asparag pieces heat and cook in canned chick broth, and to this you have the opti of adding melting chunks of cream chee or cool, thick spoonfuls of sour crea

The second, named for the state of Sono is also based on chicken broth plus mingling of the sweet, mild flavors green pepper, canned corn, and chile po der. Whipped cream is piled into the l soup just before serving, and dissol deliciously into each portion.

CREAM OF ASPARAGUS SOUP

- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen cut asparagus
- 4 cups chicken broth, canned or freshly made
- Salt
- 2 small packages (3 oz. each) cream cheese or 1 cup commercial sour cream

Combine the asparagus and broth in saucepan and bring to boiling, uncover Stir to break apart asparagus and simm gently, uncovered, for 10 minutes. A salt to taste, if needed.

Cut the cream cheese into about ½ in cubes and place in a soup tureen. P in the hot asparagus soup and serve once. Or instead of using the cream chee you can pass sour cream to spoon i individual servings of the soup. Make to 8 servings.

SOPA SONORESE

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 teaspoon chile powder
- 2 cups largely diced green pepper
- 1 can (12 oz.) whole kernel corn with red and green sweet peppers
- 1 small dry whole hot red pepper
- 6 cups chicken broth, canned or freshly made

- 1 cup whipping cream

Melt butter in a saucepan and stir chile powder and green pepper. Co stirring, over moderate heat for abou minutes. Then add corn, red pepper, a broth and bring to a boil, uncovered. simmer about 3 minutes; salt to ta if needed.

Whip cream with ¼ teaspoon salt u stiff. Pour soup into tureen and pile whipped cream on top. Stir slightly a ladle mixture from bottom of dish (corn settles) to serve. Makes 8 to servings.

eck Monterey pines for quoia pitch moth ew pest has recently been noticed on nterey pines in Santa Clara County he sequoia pitch moth (Vespamima uoiae). Adults are clear-winged moths ut ⅔ inch long; they look like yellow kets. (The name Vespamima means itating Vespa," the hornet or yellow ket.) Despite their appearance, they related to peach borers, and the ¾- h-long dirty white or yellowish larvae k something like peach borers.

nptoms are masses of pitch 1 to 2 hes in diameter with a white larva in h. Adults lay eggs in late June and ly July. The borers spend two years their burrows inside the cambium of nk or limb. The opening of the burrow narked by a mass of pitch mixed with ing dust. The mature larva leaves its row and enters the pitch mass to pu- e. Just before the moth emerges the pa pushes to the surface of the pitch.

far the moth has proven to be a dis- uring but not a deadly pest; seriously ested limbs could be weakened to the int where they might break under ess of wind or weight.

a single tree is involved, scrape away pitch and kill the larvae; if infesta- n is heavy, try a spray of lindane or DT to trunk and limbs about the third ck of June. Wet bark thoroughly. Add a miticide to the spray to control mites, which often proliferate when spraying destroys their natural enemies.

Yes, Jennifer, you may be in the contest and you don't have to play baseball at all

Last call for entries in our Summer-Fall Contest

Anyone who wishes to enter Sunset's Summer-Fall Gardens Contest should send his name and address (and age if 16 or under) to Summer-Fall Gardens, Sunset Magazine, Menlo Park, California 94025, before June 15. See page 111 of the April Sunset and 267 of the May Sunset for details.

Young Jennifer Barrett asks about baseball in her entry letter above; many adults silently wondered the same thing. Last year the contest gardens were called "baseball gardens"—only because the season duplicates the baseball season. You don't have to play baseball or even follow the game to enter this year.

Alstroemeria for cutting

Alstroemerias have too many faults to be first-class landscape plants, but as cut flowers they have no peer—and, during their bloom season, they contribute a lot of color to the garden.

The color runs to what might be called the "buffet" colors—delicious shades of salmon, apricot, shrimp pink, lobster red, orange, lemon—and many have a pronounced speckling of brown or purple on the petals.

Plants of the kinds commonly seen in northern California make leafy masses 2 to 5 feet tall. Above these in June or July come the flowers—broad, open clusters of lilylike flowers that somewhat resemble deciduous azaleas (Mollis and Knap Hill-Exbury) in effect and range of color. Cut flowers last well in arrangements.

After blooming, plants dry up and become something of an eyesore unless tops are cut off (some scarce kinds are nearly evergreen; don't cut them back). Summer-dormant plants don't need water but can tolerate it.

Getting plants is a problem. Nurseries sometimes have the tuberous roots in fall, or sell plants in cans, but roots are brittle and hard to store, while plants in cans look shabby and don't bloom well. Seeds that drop in summer sprout in late winter, but won't bloom before second spring. If you can't buy plants or beg some from a friend, you can get seeds from seed specialists.

Strips and straps

Containers and container plants are a tradition at Sunset. Our gardens and patios have many splendid examples of both, and our employees are accustomed to seeing them every day. Nevertheless, the containers pictured here created a mild sensation when we brought them in to have their pictures taken. (By a mild sensation we mean expressions of interest and delight, followed by inquiry about price and the laying out of cash to place an order.)

The outer, decorative portion of the container is made of strips of redwood stained a rich walnut brown and bound together by bands of tough black plastic. The inner, working portion is a black plastic container of the kind used by wholesale nurseries for growing plants for sale. A turned lip at the top of the plastic container fits into grooves routed into the wood strips. The straps are fastened to the strips by hex-headed screws, the only metal in the whole assembly—and the screws are plated to resist rusting.

The larger container in the picture is 13 inches across, 14 inches high; it will take most plants growing in 5-gallon or 3-gallon (egg can) containers and usually sells for $5 or $6. The smaller is 9½ inches across, 10½ inches high, and will take plants from gallon cans or large pots; it costs about $4. A 7 by 8-inch size costs about $2.50.

The same strips and straps combine to make a low (11½ inches high) garden fence. Each 4-foot length has four strips 20 inches long and sharpened at one end to serve as anchoring stakes. Containers and fence are designed and manufactured by a Santa Cruz, California, firm. Your nurseryman or garden supply dealer can get them for you.

Late spring stalwarts

Prominent in late May and June gardens are Shasta daisy and Achillea taygetea. The latter is often spelled A. taggetea, but shouldn't be; it's named after Mount Taygetos in the south of Greece.

Both are easy to grow, both are showy over a long period, and both are superb cut flowers. Give them a sunny situation, reasonably good garden soil, average watering and feeding, and they'll need little additional care beyond dividing every other year or so.

Shasta daisies come in single forms (like those in the picture) and in double forms. The well known 'Esther Read' is typical of the doubles. Until recently all the singles have been white with yellow centers, all the doubles pure white; recent introductions among the doubles have creamy or yellow-tinged flowers.

Achillea taygetea grows to 18 inches and has flat-topped clusters that open bright yellow, slowly fade to primrose, then stay there until removed. Flower clusters can be dried for winter arrangements.

Sowing biennials . . .

Perennials need no promotion, but ennials need an occasional push if t are to stay in the garden picture. At f glance they seem to ask a lot for w they give. These plants cost as much perennials, but give one year's blo instead of many. Seedlings take a y to bloom, and then plants die.

On the other hand, like candles burn at both ends, they give a strong lig And they often come at a time when garden is between acts — in June early July.

Typically a biennial spends a summ fall, and early spring growing into a plant that has sufficient food reserves support a big flower and seed crop. longer the growing season, the larger plant — and the bigger the flower cr It's to your advantage to sow plants ea to allow time for germination, grow on, transplanting, and getting pla established in final planting sites.

June is not too early to sow biennials, fact, they'll need this much growing t where winters are cold. Sow seed thi in rows in well prepared soil, or sow flats or pots. Shelter young plants fr hot sun, but give good light. Transpl sturdy seedlings to stand 6 to 9 inc apart in rows (less in flats), then set permanent places once their roots are v established.

Among biennials to sow are Canterb bells, foxglove, money plant or hone (Lunaria), and sweet William.

The same instruction will serve for s ing perennials, at least the easier ones columbine. Here again, the longer gr ing season the plants have this year, better the flowering next year.

JUNE CHECK LIST: Here's what needs doing

☐ Feeding. Give rhododendrons first feeding as soon as flowers fade. Give azaleas and camellias a follow-up feeding. Light applications of liquid fertilizer will push along begonias, fuchsias, young transplants of annuals and perennials. Roots of container plants can't range for food, so watch their feeding very carefully. Look for off-color in foliage, failure to grow.

☐ Food garden. One secret of success in growing root vegetables is thinning; give roots room to expand sideways, or they'll be undersized and misshapen. Cultivate around vegetables, but don't dig so close as to loosen plants, or so deep as to cut valuable feeder roots.

Thin apricots and peaches if fruits crowd together; room to grow means good air circulation, less chance of rot. Support heavily laden branches of fruit trees.

☐ Lawns. June, like May, is a good month to sow dichondra. Established dichondra may look shabby now; chances are that it is making its annual seed crop. It will recover soon and come back stronger than ever because of the new seedlings. A feeding now will help.

If fungus has plagued your lawn in past summers, anticipate it this year with prophylactic sprays of fungicide. If weather is cool, feeding a blue grass lawn will help it outgrow rust damage; if weather is hot, feeding won't push the blue grass to faster growth. Encourage deep root with deep watering.

If you didn't use a pre-emerger crabgrass control, you may find yo crabgrass a problem now; apply a p emergence killer before plants form s ☐ Pests and diseases. June's wo pests are aphids and other suck insects, which find tender June growt veritable delicatessen. For one way control them, see last month's story systemic insecticides (page 234).

Keep roses sprayed or dusted to prev mildew.

☐ Planting. Container-grown pla can be set out this month,

Woolly beech aphids, woolly apple aphids, and others

Aphids come in a variety of sizes and colors; most are smooth, but many are covered with white "wool"—actually a white wax extruded into threads or powder. The kind in the picture is the woolly beech aphid, which infests all forms of beech but looks most striking against the rich purple of copper beech leaves. Writers on insects have even called the effect handsome.

But handsome is as handsome does, and woolly beech aphid doesn't do handsomely. It secretes a vast amount of sticky honeydew, which in turn supports an ugly, if harmless growth of sooty mold fungus. Control aphids by spraying with malathion or lindane. A dormant oil spray will destroy many eggs and overwintering aphids.

Many other woolly aphids infest various plants; most serious is the woolly apple aphid, which makes easily visible white, woolly masses on trunk or branches of apple trees, and which also feeds on roots of apple trees. Summer sprays of malathion or diazinon will keep them in check (with an assist from the dormant spraying that apples should get as a routine matter).

Finding perennial seeds

Sometimes readers ask us where they can buy seeds of certain rare or unusual perennial plants. If we find a source, it's usually in one of these catalogs:

Geo. W. Park Seed Co., Inc., Greenwood, S.C. 29646. Catalog is free.

Harry E. Saier, Dimondale, Michigan 48821. Catalog costs 50 cents.

Thompson and Morgan, Ltd., Ipswich, England. Catalog costs 25 cents.

These firms also list seeds of trees, shrubs, bulbs, and bulblike plants.

A small Texan

Texans swell with pride at the mention of the bluebonnet, a small annual lupine. They seem less impressed by another small Texas native, annual phlox (P. drummondii); nevertheless the phlox has made a far bigger name for itself in the outside world.

Plants of annual phlox grow from 6 to 18 inches tall; the most popular kinds are dwarfs that reach only 6 to 8 inches. Most are sold from flats in mixed colors, either bright or pastel. Unmixed colors are available in seed packets. Flowers of Globe, Nana Compacta, and most other dwarf strains are nearly round, and come in broad, rounded clusters. In Twinkle and in Starred and Fringed strains, the flowers have fringed, starry-pointed flowers.

You grow the plants much as you would grow petunias; flower season, like that of petunias, will go on all summer if old flowers are pinched off. The low annual phlox are among the finest annuals for foreground planting, edging, window boxes, and containers.

Dwarf, brightly colored annual phlox are good plants for low, squatty bulb pans

It's a good time to prune pyracantha to reduce its size and emphasize the beauty of the fruit. Berries are sufficiently advanced so that you won't accidentally prune any off as you shorten branches.

Remove spent flowers from the large-flowered rhododendrons to prevent seed formation and lessening of next year's bloom. Prolong bloom season of geraniums and pelargoniums by removing spent flowers.

☐ Propagating. Divide primroses and replant divisions in enriched soil. Divide and replant bearded iris; see page 69 of the September 1967 Sunset. Take tip cuttings of chrysanthemums.

☐ Watering. Conserve water with irrigation basins, mulching, and vigilance. The last is the best tool; watch to see where water is going, and guide your further irrigating by what you see. Water that is sprinkled onto unplanted ground is wasted; worse still, it encourages weeds you otherwise wouldn't have during summer. Water that runs off the lawn is wasted; water for a shorter period, then turn off sprinklers, let water soak in, and turn on sprinklers again.

If sprinklers don't reach as far as they should, you may be a victim of low water pressure. Try watering earlier or later, or on a different day, to see if the situation improves.

☐ Weeding. Keep ahead of summer weeds (crabgrass, knotweed, purslane, spotted spurge) with hoe or weed oil. Water where possible by basin or furrow to discourage weeds that sprout under sprinkler irrigation.

The pebble mulch . . . a great desert idea

During a recent tour of gardens in and around Phoenix we noted widespread use of pebble or stone mulches.

A large expanse of pebbles or stones often covers an entire streetside garden, frequently relieved by native cactus, other desert plants, or perhaps large rocks. Quite often a stone-mulched panel separates a lawn or other ground cover from a driveway, path, or foundation of a house; or it may serve as a buffer between swimming pool deck and plants or lawn. In some areas, particularly on slopes, you may find stones of different sizes combined with gravel to simulate a desert wash as well as to solve a drainage problem.

On these two pages you see some of the ways in which the Douglas Driggs, of Paradise Valley, aided by landscape architect John Vogley, have used stone mulches to enhance structure, plants, and containers. The smooth, water-wash stones complement the overall feeling elegance and meticulous maintenance

There are strong practical reasons fo pebble or stone mulch: You can ins it in a short time (compared with planting of a ground cover) for an im diate, neat finish to a bed or border. S a mulch prevents dust and mud-splat ing, conserves moisture, helps to keep and roots cool in summer and warm

Grove of three Catalina ironwoods is a good landscaping solution for dry garden spot

These handsome natives will follow your lead. Grow them in a grove, as a hedge, for a screen

The foliage pattern of California's native Catalina ironwood (Lyonothamnus floribundus asplenifolius), sometimes called Santa Cruz ironwood, is indeed beautiful —on the tree and in long-lasting flower arrangements.

The leaves are divided into two to seven, narrow, leathery, 4 to 8-inch-long leaflets that are glossy dark green above, yellowish green and often hairy beneath; you get a two-toned effect when breezes ruffle the foliage. Each leaflet has coarsely scalloped edges. The leaves look rather fernlike, and densely clothe the branches. New stems are bright red.

(The species—L. floribundus, found only on Catalina Island—is similar to the variety except the narrow leaves are cut into leaflets. Thus its foliage does have the unusual fernlike quality. you probably won't find it in nurse However, on Catalina Island, the spe is intermixed with the variety.)

In June and July, the tree displays s white flowers in many flat clusters 18 inches wide. (They have a stra odor, somewhat like that of pyracan flowers, which many people don't but if you plant it far enough away f house windows you might open, then scent shouldn't bother anyone.)

When the flower clusters become f they turn brown and dry-looking, hang on a long time. While the tr short, you can trim them off—but s it eventually becomes 50 to 70 feet many of the clusters will soon be reachable, so you'll just have to put with this fault. Actually the foliage i dense you hardly notice the dried clus

When the tree gets tall it also show fibrous dark red bark on the trunk w is quite attractive; it looks somewhat that of coast redwood.

Catalina ironwood, native to the isl off the coast of Southern California, best along the coast and in coastal va gardens (anywhere temperatures above 20°). It grows in a wide variet soils, but they must be exceptionally drained; a deep sandy soil is ideal.

If Catalina ironwood fails to grow the usual cause is planting it in too h soil or overwatering. Water trees r larly for a year or two. After that, w deeply during the dry season but no often than once a month.

Catalina ironwood is quite adaptab pruning, so it makes a handsome fo hedge. It can also be an informal sc (it takes wind well) or a street (because of its rather narrow gro habit). Or you can plant it in grov three or more. If you let the st sprouts grow instead of pulling t you'll end up with a multistem shrubby tree or a great big shrub.

Wall building with broken concrete

You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear, but you might be able to make a serviceable pigskin wallet.

Here the wrecking of a substandard terrace and the excavation of an area for a room addition left a vast pile of earth mixed with shattered slabs of concrete. The owners decided to save soil and concrete to use for leveling and terracing the rear lawn, and to make a raised planting bed in front of a low retaining wall.

They stacked pieces of broken concrete in courses to make a low barrier, then filled in behind with a mixture of excavated soil and sawdust. Construction is easy; chunks are laid down to bridge gaps in the previous course, and the wall is given a slight "batter"—an inward slope for stability. Since every crevice is a weep hole for drainage, water drains freely and pressure doesn't build up behind the barrier.

The good drainage makes a cracked concrete wall an excellent place to grow small flowering plants, and the neutral background displays them well. You can choose from a variety of small rock garden plants for the crevices. If these are hard to find where you live, consider the low-growing flowering or foliage plants sold as ground cover. Many make splendid trailing or cushiony wall plants.

The following are easy to find and grow: basket-of-gold, trailing campanulas, perennial candytuft, perennial dianth, smaller ice plants, snow-in-summer.

You can set small plants in the chi while you are building the wall.

The katsura tree likes it in the cool

Bark of trunk gray-brown with interesting stripes

Gardeners who live in cool coastal areas, who can find a place in the shade of broad-branching trees where there's plenty of humidity in the air, can grow the delicate-looking katsura tree (Cercidiphyllum japonicum). It needs rich, moist, well drained soil, and does best where it won't get reflected heat.

In its native Japan it may grow to 100 feet, but it stays 20 to 30 feet high in western gardens. The farther south you go, the more shrublike it is. Foliage burns badly in hot dry areas.

Inconsequential flowers show before the leaves. It's the handsome foliage that counts. New growth is purplish to reddish; the mature 2 to 3-inch, roundish leaves are dark green above, blue-green beneath, on red stalks; they are regularly arranged in pairs. The more frost you get, the more beautiful is the autumn color—bright yellow with some scarlet.

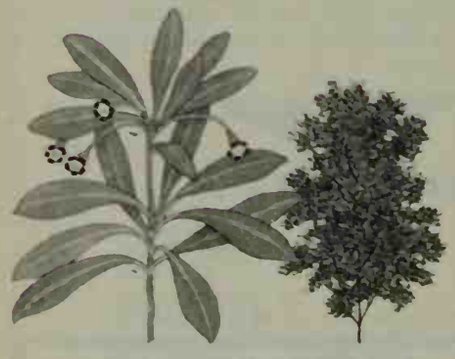
Nine pittosporums ... good looking and very useful

Pittosporum—say it "p'-tahss-p'rum" and you suggest that you're learned but may be a bit of a snob; say it "pit-o-spore-um" and you are one of the vulgar masses or a determined individualist. Nobody—snob, slob, or iconoclast—ever puts the accent on the first or last syllable.

However you say it, pittosporum is a word we live with a lot because it's the name for some of the most-used shrubs in California landscaping (and, in a few cases, in Arizona, too). There is no common name for the whole group, and the common names for the different species rarely catch on because they are either old-fashioned, gingerbread English, or hard-to-pronounce native words of the continents and islands from which they come.

All are evergreen and reliable. All have nice foliage. None has showy flowers but most have fragrant flowers. Several can be handsome, full-sized trees; or they can be planted close and trimmed to be hedges. In the descriptions below, you will find "natural height," the height they reach if they aren't pruned or sheared. The illustrations show the typical unsheared form and the shape of the leaves.



P. crassifolium

Leaves 1 to 2 inches long, thick, dark green above, whitish beneath—total effect is gray-green. Natural height: to 25 feet. Can be kept at 6 to 10 feet by pruning. Annual pruning also helps keep it densely foliaged to the base. Wine red flowers in loose clusters, dark and barely noticeable, appear at branch ends in late spring. The flowers are followed by gray, hairy capsules about an inch long. Good near the ocean; takes wind well.

P. napaulense

Leaves 4 to 8 inches long, glossy. Natural height: to 12 feet or more with a 10-foot spread. Large shrub or small tree. Won't be sold much until 1970. A vigorous grower with exquisitely scented blooms consisting of large clusters of small flowers in terminal clusters. Called "golden fragrance." Has known success in Southern California for 20 years, and is hardy to at least 27°. Does well in both full and partial sun.

Plant 18 inches apart; shear off top 2 to 6 inches several times February to October; trim sides to hedge pattern.

P. phillyraeoides

Leaves 3 inches long, dusty green. Natural height: 15 to 25 feet. Takes intelligent staking and pruning to grow it into tree form. Attractive in a spotlight position of distinction. If it's by a patio or window, you can smell its great abundance of small yellow flowers in late winter, early spring. Decorative, oval, ½-inch-long deep yellow fruits. Gets along on little water, but also does well when watered regularly.

A look at the "other" roses

Modern Hybrid Teas, Floribundas, and Grandifloras have so thoroughly monopolized the rose scene that the other roses are sometimes overlooked. They shouldn't be. These other roses—Polyanthas, Moss roses, Bourbon roses, shrub roses old and new in nearly two dozen classifications—have much to offer. Many are deliciously fragrant, many are hardy and resistant to pests, and most are highly compatible with other shrubs, both deciduous and evergreen, in mixed borders.

HOW OLD IS AN OLD ROSE?

Some rose specialists contend that the only "true" old roses are those developed before hybridizers began to cross-breed with the China rose (Rosa chinensis). Earliest species used in breeding garden roses were the following three:

R. centifolia, the cabbage rose, with pink to purplish double flowers, and a number of roses derived from it known collectively as R. c. muscosa or moss roses. Flowers may be single, semidouble, or double, and colors range from white to red. Flower stalk and calyx of the moss roses are covered with green "moss"—a thick growth of bristly hairs.

Among cabbage roses still sold by specialists is 'Petite de Hollande,' a heavy producer of small, double pink flowers. Among many moss roses still available are: 'Alfred de Dalmas' (blush pink to white, blooms repeatedly), 'Comtesse de Murinais' (white with faint blush, blooms once a year), and 'Madame Louis Lévêque' (lilac pink, blooms once).

R. damascena, the damask rose, is said to have been brought back by crusaders from Damascus. Its double, heavily-scented flowers range from red to pure white. Among varieties still sold are: 'Celsiana,' pale pink blooms deepening to blush; 'Madame Hardy,' white flowers; and 'Marie Louise,' pink. These bloom once a year.

R. gallica, the French rose, is another very old garden plant, with records dating back to the thirteenth century. Most varieties are semidouble or double, and colors include pink, purple, slate blue, red, and white with red stripes. 'Charles de Mills' has deep purple flowers shaded lavender. R. gallica 'Officinalis,' also known as the apothecary's rose, has light crimson flowers with yellow stamens.

ENTER THE CHINA ROSE

Around the end of the eighteenth century the China rose (R. chinensis) was brought to Europe to add its everblooming qualities to roses already diverse in size, color, and fragrance. Among the kinds of roses that came from these crossings are Bourbon roses and Hybrid Perpetuals.

One of the older groups used in developing the Floribunda type is the Polyantha. These roses have very large clusters of small flowers and bloom profusely over a long period. Examples are 'Cécile Brunner,' with creamy pink flowers; and 'Marytje Cazant,' with coral pink flowers on a three-foot bush.

SOME CLIMBING KINDS

Lady Banks roses (R. banksiae) are evergreen climbers that may, in cold winters, lose some or all of their leaves. They have no thorns, a characteristic you'll appreciate at pruning time. Leaves are glossy, small (for roses), highly disease and pest-resistant. Flowers are small, but come in big clusters. The two kinds sold are 'Alba-plena,' with double white, violet-scented flowers; and 'Lutea,' with double yellow, unscented or slightly scented flowers.

'Mermaid' is a hybrid between the Macartney rose (R. bracteata) and a double yellow Tea rose. Its large single, pale yellow flowers appear over a long period. Leaves are shiny and evergreen except in coldest winters; growth is vigorous and thorny. 'Mermaid' makes a fine ground cover and looks great on a rail fence.

Funny thing about advertising. When it goes to work...so do the people.

Why? Because advertising tells people about things they need and want. And the more they buy...the more must be produced. The result. More jobs.

That's why advertising is not an economic waste. That's why it pays to pay attention when well-meaning people start attacking advertising. They'll tell you advertising makes people want things they don't need. And they're right. Advertising builds dreams. But not idle ones. A new home, a new car, a trip. Maybe they're not lofty or awe-inspiring or earth-shaking. But they're one person's private dreams...and his alone. Put enough of them together and you'll know what made this country great.

Plant these for summer fragrance

There's a special magic in a fragrant garden. On warm summer evenings, the scent of flowers perfumes the air and sets a tropical, romantic mood. You can't find a better place for outdoor entertaining and relaxing.

All the plants listed below have fragrant flowers that bloom in summer. Some of them—such as jessamine, gardenia, sweet olive, and star jasmine — are equipped with fragrance so potent that it can fill every cubic inch of garden air space and drift into the house too. The others produce more subtle perfumes that usually won't travel quite as far and are best appreciated at close range.

To be sure of capturing the more elusive scents, grow your fragrant plants in a wind-sheltered place as close as possible to outdoor living areas. Grow fragrant shrubs underneath or next to a bedroom or living room window. Train fragrant vines up a patio support, over an arbor or on a post near a door. Grow the smaller plants in containers and move them onto the patio for special occasions.

SMALL PLANTS

Heliotrope. This is a good choice for containers. Plants stay small enough—usually not more than 2½ feet tall—and in containers they're easily moved to a protected spot during the winter. The dark-ish leaves and violet-blue flowers blend handsomely.

Tuberose (Polianthes tuberosa). A small plant, but one of the strongest scent-producers discussed here. It's easy to bring pots of tuberoses onto a patio where you can enjoy the fragrant white flowers. Plants grow from tubers. At some nurseries, you can buy plants blooming in cans now.

SHRUBS

Jessamine. Night jessamine (Cestrum nocturnum) and willow-leafed jessamine (C. parqui) produce flowers with a powerful (to some, overpowering) scent. A single plant per garden should be plenty.

Both of these evergreen shrubs grow to 6 feet tall or more. In inland gardens, plant in a place with overhead protection from the frost.

Gardenia. The fragrance is well known, not so well known is the best way to grow the plant. Except in hottest inland and desert areas, place it in a warm spot in full sun—never in shade. Plant in fast-draining soil mixed with at least an equa

Cabot's BLEACHING OIL

Demond is great for the unique "driftwood" look, an effect usually found only in seacoast areas after years of exposure to salt air. Cabot's Bleaching Oil, when applied to untreated wood surfaces, imparts a delicate gray tone which weathers in but a few months to a beautiful, natural driftwood gray, will not crack, peel, or blister. Everybody talks about the weather; Cabot's has done something about it.

You can grow popcorn

You can grow all the popcorn your family is likely to pop if you have about 150 square feet of reasonably good soil in a sunny part of the garden.

It's easy to do. Anyone who has grown sweet corn already knows how to grow popcorn. The two crops are similar, but they do have a few small differences.

You will notice one difference when shopping for seeds. Racks may hold a dozen different packets of sweet corn but probably only one kind—if any—of popcorn. If you can't find popcorn locally, order by mail from either of these two Western seed companies: W. Atlee Burpee Co., Box 748, Riverside, Calif. 92502; or Gill Bros. Seed Co., Box 16128, Midway Station, Portland, Ore. 97216.

Here are some kinds of popcorn that you may find on seed racks and in seed catalogs: 'Hybrid South American' and 'Burpee's Peppy' have kernels like ordinary corn; 'Australian Hulless' and 'Japanese Hulless' have narrow, pointed kernels; 'Strawberry' has dark red kernels and ornamental value too—the small ears are shaped like strawberries.

WHEN AND HOW TO PLANT

For most parts of the West, May and June are the corn-planting months. In the Northwest, try to get seeds in the ground by mid-June. In sections of California with long growing seasons, you can plant until the end of July.

Plant seeds 1 inch deep in blocks of short rows 3 feet apart; when seedlings come up, thin so they stand about a foot apart. Or plant in "hills"—six or seven seeds in clumps spaced 3 feet apart. Later, thin seedlings, leaving only the three strongest plants.

DURING THE GROWING SEASON

When stalks are 7 or 8 inches tall, feed with complete fertilizer. Plants need ample water throughout their large root zones all the time they're growing. When tassels first show at the top of stalks, water especially thoroughly and deeply. Give another good deep watering when silk appears on ears. Don't remove suckers at base of stalks.

HARVEST

Leave ears on stalks until they ripen fully—when husks are dry and kernels hard. Store ears in a dry place and let them cure for at least two or three weeks before popping. Remove kernels by rubbing ear from tip to base.

Can you trust what you read in Sunset?

Many of Sunset's friends ask about our scouting, research, and reporting procedures: how we go about developing and confirming the information we publish in Sunset articles.

It is our aim to make our magazine as reliable as we possibly can. To accomplish this we have a staff of writers, editors, and specialists with experience in many different fields—from food chemistry and entomology to geology and architecture—and with a background of long-time residence in every state and region in the West.

There are more than 40 of them, based at our home offices in Menlo Park and at field offices in Los Angeles, Seattle, and Honolulu. Their editorial assignments serve continually to increase their expertise. They experiment in Sunset's gardens, kitchens, studios, workshops. They travel a great deal in—and beyond—our primary area of interest, the Far West. They draw on the most knowledgeable sources of information. They personally see, try out, and evaluate the things they are going to write about.

Finally, when they have written their articles, they subject the manuscripts to a crossfire of critical checking.

This checking system is unusual, and we consider it invaluable in helping us maintain a high standard of thorough and accurate reporting. Copies of Sunset articles in preparation are sent to persons with expert knowledge of the subjects. On a major story these checkers, leading authorities in their fields, may number as many as 25 or 30; each one is asked not only to make necessary corrections but also to challenge any statement that seems even slightly questionable.

Sometimes, of course, the checkers don't agree with one another; then still further investigation is necessary, with Sunset finally deciding what's right—and taking responsibility for the decision.

Errors occasionally creep into Sunset, but to do so they must elude a complex system of filters—a system we constantly try to make more effective. For it is very important to us to retain the confidence of the two million Westerners who read what Sunset has to say each month.

WINDOW ON THE WEST: The inland sea

The venerable double-ender Chetzemoka heads into the ferry slip at Shaw Island, on the Washington State Ferries route from Anacortes through the beautiful San Juan Islands to British Columbia's Vancouver Island. The Washington State Ferries are connecting links within the state's highway system, absolutely necessary because the inland sea called Puget Sound slices 75 miles into western Washington with channels too wide to bridge.

Middle-aged California visitors may find the Chetzemoka and several other Puget Sound ferries strangely familiar, because these are ferries that served on San Francisco Bay before the building of the bridges. The Chetzemoka changed her name when she went north a generation ago. In her earlier life she was the Golden Poppy.
